STOP AT SHISMAREF BREAKS THEIR TRIP

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Safety Bay, 21 miles east of Nome, at 10:40 a. m. (4:40 p. m. E. S. T.) today, completing their last hop over American soil on their vacation flight to Japan.

The couple flew from Shismaref, on Kotzebue Sound, where they were forced down by fog last night on a flight from Point Barrow, northernmost settlement of Alaska.

Col. Lindbergh headed his pontooned monoplane for Safety Bay after circling the Nome waterfront several times and flying over the Nome River which had been recommended as a landing place.

Next Hop to Siberia.

The next hop is for Karaginsk, Siberia, 1,067 miles from here across Bering Sea.

Safety Bay, a long, narrow body of water similar to a lagoon, about halfway between Nome and Solomon Beach, was used as a landing place for Post and Gatty on their epochal flight around the world.

Shelter From Storms.

Small boats, caught in one of the sudden storms which beset Bering Sea, frequently seek shelter in the bay, which thereby earns its name.

A fine sandy beach will permit Col. Lindbergh to moor his plane in absolute safety regardless of weather condition outside the sand spit which protects the bay.

A good highway connecting Nome with Solomon passes the bay, and no trouble will be experienced in hauling gasoline and other supplies to the plane.

One of the first wireless stations in Alaska was erected at Safety Bay. It was abandoned some years ago, and there are no dwellings at that place. The nearest habitation is a roadhouse about 3 miles away.

Three Days at Point Barrow.

The Lindberghs left Point Barrow after a stay of three days and two nights, when weather reports indicated flying conditions between here and there had improved.

Almost the entire population of the farthest North American settlement was on the banks of the lagoon when the visitors left. Although they had planned to replenish their gasoline supply from fuel carried by the Coast Guard cutter, Northland, ice-bound at Wainwright, 90 miles southwest of Point Barrow, the colonel said he had sufficient gas to reach Nome.

Mrs. Lindbergh requested bonfires and flares be made ready to assist them in landing here. All preparations had been completed for their arrival when word came they would not alight on the river. A disappointed crowd of Nome residents, who had waited for two chilling hours in the fog, returned to their homes.

Followed Arctic Shores.

The Lindberghs' course from Point Barrow took them down the shores of the Arctic to the vicinity of Cape Beaufort, across the peninsula from which the Kukpuk River runs to the sea, to Kotzebue Sound, lapping the shores of Seward Peninsula, where they set the monoplane down.

In Nome the Lindberghs will see a distributing place for all the mining fields on Seward Peninsula and what was once a great trading station for hundreds of whalers, walrus hunters and fur dealers.

Except for a low rounded range of hills rising brokenly in the background the country around Nome is flat and the absence of trees along the shoreline makes an inhospitable picture. The thunder of the surf can be heard for miles on stormy days.

Von Gronau May Try To Fly Around World

Seattle, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Offices of the Shell Oil Co. here admitted today fuel supplies had been sent to a base in the Aleutian Islands, Alaska, for Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator now a Reykajvik, Iceland, giving rise to the belief in Seattle that he contemplated an around-the-world flight.

Capt. von Gronau was reported at Reykajvik to be traversing the same course over which he flew from Germany to America last year. He was to leave there tomorrow. Oil company officials declined to name the point to which the supplies had been sent.

Honduran Flier Saved, Now Faces U. S. Action

CAPT. LISANDRO GARAY.

(Associated Press.)

The unscheduled ending of the attempted nonstop flight of Capt. Lisandro Garay from New York to Tegucigalpa may be the beginning of new troubles for the Honduran flier, who was rescued yesterday from the Atlantic.

Investigations are under way here to determine if he violated aviation regulations in taking off in the monoplane which brought him down short of his goal.

The Honduran Legation has communicated with the Commerce and State Departments and is awaiting a report on the case.

Garay is under co[illegible]-martial threat in Honduras for [illegible]; to return at government orde[illegible]uring the revolutionary disturbances several months ago. The Honduran government, through the legation here, had his plane license and a diplomatic pass revoked some time ago.

The revocation of the plane's license also was obtained, it was said at the legation, with an object of keeping the plane from being taken out of storage pending arrangements by the Honduran government to have it shipped to Tegucigalpa.

The legation's investigation followed receipt of information that Garay and his companion had paid the storage on the plane and taken off in it.

The possibility was seen here that Garay, who has flown much in this country, but retained his captaincy in the Honduran army, saw in the contemplated fulfillment of the first nonstop flight from New York to his homeland an opportunity to ameliorate the results of the court-martial

CANADIAN RAIDS YIELD ARRESTS OF RED CHIEFS

TWO LEADERS HELD; ANOTHER IS SOUGHT

Royal Mounted Leads Forays on Toronto Buildings, Including Headquarters.

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Royal Canadian mounted police led raids throughout the dominion tonight on Communist headquarters, where they seized vast quantities of documents and arrested a number of radical leaders.

The drive, ordered by attorneys general of the various provinces, centered in Montreal, northern Ontario, on the Pacific Coast and here.

Charged With Sedition.

Gen. Victor Williams, commissioner of provincial police, led mounted police and eighteen provincial and city officers in raids of six buildings in Toronto, among them the headquarters of the Communist party, the office of the Worker, the party newspaper, and headquarters of the Workers Unity League.

Tim Buck and John Boychuk, executives of the Communist party in Canada, were arrested and held on charges of sedition. A third Communist leder, Tom Ewen, is being sought here.

Arrested in Chicago.

Buck is political secretary of the Communist party in Canada. He has been an official of the Communist party in Canada since its inception in 1919 and attended the congresses of the Third Internationale in 1922 and 1924 at Moscow. In 1922 he was arrested in Chicago but released.

Ewen, secretary of the Workers Unity League, attended the Red International Labor Union Congress at Moscow in 1930.

DEBTS HOLIDAY IS COORDINATED TO YOUNG PLAN

London, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—President Hoover's proposals for a year's war debt and reparations holiday were fitted to the Young plan for reparations payments today after three weeks' work by financial experts of the interested nations.

Protocols signed by the experts this evening in the cabinet room of the foreign office provide that the suspended payments shall be repaid in ten equal annuities spread over the period from July 1, 1933, to July 1, 1943—in other words, there shall be a year's interim between the expiration of the debt holiday and the beginning of repayments.

The suspended payments shall bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent, the protocols provide, and shall be "absolute obligations involving no option of postponement."

Favored Mere Postponement.

The report of the experts states that it would have been much better if the procedure of repayment of suspended payments could have been simply a postponement until 1932 of payments due in 1931, until 1933 of payments due in 1932, and so on.

But, the report says, "a different method was contemplated in the Franco-American agreement of July 6, 1931 and in view of the importance of reaching an agreement without delay, those governments which are not parties to the Franco-American agreement have agreed to adopt the method of repayment contemplated in that agreement."

Other principal provisions of the protocols are:

(1) That unconditional annuities due under the Young plan shall be paid into the Bank for International Settlements upon condition that they be relent immediately to the German Railway Co.

Certain Payments Continue.

(2) That payments required for service of the German external loan of 1924 and for service of the international 5½ per cent loan of 1930 shall continue to be effected without any change.

(3) That annuities to replace the suspended payments shall be paid in monthly instalments the 15th day of each month, beginning July 15, 1933. These payments shall amount each year to 117,831,000 marks (about $29,000,000).

(4) Belgium and Germany, it is stated, have come to their own agreement with regard to German marks left in Belgium after the German occupation.

In concluding their work the experts encountered more difficulty with smaller governments than they did with the larger powers. The Greek government, for instance, was able to accept suspension of payments by Germany, but must continue negotiations for the settlement of payments due from Bulgaria.

Jugoslavia's Plea Heeded.

The report of the experts says that Jugoslavia's plea that suspension of payments works a disproportionate hardship upon her has received full consideration.

It is suggested—subject to the approval of the central banks—that if the Jugoslavian Central Bank finds itself in difficulty because of the suspension it might depend upon appropriate action from other central banks and from the Bank for International Settlements.

"We understand," the experts say with regard to intergovernmental debts to the United States, "that formal steps in the suspension of interallied war debt payments during the Hoover year will be arranged between creditor and debtor governments direct in each case."

In another part of the report it is said that the recommendations for repayment of suspended reparations annuities are made "on the assumption that a similar system will be acceptable to the United States Government when they are in position to reach final decision on the subject as regards debts due them."

Hungary Largely Affected.

Certain small payments of a number of interested nations, mentioned in the agreement of Paris of April, 1930, should not be interrupted, the experts hold, and for that reason the report says they are not affected by the Hoover year. Hungary

Safety Official Hits Rum at Navy Yard

New Philadelphia Police Hear Charges; Adams Replies "Absurd."

Philadelphia, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Director Lemuel B. Schofield, of the department of public safety, which includes the police and fire forces, told a group of new policemen today that conditions exist in the Philadelphia Navy Yard that would not be tolerated in the bureau of police.

Addressing the 45 new members of the force, Director Schofield, as reported by police reporters present, said: "Some of you men have been in the military service—the Army, the Navy or the Marine Corps. I want you to know you are now going into a service which has as high standards as any of the others have or ever had.

"Some of you have been in the Navy, assigned to the Philadelphia Navy Yard, where conditions exist which will not be tolerated in the bureau of police. It has been known

REBEL GENERAL HELD KILLED IN CUBAN FIGHTING

REVOLUTIONARIES SAY THEY SLEW 30 IN RAID

President Machado Declares State of Martial Law Now in Force.

Havana, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Gen. Francisco Peraza, reputed leader of the insurgent forces in Pinar Del Rio Province, was reported to have been killed in serious fighting with government troops near Los Palacios tonight.

Plans to bomb a rebel camp in the Toro Mountains by airplane were abandoned when government pilots failed to locate the insurgents. A report that former President Menocal had landed on the north coast could not be verified.

Lieut. Rofolfo Chipi, commander of the Loyalist forces in that section, telegraphed army headquarters that Gen. Peraza, a hero of the War of Independence, died in battle along with two of his men. Three other rebels were said to have been gravely wounded and eleven taken prisoner.

Raid on Santa Clara.

From Santa Clara today came dispatches reporting rebel success and rebel strength. These dispatches said that 300 revolutionists invaded Santa Clara City late last night, killed 30 soldiers, took 25 prisoners and retired before army reinforcements arrived.

An announcement from the palace said insurgents had burned the Municipal Hall and other buildings.

The little town of Sierra Morena was reported in opposition hands and another report said that rebel strength was gathered there under Col. Justo Carrillo, Manuel Tereigo, Ricardo Fernandez, Horacion Martinez and others.

Government Claims Victory.

In skirmishes at Ranchuelo, Vinas and Sancti Spiritus, however, government forces were reported victorious, taking fourteen prisoners.

Opposition headquarters today claimed that four of the government's 28 pilots have rebelled and that seven others have been arrested.

Despite the report of the air reconnaisance patrol, the insurgents continued to claim strength in Pinar del Rio. The search for Mario G. Menocal, former president, who has been pursued by the government forces for four days, continued today.

Leader Not on Boat.

Supporters said he had landed in Oriente from the gunboat Baire. The government, however, says the Baire will be in port tomorrow. Oriente dispatches have not confirmed his presence there. He was not aboard the yacht Coral, captured today off Pinar del Rio, as was once believed.

At Arabos, in Matanzas, soldiers and police under Capt. Fabian Martinez routed rebels under Jose Alvarez, taking six prisoners, but losing three wounded, including the Arabos chief of police. Matanzas proper was quiet, but its great blue bay was closely watched.

Capital Is Quiet.

Movement of armed forces was reported about Cardenas, site of revolutionary frays of the last century.

At Guinas, in Havana, near where soldiers and rebels clashed last night, rebels cut telephone and telegraph lines and fled with six horses and two prisoners.

The capital itself was quiet, but anxious for all news. Gen. Alberto Herrera, army chief of staff, today said the army had the situation in hand. He prepared to move his office tomorrow into the palace to be in closer touch with the president. President Machado chatted with United States Ambassador Guggenheim this morning, but neither would comment on the conversation.

CRAMER IS THOUGHT DEAD IN NORTH SEA

Hunt for Flier Is Continued, but Few Think He and Aid Have Survived.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Danish and Norwegian aviation and government circles tonight were almost unanimously of the opinion that Parker Cramer, American aviator, and the radio operator, Oliver Pacquette, had perished in the stormy waters of the North Sea. The airmen attempted to fly from the Shetland Islands to Norway last Sunday.

Aided by surface vessels, the searchers continued in the hope that the aviators might have landed on some small, uninhabited rock island off the Norwegian coast. According to present plans, the search will be continued for two days more.

The British fishery cruiser Norna also joined in the search today, sailing into the North Sea from Lerwick, Shetland Islands, in the hope of finding some trace of the missing plane.

Norwegian wireless stations warned all ships in the North Sea to keep a sharp lookout for the missing plane. A Danish survey ship steamed into the North Sea off the Danish coast and two flying boats were also operating off Jutland.

LABOR AGAIN URGES MAINTAINING WAGES

Says Scale Must Be Upheld to Keep Up Purchasing Power of Masses.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight issued a statement declaring the executive council in session here had reaffirmed its opposition to wage cuts and that the wage scale must be maintained to keep up the purchasing power of the masses.

The statement was issued after the council had studied reports on the unemployment situation. It said:

"The executive council of the American Federation of Labor reiterated and reaffirmed its original position in opposition to attempted reductions in wages. It is firmly of the opinion that the distressing unemployment situation can be overcome only through the development of the purchasing power of the masses of the people to its maximum capacity. The facts are overwhelmingly in favor of the position assumed by the A. F. of L. The widespread unemployment which prevails throughout the Nation is due to a lack of buying power upon the part of the masses of the people.

"The purchasing power of more than 6,000,000 wage earners has been totally destroyed because they have been forced into unemployment.

Senator Moses to Vote Against Dole Proposal

Concord, N. H., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Senator George H Moses today announced his intention to vote against any proposal for a dole to aid unemployed. His statement followed a report that $15 a week would be asked for idle heads of families when Congress meets.

Senator Moses said he expected Congress would be deluged with requests for direct cash relief in various forms and that he would continue to vote against doles as he had in the past.

Cruchaga Is Indicated As Chile's New Envoy

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Miguel Cruchaga, former Chilean Ambassador to the United States, was understood on high authority tonight to have accepted reappointment to the post.

Cruchaga has represented Chile in Germany and Argentina, and is the author of various books on international law. At present he is in Mexico as neutral chairman of the Spanish-Mexican Claims Commission.

Score Hurt as Police And Berlin Reds Riot

Berlin, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Police and Communists clashed tonight in southwestern Berlin in an exchange of shots in which one Communist was severely injured and a score of others less severely.

The Communists gathered for a demonstration on the Nostizstrasse and refused to disperse at the command of police, who wielded their clubs. Shots fired by Communists from adjacent houses were returned by the officers.

Lake Erie Storm Smashes Village

Several Reported Injured; Ambulances Stalled by Highwater.

Lorain, Ohio, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A number of persons were reported injured and numerous summer cottages demolished when a heavy windstorm of near-tornado force struck Sheffield Lake Village, 5 miles east of here on Lake Erie, tonight. Two persons were brought to a Lorain Hospital but several ambulances were unable to get through because of high water.

With telephone lines blown down, it was impossible to get word as to how many were injured or the exact extent of property destruction. No reports of deaths were received.

The call for ambulances came by telephone before communication was crippled. Three were sent by City Hospital and the police, but were reported stalled on the flooded roads. Those brought to the hospital were conveyed in private cars.

Mt. Shasta's Bombing Is Delayed by Murk

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—A squadron of heavy Army bombing planes, which set out today to bomb and sink the old Shipping Board steamer Mount Shasta at sea, was unable to locate the steamer in the fog. The squadron returned after nearly two hours of circling over the sea with their 100-pound and 300-pound bombs.

The Mount Shasta was anchored about 60 miles off Carratuck Light on the North Carolina coast. A number of smaller planes reached the ship. Officers at Langley Field, the bombing base, said the attempt would be renewed tomorrow.

Argentine Peso's Fall Is Laid to Speculators

Buenos Aires, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—A government statement today attributed the recent fall of the Argentine peso and Argentine bond quotations to "biased information speculators spread in order to benefit themselves and to damage the country." The statement assured the nation that the peso and bonds "enjoy absolute confidence both within Argentina and abroad."

Exchange quotations of the peso showed improvement today, rising to approximately .66 2-3 cents United States gold per peso.

40 More Detectives Needed In Capital, Official Says

Increase of the police headquarters' detective force from 60 to 100 detective sergeants was urged in the annual report of Inspector William S. Shelby, assistant superintendent of police, for the last fiscal year, during which he was chief of the Detective Bureau.

Inspector Shelby's recommendation was made at the conclusion of a report, in the course of which he cited figures to show the large amount of work with which the Detective Bureau is burdened and the successful manner in which the tasks have been completed.

There were 61 murders committed in the District in the last fiscal year, and 55 of these have been solved and closed, Inspector Shelby said. Of the remaining six, he said, police know the identity of the murderers and are seeking them, leaving only three cases unsolved. These three were the killing of Beulah Limerick, Mrs. Elizabeth Jaynes, shot in the course of a tearoom holdup, and the shooting of John H. Cunningham, small-time attache of a gambling house, who was supposed to have been shot in revenge for information Cunningham was said to have given police.

That the case is not a complete mystery to police was indicated by Inspector Shelby's report that the homicide squad of the detective bureau "is making every effort to learn the whereabouts, and cause the arrest of two white men, whose identity is known to this squad, and I feel that from the investigation made concerning the death of Cunningham that the arrest of these men may mark the closing of this case."

There were 15,273 cases assigned to detectives for investigation, plus an additional 1,785 cases investigated for police of other jurisdictions. There were 3,990 arrests resulting from the investigations of the detectives, Inspector Shelby said.

A high percentage of recovery of stolen automobiles was reported for the year. There were 3,608 cars reported stolen, of which 3,202 were recovered. Twenty-eight others, reported stolen in the preceding fiscal year also were recovered. Owners of cars reported stolen recovered 1,093 themselves. These cases probably represented instances in which persons reported their machines stolen, because they had forgot where they had parked them, and sought police aid in finding them.

Detective Sergt. Frank Alligood, of the automobile squad, again led all

FARMERS' RUIN SEEN IN RAIL RATES BOOST

I.C.C. Warned Increase Will Also Mean Disaster to Coal Exports.

(Associated Press.)

Disaster for farmers and the overseas export coal trade, if the railroads increase their freight rates, was predicted yesterday before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A. W. Drinkard, jr., director of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station, testifying in hearings on the proposed 15 per cent advance in freight charges, said agriculture in his State was "in the throes of one of the most disastrous periods of depression in history." Any increased burden would result, he said, in the farmers having a "smaller share in the comforts and necessities of life."

Arthur Hale, chairman of the Coal Exporters Association, said an increase in tidewater coal rates would wipe out foreign shipments of coal, and result in a loss of $4,000,000 a year to the carriers.

Mr. Drinkard appeared as a witness for the Virginia Corporation Commission, which is opposing the increase. He followed T. D. Geoghegan, traffic expert for the Virginia commission. Mr. Geoghegan presented exhibits intended to show the principal railroads in the State were not justified in asking an increase.

William T. Coe and A. C. Davies, of New York, and Charles W. Hendley, of Baltimore, added their testimony to that of Mr. Hale in opposition to export coal rate increases.

J. W. Roberts, of Chicago, a consulting accountant, who yesterday testified that 1930 railroad dividends were the largest in history with the exception of one year, was cross-examined by railroad attorneys at the outset of today's session. He agreed, under questioning by Henry Wolf Bikle, railroad attorney, that indicated net operating income for 1930 was little more than half what his figures showed for that year.

Mr. Drinkard said he produced figures to show the Federal Farm Land Bank and joint stock land banks had 13,967 loans outstanding to Virginia farm cooperatives and individual farmers totaling $36,453,573, covering 2,145,854 acres out of the 12,249,666 acres operated by farm owners. The Baltimore Farm Land Bank, he said, had 145 foreclosures on Virginia farms in 1929 and 196 in 1930, with no figures available for 1931.

As a result of the 1930 drought the Government made 16,459 loans to Virginia farmers amounting to $2,179,028, he said, and also loaned $174,125 for rehabilitation, while the

STRUGGLE PRECEDES QUADRUPLE SLAYING

Death of Two Young Couples on Lonely Road Is Reconstructed.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—An autopsy tonight gave authorities a partial picture of the desperate fight on a lonely road which ended early today with the slaying of two young couples and the use of their automobiles for a funeral pyre.

The science of University of Michigan pathologists found important clews to the tragedy in an examination of the bodies, which were burned beyond recognition.

One of the two boys, Harry Lore, 16, of Ypsilanti, Mich., was found to have been shot twice, one bullet passing through the jaw to the heart and the other through the chest to the spine. Each of the other bodies gave evidence of injuries inflicted before death.

The story as reconstructed from this evidence was that an attack, directed either at the girls, or for the purpose of robbery, was resisted furiously by the boys. The attackers, officers believed, first shot Lore and then with clubs killed his friend, Thomas Wheatley, 16, of Dendon Village, and their girl companions, Anna May Harrison, 16, and Vivian Gold, 15, both of Cleveland. The bodies then were plied into the car, soaked with gasoline and set afire.

Coagulated blood in the bodies and brains of the girls and of Wheatley indicated the club attack.

While the pathologists were at work on the bodies, police held two men for questioning. They are Paul Keene, 49, and his brother, Lawrence, 38, whose home is a shack on wheels near the scene of the crime. The men had been washing clothes today, police said, and samples of stains found on articles in their possession were sent to the State chemist along with bloodstains from the automobile.

The brothers still were being questioned at the county jail at a late hour tonight. Officers quoted them as explaining the bloodstains on their clothing by saying they had engaged in a fight with each other. The two had hidden the tub in which they washed the clothes, officers said. The brothers also were said by sheriff's deputies to have scraped or trimmed two heavy clubs during the day.

A large crowd was collected around the jail tonight and another at the scene of the crime. The crowds were orderly, however, and no extra precautions were taken to guard the prisoners.

Bomb Blast in Mail Car Is Being Probed by Police

A nonmetallic bomb was exploded last night in a mail car which was attached to a train of five other mail cars, awaiting a signal on the Union Station tracks near the M street bridge. No one was injured.

The bomb was composed of what is believed to have been dynamite and lampblack. It was in a brown paper bag. Capt. T. C. Horne, of the Union Station police, believes that a brown substance in the package was dynamite; but he will submit the package to a chemist for confirmation of his belief. He could ascribe no motive for the hurling of the bomb.

In the car next to the one where the bomb was thrown were several sacks of registered mail, headed for Atlanta. There was no registered mail in the car which the bomb struck.

Carlton Minor, a brakeman, of 403 Ninth street northeast, told Detective Sergt. William Dubusky and Detective E. E. Thompson, of the Metropolitan Police, that he was in the east door of the car when he saw the package on the floor. He saw it burn, then an explosion was heard, which was audible three cars away.

Three colored porters were in the car. The train, made up of six cars, two of which carried registered mail, had just passed the M street bridge and was awaiting a signal when the explosion took place.

The cars had been shifted from the upper tracks where they had been loaded and were being routed to the trains which were to bring them to their destination. The second car, containing registered mail, was destined for Roanoke, Va.

Questioning of the men in the car failed to reveal whether the bomb had been thrown into the car from the bridge or the tracks. None of the men saw any one near the train nor was any one seen to run from the vicinity.

REICHSBANK LOWERS RATES ON DISCOUNTS

Berlin, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Reichsbank today lowered the discount rate from 15 to 10 per cent and the rate on collateral loans from 20 to 15 per cent.

This action was taken in financial circles as another indication that Germany was attempting to put her financial house in order as speedily as is safely possible.

In order adequately to diagnose the situation, a census has been requested of German firms owing upwards of 50,000 marks (about $12,500) to foreign lenders for the purpose of seeing approximately how much in foreign credits has been extended to Germany, both in long and short term paper.

It was indicated by authoritative but unofficial sources that the survey will show short-term credits under two years at about 7,000,000,000 marks (approximately $1,750,000,000) held by American, English and other foreigners.

The survey, it was understood, will show approximately 3,500,000 marks—or half the total of foreign loans—to be from American banks, of which 2,750,000,000 marks represent short-term credits to German banks, the rest being loans to industries.

Of the other foreign credits to Germany, the majority came from England.

Bank credits are said to form the heaviest portion of the short-term total, representing 5,000,000,000 marks (about $1,250,000,000), against 2,000,000,000 marks (about $500,000,000) for industries.

FARMERS' RUIN SEEN IF RAIL RATES RISE

Red Cross expended $250,000 in charity for farm families.

"The condition is bad and is not improving," he said. "On the contrary the situation is getting worse. Farm people in general," he continued, "have faced the difficulties of the depression courageously and do not complain about bearing their just share of the burden incident to changed economic conditions. They do feel, however, that placing any additional burden on them in favor of some other group would be disastrous.

Farmers' Spirit Menaced.

"In my judgment, the spirit and fine courage of farm people would be seriously endangered by any addition to their present burdens, for there is a limit to the endurance of any group of people and rural civilization should not be pushed to the breaking point."

The Virginia Commission put representatives of several industries and organizations on the stand toward the close of the day. Frank G. Louthan, of Richmond, secretary of the Virginia Manufacturers Association, testified a big majority of members of the organization answering a questionnaire had expressed opposition to any increase.

Benjamin S. Dowdell, of Hopewell, said Virginia paper manufacturers had been operating at a loss during the last eighteen months, despite efforts to reduce expenses. He said the 15-per-cent rate increase would add over $200,000 to expenses.

Six Paper Firms Represented.

Mr. Dowdell represented six companies manufacturing paper. Answering questinos by Commissioner Eastman, he said it was doubtful whether the manufacturers could increase prices to absorb a rate increase. Paper manufacturers, he said, sell on the basis of delivery at destination and the purchaser does not pay the freight directly.

G. A. Nimmo, of Suffolk, traffic manager for the Planters Nut & Chocolate Co., said he represented not only his own company, but peanut growers and cleaners in the Virginia peanut district.

The profits of his company, he said, were decreasing almost to the vanishing point, and held an increase in rates would add to this, forcing the farmer to pay the increase on peanuts shipped to market. He contended the farmer could not stand any increase.

Mr. Nimmo said his company had cut wages 10 per cent and unless conditions improved might have to cut still more. All costs except freight rates have dropped, he added.

Attitude of Truck Men.

It was brought out during the questioning that some members of the Virginia Truck Owners Association had said they would raise rates if the railroads did, but Mr. Nimmo said they had added that when they increased rates they would extend the mileage limits to which the rates would apply

George S. Bernard, of Petersburg, representing the American Hardware Co., Inc., which controls eight manufacturing concerns, said his firm had been operating at a loss and that a 15 per cent increase would tend to localize production and cause the railroads to lose profitable long-haul traffic.

H. K. Bowen, executive secretary of the Southwest Virginia, Inc., and T. C. Crouch, representing the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, also testified in opposition to the proposed rates increase.

Both contended shipping in their territory would be seriously threatened by the proposal. Bowen asserted the Norfolk & Western, serving his territory, was prosperous and not in need of further income.

Protocol on Moratorium Plan Signed by Experts

London, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The following is the text of the protocol with Germany signed by the Hoover moratorium plan experts of several countries at London today:

Whereas, on June 20, 1931, the President of the United States of America made proposals for the suspension of intergovernmental debts falling due during the year extending from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932;

And whereas, the governments signatories of the present protocol have accepted said proposal and have agreed to apply them in particular to the obligations of the German government under the agreement signed at The Hague January 20, 1930:

And whereas, the French government and the Government of the United States of America concluded an arrangement on this subject at Paris on July 6, 1931;

And whereas, it is accordingly necessary to provide for the application of the new plan in the conditions thus created;

And in view of the report dated August 11, 1931, drawn up by the experts who met in London for this purpose;

The undersigned, duly authorized to that effect, have agreed as follows:

Article 1. Nothing in the present protocol shall in any way alter or affect existing provisions for the service of the German external loan of 1924, in particular the provisions of Article XII and Annex XI of The Hague agreement of January 20, 1930, concerning that loan. The service of the German Government International 5½ per cent loan of 1930 shall continue to be effected punctually and duly, in conformity with the provisions of the general bond and other agreements securing said loan.

Article 2. The payment of the unconditional part of the annuity from July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1932, and of the reparation tax due by the German Railway Co. from August 1, 1931, to July 1, 1932, will be governed by provisions of annex one to the present protocol.

Article 3. The payment of the conditional part of the annuity falling due from July 15, 1931, to July 15, 1932, both inclusive, shall be suspended. The amounts thus suspended shall, unless otherwise agreed, be repaid as from July 1, 1933, together with interest at 3 per cent from said date, by ten equal annuities of 117,831,000 reichsmarks, the reichsmark being defined as in the new plan. These repayment annuities shall be paid by equal monthly installments on the 15th day of each month from July 15, 1933, to June 15, 1943, inclusive.

The payments provided for by this article will be an absolute obligation, involving no option of postponement. They will be made in foreign currencies as provided in the new plan.

Relevant coupons of debt certificates delivered by the German government to the World Bank for International Settlements, as trustee for the creditor governments under the new plan, shall be indorsed accordingly by the German government and by the World Bank for International Settlements, on behalf of creditor governments, as soon as possible after the coming into force of the present protocol.

Article 4. The arrangements in regard to deliveries in kind during the period from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932, will be governed by the principles contained in annex two to the present protocol.

Measures for the application of these principles will be drawn up by agents for deliveries in kind meeting as provided in article 19 of the regulations for deliveries in kind.

Article 5. Immediately on the signature of the present protocol, and before its entry into force in accordance with article 7, its provisions will be applied provisionally, with retroactive effect to July 1, 1931, by each of the signatory governments.

Article 6. Any dispute, whether between governments parties to the present protocol, or between one or more of these governments and the World Bank for International Settlements, as to the interpretation or application of the said protocol, shall be settled in accordance with the provisions of article 15 of the agreement with Germany signed at The Hague on January 20, 1930.

Article 7. The present protocol, of which the English and French texts are both authentic, shall be ratified, and ratifications shall be deposited at Paris as soon as possible.

Governments whose seat is outside of Europe will be entitled merely to notify the French government through their diplomatic representatives in Paris that their ratification has been given; in that case they must transmit instruments of ratification as soon as possible.

As soon as the present protocol has been ratified by the governments of Belgium, France, Germany, Great Britain and North Ireland, Italy and Japan, it shall come into force between those governments whose ratifications have been deposited or notified at that date. It shall come into force in respect of every other signatory government on the date of notification or deposit of ratifications.

The French government will transmit to all signatory governments and to the World Bank for International Settlements a certified copy of the proces verbal of deposit of each ratification and a certified copy of each notification.

Article 8. The present protocol may be signed at any time up to the date at which it first comes in force, in accordance with article 7, by any government signatory to the agreement with Germany signed at The Hague on January 20, 1930.

After that date any of the said governments may accede to the present protocol by means of notifications addressed to the government of the French republic, which will transmit to the other contracting governments and to the World Bank for International Settlements a certified copy of such notifications. In that case the protocol will come into force for the government concerned on the date of such accession.

Done at London on the 11th day of August, 1931 in a single copy, which will remain deposited in the archives of the government of the French republic, which will transmit certified copies to each of the signatory governments.

(United Press.)

The "Hoover Year."

That is the official term for the period from July 1, 1931, until July 1, 1932, during which President Hoover's debt suspension program is effective, contained in the State Department announcement of the agreement signed at London today.

The agreement is in four portions—the protocol, a set of formal recommendations by the negotiating experts, and two annexes (one dealing with German unconditional reparations, the other with German payments in goods to her creditors during what the agreement calls the "Hoover Year," a new term).

DEBTS MORATORIUM DETAILS COMPLETED

is the principal debtor nation affected. Negotiations which will fix Bulgaria's position in the matter must proceed, it is said.

There is one other complication in the situation. Bulgaria, although one of the central powers during the war, is Germany's creditor through the balancing of accounts relating to properties left by Bulgarian refugees in Greece and by Greek refugees in Bulgaria.

The report says "the Greek government will have to pay about £190,000 (approximately $950,000) to the Bulgarian government on this account during the Hoover year."

The reason given is that the payments proceed through governmental channels to private individuals, and that the Hoover proposals did not intend that private payments should be affected.

In the final section of its report the committee says that although somewhat different considerations apply to certain relief, reconstruction and miscellaneous post-war debts due the European powers, it has been decided to suspend them during the Hoover year also.

Various parts of the committee's work bear different signatures, but the principal documents are signed by Germany, Great Britain and the British Dominion and Indian governments, Japan, France and Italy.

PARIS-ROME PARLEY ON SHIPS TO REOPEN

Paris, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—France and Italy will reopen negotiations for a naval limitations agreement early in September in an effort to remove one of the most serious obstacles to a successful 1932 world disarmament conference.

The United Press learned today that an agreement has been reached for resumption of naval talks coincident with the forthcoming visit of Premier Pierre Laval to Rome for continuation of the series of conferences among European statesmen French and Italian representatives at the September League of Nations council sessions also will discuss the problem.

Both nations have indicated recently a desire to conclude an accord on the naval question, which has been deadlocked since the London naval conference despite one "agreement" negotiated by British government leaders, which later collapsed.

The French viewpoint has been that Italy is ready to compromise, as was indicated by concessions made in the negotiations conducted by British ministers. France has taken the attitude that a shift of the Italian position provides a greater possibility of success particularly in regard to the Fascist government's willingness to restrict for the present, at least, its demands for "a naval force equal to France."

France also has been represented as gratified by diminution of what was sermed the "excessive nationalism" of the Fascists. Recently it has been believed that Premier Mussolini is moderating such tendencies in an effort to alleviate the economic position of his country through closer collaboration with France and other nations.

The Italian viewpoint has been that France should act to break the deadlock in view of the concessions already made by Italy and because France caused the collapse of the last accord by insisting on the right to build replacements before 1936, to which Great Britain would not consent.

Rome believes that the visit of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson to the Italian and French capitals in recent weeks exerted a beneficial influence on the plans for resumption of negotiations, even to the extent of persuading France to take the initiative.

Furthermore, it is generally believed that the great interest of the United States and Great Britain in success of the 1932 conference at Geneva has brought pressure on France and Italy to solve their differences and to reach an agreement which would be expected to increase the chances for success of the disarmament session.

Living Costs Down Since Year Began

Food Prices Took Sharpest Drop, Labor Department States in Report.

(Associated Press.)

An estimate that the cost of living in the United States is 6.5 per cent cheaper now than at the start of the current year was made yesterday by the Department of Labor. Returns from 51 cities on food prices and from 32 cities on clothing, rents, fuel, light, house furnishings and other items were made the basis of the estimate.

During the six months of 1931, it was said, food prices dropped 13.8 per cent, house furnishings 6 per cent, fuel and light 5.5 per cent, clothing 4.6 per cent and rents 3.1 per cent. Articles in the miscellaneous group dropped only 0.7 per cent.

Tracing prices back to the high peak of June, 1920, the report calculated clothing could be purchased 49.2 per cent cheaper now than then. The next largest drop was shown in food prices, with a reduction of 46 per cent, followed by house furnishings at 39.5 per cent.

The recession in other groups was smaller, with fuel and light dropping 3.8 per cent and rents 5.3 per cent.

GERMANS HEAR PLEA FOR NATIONAL UNITY

Chancellor Bruening Urges People to Join Hands in Present Crisis.

Berlin, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, at the climax of the celebration today of the twelfth anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of the German Republic, made an earnest appeal to the German people to join hands together to overcome the present difficulties and to build up the Nation.

The chancellor's address was followed by one by Finance Minister Dietrich, who warned that the issue in Germany today is "Capitalism against Bolshevism."

The addresses were delivered in the presence of President Paul Von Hindenburg and members of the Diplomatic Corps, including United States Ambassador Frederick M. Sackett.

"This day," Chancellor Bruening said, "like a memorial day, is one on which all party passions subside—the day belongs to the entire German people." The chancellor then asked everybody present to join in a threefold "hoch" for Republican Germany.

"This celebration," he continued, "comes at a time of overpowering economic distress which imposes the severest strain on our powers of endurance."

As he said this, President Von Hindenburg, seated in the honor box, with President Loebe and Vice President Von Kardorff of the Reichstag flanking him on one side and Minister of Defense Groener and Minister of Interior Wirth on the other, nodded gravely.

Herr Dietrich was generally optimistic about Germany's future, but he tempered his address with frank criticism of mistakes he said were made and with a warning against bolshevism.

"The issue today," he said, "is capitalism against bolshevism. Whatever system is chosen can be justified only by fulfillment of the task of making the people happy. With all its faults, the present system is the best, but new paths must be tried."

Funds had been squandered, the finance minister said, and too many people had flocked to the big cities.

On the credit side of the ledger he complimented the nation for its hardihood during the present crisis.

Powerful Earthquake Is Traced to Mongolia

London, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Information received today from various observatories whose instruments traced the powerful earthquake shock recorded at the West Bromwich Observatory yesterday traced the disturbance to a probable point at about latitude 50 degrees north, longitude 96 degrees east.

This position is in the extreme northern portion of Mongolia, about 500 miles west of Lake Baikal and Irkutsk. The region is a thinly populated one.

Plagiarism Is Charged To Paramount Publix

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Walter T. Mead filed suit against the Paramount Publix Corporation today for $1,000,000 damages, charging the film play "Sins of the Fathers" was based upon a manuscript submitted to the corporation by him in 1927 and returned as unsuitable for production.

He named as codefendant Norman Bernstein, who assertedly wrote the script for the film.

CONFERENCE CALLED ON GERMAN CREDITS

Expert Group Wiggin Heads Invites Governmental Officers and Bankers.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—A conference at which the entire problem of credits to Germany can be clarified was decided upon this afternoon by the committee of experts presided over by Albert H. Wiggin, of New York. Invitation were sent to Reichsbank President Hans Luther and to interested German and foreign bankers to come to Basel.

As the invitation was extended to governmental as well as banking officials, the conference will be in position to obtain a complete view of Germany's financial situation.

The invitation grew out of negotiations in progress for some time between individual German banks and foreign creditors for the extension of short term loans.

Dr. Luther also has been active, having recently asked other central banks to decide on a method of handling short-term credits.

Without knowing what progress had been made in Berlin toward the extension of short-term credits, the experts of the World Bank committee, appointed to inquire into Germany's credit needs decided it would be impossible to reach a complete solution.

The experts today showed a determination to achieve definite results within a few days.

The general conference for the maintenance of short-term credits to Germany by the principal banks of Europe and the United States will open Thursday at the World Bank.

One or two delegates from each interested bank will work with the committee of experts already assembled.

Opinions Received In Fall Clemency

(Associated Press.)

Three closely guarded opinions, declaring either for or against executive clemency to Albert B. Fall, were received yesterday by the Justice Department. Meanwhile, Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, is completing the first weeks of his sentence at the New Mexico State Penitentiary, in Santa Fe. He is serving a year and a day for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny in exchange for an oil lease.

The opinions received yesterday were those of Associate Justice William Hitz, of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, who presided at Fall's trial; Atlee Pomerene, special prosecutor for the Government in the oil trials, and United States Attorney for the District of Columbia Leo A. Rover. James A. Finch, Federal pardon attorney, to whom the papers were submitted, declined to say yesterday whether their receipt completed the personal investigation he has been making into the case.

The inquiry was prompted by a petition for clemency from members of the New Mexico Legislature and the United States senators of that State, which was submitted to the White House and turned over to the department.

Five Fishermen Saved As Craft Sinks in Bay

(United Press.)

Coast Guard headquarters were notified yesterday by its station at Wachapreague, Va., on the eastern shore of Chesapeake Bay that the fishing boat Pompano had been tossed about in a heavy sea and was a "total loss."

Five members of the crew were rescued. The message did not say whether there were more on board, and the Coast Guard assumed all had been saved. The vessel was caught in a storm and wrecked during "rough seas and a northeasterly wind, 5 miles north of here," the report said.

Roosevelt Backer Sounds Congress

(Associated Press.)

Representatives in Congress from the South and Southwest have been asked their preference for the Democratic nomination by F. B. Summers, of Atlanta, who signs himself "Executive Chairman" of "Roosevelt Southern Clubs."

Dated July 29, the letter said "if you favor the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, we would be very glad to have a brief expression from you" for use in press stories.

The stationery calls the clubs "A Southwide volunteer organization advocating the nomination and election" of Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, as President.

Utah Senator Girds Aid for Greek Mail

It's one thing to keep constituents satisfied through letters written in English, but few senators think enough of their foreign-born citizens of their States to buy special typewriters for carrying on correspondence with them.

Senator William E. King, of Utah, however, has several Greek constituents whom he regards highly. Yesterday a shiny new typewriter was delivered to his office; but instead of the customary A B Cs and dollar marks, the keys are made to write "alpha" and "omega," and all that goes between in the Greek alphabet. The machine will be operated by the senator's efficient secretary, James P. McCeney.

Speculation in Bread Laid to 83 by Soviet

Moscow, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Charges of speculating in bread, which is rationed in the Soviet, were made today against 83 persons, including officials of cooperative clubs, arrested at Astrakhan.

An investigation showed that last winter as much as 30 per cent of the government bread in Astrakhan fell into the hands of speculators who resold it at exorbitant prices while many persons went hungry.

Shed One Tear for Police, Facing Loss of 3d Degree

By JOHN J. DALY

PITY the poor police, again up for censure—this time by the Wickersham Commission—on what is known as systematized brutality or the Third Degree.

Now, the Third Degree is an ancient method of bringing criminals to their knees; of making them confess, whether they have committed a crime or not. It has come down through the years to the point of perfection attained by present-day students of criminology and low-browed bulls.

Behind all this business—the administration of the Spanish water cure, the wielding of the rubber hose, the use of jiu-jitsu, and other forms of torture—stand the sturdy practices of antiquity. All nations and all ages have contributed to the pastime, so that today the police in at least fifteen major cities are masters of mechanical and mental devices that make the Third Degree the terror of gangsters.

INCORPORATED in the system are some of the stunts used by the Romans in their playful moments with the early Christians. The ancient Chinese, a people given to the subtlest punishment of offenders, gave loose leaves from their books of knowledge. Some of the best pranks played by the Spaniards during the Inquisition, and a few of the dramatic touches developed in the Tower of London, in the time of Good Queen Bess, are often revived in melodramatic moments at police stations.

England was England in those days, and men like Essex, who had known the favor of queens, went to their doom with smiles on their lips.

The old torture chambers saw many a sight, but no commission ever made report of what took place when Childe Roland to the dark tower came.

* * * *

If a man fell into the toils of justice he had to expect a certain amount of torture at the hands of his captors.

Police, after all, are only human, and they must play. Their lot, as Gilbert and Sullivan noted, "is not a happy one." So the third degree came as the epitome of pleasure for men suffering from ennui, who yearned for diversion. Since human beings were their foils, they played with them as cats with mice.

In the twentieth century an attempt is now being made, by arousing public opinion, to break up a practice that has the stamp of historical approval upon it. The third degree, though it got its name only 25 years ago, is as old as creation. It was christened, or titled, by the late Maj. "Dick" Sylvester, a former newspaperman, who became major and superintendent of police in the District of Columbia. It really was an outgrowth of the Cain and Abel incident, when the brother bashed in the skull of the younger lad with a primitive nightstick.

* * * *

THE idea now is to take away this game from the police, the poor policemen who try their best to rid the community of the gangsters and racketeers. As one irate official asks, "What are we going to do, give our baby killers ice cream sundaes?"

The gradual evolution of the policeman is something for the historians to trace. Years ago they were called flat-foots. Now, what with college educations, and training schools for them, they are highbrows.

Take away the terrorism of the police and most of the glamour will be lost. What good police officer, of the old school, wants to sit in a drawing room and hold a tete-a-tete with a criminal? The simplest and handiest way of questiong a suspect is to tap him over the head with a length of rubber hose, and then get his signature to a "voluntary" confession.

* * * *

WHAT matter if the confession is ruled out at the trial? Are the police to blame if a prisoner lies to escape further torture? They are seeking the truth, even if by their third degree methods they get further and further away from the truth.

The suggestion that the Constitution must be amended to prohibit police brutality—it is to laugh! What greater torture could be inflicted upon the body politic than another amendment to the Constitution?

HONDURAN AVIATOR SAVED BY STEAMER

The monoplane originally was purchased for the Honduran air force and was to have been flown by Garay in a nonstop trip about the time the unsuccessful revolution broke out on the north Honduran coast.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Capt. Lisandro Garay was rescued from the wave-lashed wreckage of his airplane off North Carolina today, nearly 36 hours after he fell into the Atlantic attempting a nonstop flight from New York to Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

His jaw was fractured, his body bruised and cut and he was near exhaustion when the steamer Biboco radioed naval authorities here of finding Garay 20 miles east of Cape Lookout.

But the plucky flier, who had figured in the internal turmoil of his native Honduras before he mysteriously took off from New York Sunday afternoon, soon dispatched a terse message to a friend saying:

"Fell into sea Sunday midnight. Picked up by S. S. Biboco noon today. Exhausted. Slightly wounded. Otherwise O. K. Proceeding Savannah. Arrive tomorrow night."

The Biboco, of the American-Brazil Line, sailed from New York August 9 for Para, Brazil, with a general cargo.

Capt. Garay made an unexpected start on his 2,300-mile journey at 3:51 p. m. (E.S.T.) Sunday. He announced he was merely making a load test and taxied across Floyd Bennett Field with Bert Acosta, who stepped out of one side of the cabin into a waiting taxicab before Garay wheeled his plane and nosed into the wind. He had Acosta with him because his own license had been revoked on request of Honduran officials here, and he would not have been allowed to take his plane off the ground alone if field officials had known what he intended to do.

FESS SAYS HOOVER WORKS ON AID PLAN

Ohioan Reports President Prepares Concrete Program for Idle Relief.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, said yesterday that President Hoover intends to have a "concrete program" to present to the next Congress on the economic situation. The Ohio senator conferred Monday with Mr. Hoover. He reported the President is now engaged in determining the exact employment situation.

"It is my hope," he said, "that Federal relief in the unemployment situation will not be necessary. I do not know now whether it will be necessary. Of course, it goes without saying that we are not going to let our people suffer, if their own communities are unable to aid them. You may be sure that President Hoover is alive to the situation."

Senator Fess said the subject of a special session was not discussed at the White House. It was his view, however, that no special session would be called. He is not in favor of one himself.

President Hoover was requested in a letter yesterday from Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, to call a special session of Congress early in September for consideration of unemployment relief.

The letter said "obvious facts indicate continued unemployment, diminishing purchasing power and depressed farm prices. I urge that Congress be called in special session early in September," the letter concluded. "The evidence on every hand points to the necessity for early legislative action. I venture the suggestion that conferences do not mean action, and usually mean an excuse for inaction.

"The gravity of the situation is such that the responsibility of the President and the Congress is measured by the necessity, and the necessity was never greater."

Hoover Congratulates Berlin on Anniversary

President Hoover yesterday cabled to President Von Hindenburg of Germany his felicitations on the twelfth anniversary of the German republic.

"I extend my hearty congratulations," the President cabled, "to your excellency and your fellow countrymen on this anniversary of the German republic."

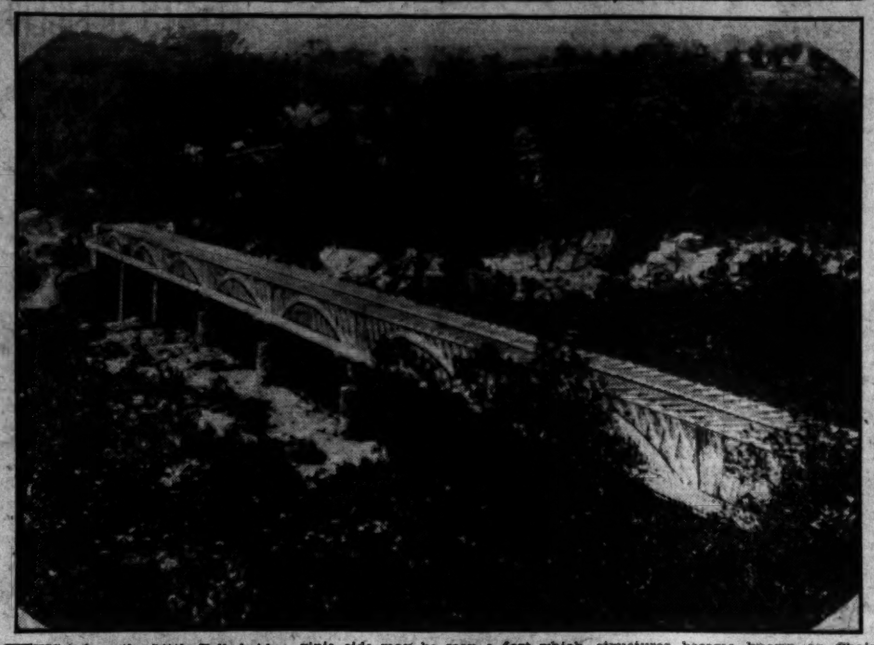
When Washington Was Younger—No. 11



THIS is how the Little Falls bridge looked in 1861, the photograph being one from a collection of old Washington scenes belonging to James F. Duhamel. To most Washingtonians the bridge and others which have succeeded it are known as the Chain bridges.

At the top of the hill on the Virginia side may be seen a fort which was occupied during the Civil War. The first bridge at this point was erected in 1797 and was washed away in 1804. A second bridge lasted three years while a third, supported by chains in accord with an early United States patent, lasted only two years. It was from this third bridge that the structures became known as Chain bridges.

The fourth bridge on the site was built in 1812 and maintained until 1833 by a private corporation, later being taken over by the Government. The bridge shown here was built in 1854 at a cost of $30,000 only to be replaced in 1874 by one which cost $100,000.

The GIRL About Town

NATURALLY, I could not rest until I had found out who wrote "The Washington Merry-Go-Round." That book stirred up a lot of my friends—and it even gave me a dig. Now that I know the identity of the author all the zest is gone and the jibes seem pretty far-fetched, because the author doesn't really know many of the individuals she criticizes. If I should give her name everybody would say: "Why, of course! Why didn't we think of her?"

Business has won another recruit. I met Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer, wife of Gen. Keefer, chairman of the District Red Cross, in front of the new apartment house where she is acting as rental hostess. She confided to me that she just loved her work. Gen. Keefer is on his vacation in Nova Scotia, but Mrs. Keefer stayed behind to get started in her new job. She is a golf enthusiast and president of the Woman's District of Columbia Golf Association. Mrs. Keefer will attend the fall tournament for the Middle Atlantic championship at Hot Springs on October 12.

HURRAH! There's a new chance for a junket. The fine steamer Republic, on which we went to Europe several years ago, is now an Army transport. I understand the congressional line is forming on the left to make applications for junkets on it to Hawaii and Manila, between now and the opening of Congress. My Uncle Charles is in Congress, and I am going to ask him to fix it up for me. A congressional junket gives you that grand and glorious feeling of getting something for nothing. Isn't the Army good to Congress?

Cynthia and I went all over town yesterday looking for one of those new grape brickbats. I guess Mabel Willebrandt hasn't picked out a Washington agent yet, because we could not find them anywhere. From all I hear, we may have modification very soon. I think some of the liquor is modified enough now. The embassies always pour water into the punch when a bigger crowd appears than was expected. Would you call that modification?

They must have heard at the Treasury Department that Secretary Mellon is coming home soon. On Monday they let in water in that fountain, which has been putting that classic building in bad odor for so long. After all, there is no drought this year, so why the Treasury Department was so careful not to waste water, no one knew.

ECONOMIC WARFARE MENACES TEXAS OIL

Martial Law May Result if Legislature Fails to Cut Production.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Texas held the key tonight to a tense situation in the oil industry. A storm of economic warfare threatened, should the Texas legislature, in the closing hours of its special session, fail to enact laws curbing flush production in the giant new East Texas field.

Gov. W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, sent Charles West to Austin during the day, to point out that the Texas chief executive had the power to intervene with martial law in the rampant East Texas field as Gov. Murray has done in Oklahoma. East Texas production was reported to have increased to an average of 654,246 barrels daily last week, an increase of 56,695 barrels daily over the average for the previous week.

Gov. Sterling, however, said he still was hopeful the legislature would pass a satisfactoy conservation law before the close of the special session tomorrow night. He said no decision upon a declaration of martial law in East Texas would be made until the legislature had acted.

The Texas chief executive added, though, that he had received a favorable reaction from his announcement he might declare martial law to force a shutdown.

As the seriousness of the situation aroused a storm of protest from independent oil operators and business men throughout Texas and nearby States it was announced the free conference sub-committee of the Senate and House had agreed on a compromise oil bill. The bill was given to the main conference committee for action after which it will be taken to the two houses for consideration with indications of easy sailing if it arrives that far.

The House had approved a conservation measure incorporating Gov. Sterling's oil relief program, but the Senate had substituted a bill which administration adherents declared would weaken existing conservation statutes.

East Texas operators, meantime, were going ahead with plans for a mass meeting Friday at Tyler, expected to be attended by 4,000 oil operators and business men, to discuss the feasibility of a complete voluntary shut-down.

One effect of the shut-down in Oklahoma was an offer today by the Cushing Gasoline & Refining Co. to pay $1 a barrel for a limited quantity of crude oil. The company has two refineries. There was no general advance in crude prices, however.

DEMOCRATS NAME WET FOR CONGRESS

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Democratic nomination for representative from the Twentieth Ohio District was won today by Municipal Judge Martin L. Sweeney in a special primary to fill the vacancy created by the death of Representative Charles A. Mooney. The Democratic nominee will be an overwhelming favorite to win in November as the district is strongly Democratic. D. Haydn Parry (Republican), will oppose him.

The complete unofficial count gave Sweeney 3,923 votes; Leon A. Kujawski, 685, and Walter G. O'Donnell 131. Parry polled 1,949 votes to 893 for Oscar V. Hemsley, his only opponent. The Twentieth District is entirely within greater Cleveland.

In Ohio's only other congressional primary, in the First (Cincinnati) District, nominees for the race to elect a successor to the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth, were chosen without opposition. John B. Hollister was unopposed as Republican nominee, while State Senator David Lorbach had no opposition on the Democratic ticket.

Both are advocates of prohibition repeal.

CITY HEADS ACCEPT LANE TRAFFIC RULES

Streets Now Being Marked to Permit Free and Easy Driving of Cars.

Lane traffic rules, intended to speed the movement of vehicles by eliminating much of the confusing and blocking at intersections and at bottle-neck sections of the streets, were adopted yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

As a part of this policy, the ban against passing a loading platform or safety zone on the left side was removed except where official signs indicate otherwise. Other regulations dealing with free wheeling, one-way streets, and parking were also approved.

As to the lanes, the regulation states: "Whenever any street or highway has been divided into lanes for traffic, a vehicle shall be driven entirely within a single lane and shall not be removed from such lane, except where the line is broken, and not then until the driver has first ascertained that such movement can be made safely.

Permits Easy Movement.

The traffic director says in justification of the recommendation: "A free and easy movement of traffic is best promoted by moving traffic in lanes. In order to encourage drivers to drive in lanes, streets are now being marked at the more important intersections."

The approval of free wheeling is not without restrictions. Every such device must be examined and approved by the Bureau of Standards before its use is permitted.

Park road, which has hitherto been a one-way street for west-bound traffic, was opened for two traffic, and parking was switched from the north to the south side, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets. This thoroughfare is one of the most important east-west through streets. Parking is shifted so as to correspond with parking conditions west of Sixteenth street and to permit easier turns at Fourteenth street.

Because of the recent removal of the street car tracks on F and G streets, between Seventeenth and Twenty-sixth streets, the streets were ordered opened to two-way traffic.

Other Parking Regulations.

Other parking regulation changes are as follows:

Parking abolished on Foxhall road, between Reservoir and Canal roads; because of narrowness.

One-hour parking on Indiana avenue, from Sixth street to John Marshall place, between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.; space needed for persons doing business with Traffic Department.

Restriction of parking ban on Newark street from Thirty-third street to Highland place, from Constitution avenue.

Parking permitted on south side of Bancroft place, between Twenty-third street and turn around, but prohibited on the turn.

Ridge place, from Minnesota avenue to Thirteenth street southeast, changed to west-bound traffic only because of narrowness.

Motorist Is Indicted For Death of Woman

A manslaughter indictment was returned by the District grand jury against Carl Henry Ramey, whose automobile struck and fatally injured Mildred Taylor, colored, July 5.

Testimony showed that the girl walked from between two parked cars,

Lost Gold Mine Is Found; Rush for $1,700 Ore Begins

American Fork, Utah, Aug. 11 (U. P.).—For 50 years the grizzled "desert rats" of the Wild Tank Canyon region have been saying, "Thar's gold in them thar hills."

But it remained for Royal D. Gardner, elderly Salt Lake City mining engineer, and his son, Kenneth, to find it. Announcement that they had discovered gold ore assaying up to $1,700 a ton already has started a trek of gold seekers over the sun-baked hills to the almost inaccessible Tank Canyon country.

Behind the discovery lies the tale of the Tank Canyon gold hunt, which started in 1880, when Rawsel Gardner, sawmill operator, picked up a chunk of gold-veined ore. An assay revealed the rock ran as high as $100,000 per ton.

Prospecting was impossible that winter. Gardner awaited patiently the coming spring. When he visited the canyon early in 1881 he found he could not remember where he picked up the ore.

Rawsel Gardner and his brothers, Joseph, Heber and Robert, began a search which continued off and on throughout the years. The Tank Canyon gold mine became a family tradition. And then came Royal's discovery. True, it didn't equal the find of Rawsel, who died two years ago, but it was a rich strike nevertheless.

The ore-bearing fissure on one side of the canyon is 12 feet wide and runs up to $1,700 per ton. On the other side it drops down to $500.

LIQUOR AT U. S. NAVY YARD HIT BY PHILADELPHIA POLICE HEAD

that liquor has been brought in the navy yard under the noses of guards, sailors, marine guards and petty officers.

"Liquor has been brought into the guardhouse and fed to prisoners, and when protests were made by citizens they were ignored by the commanding officer and others in authority. Nothing has been done about it. You are now joining a group of men which has much higher standards than that."

Rear Admiral Lucius A. Bostwick, commandant of the navy yard since July last year, had no comment to make regarding the director's remarks.

Director Schofield declined to amplify his talk to the policemen except to explain that he did not wish to create the impression that he was "criticizing the United States Government."

(United Press.)

Secretary of Navy Adams yesterday defended naval virtue and characterized as "too absurd to investigate" charges of L. B. Schofield, Philadelphia commissioner of public safety. "Really," Secretary Adams said, "the thing is too scurrilous to merit a reply."

The Secretary added that a small quantity of liquor might find its way into the yard, but "then things like that sometimes happen in spite of all that any one can do."

Secretary Adams said he had no intention of asking Rear Admiral L. A. Bostwick, station commandant, for an explanation. "It would," he explained, "be like asking him if he were doing his duty."

When told that Mr. Schofield has said liquor was available for prisoners in the workhouse, Secretary Adams laughed. "I'm not going to answer any more of "Scoffy's charges," he said.

Mr. Schofield's declaration follows a long controversy between Navy officials and the Philadelphia police force over alleged use of Navy uniforms by local officers in making prohibition arrests.

Formal protests on behalf of the Navy Secretary were made recently by Admiral Bostwick, and a policeman, who was also a member of the naval reserve, was discharged from the Navy for using his uniform as a disguise.

Mr. Schofield yesterday was reported as refusing to discuss the earlier controversy, but at the same time he declared the Navy could "better assist in enforcing all the laws of the Nation," rather than criticizing what he termed "such small potatoes."

Two Report Golf Clubs Stolen From Their Cars

Oliver H. Perry, Rockville, Md., told police yesterday that as he emerged from Center Market after making a purchase he perceived a blond youth reach into his car, parked nearby, and filch one of his golf clubs—a midiron and part of a matched set—valued at $8. The thief darted into an alley before Perry could apprehend him.

Later in the day Victor N. Podoski, 1 Riggs Court northwest, also was robbed of links equipment, 25 golf balls being stolen from his car parked near Twentieth street on Massachusetts avenue northwest. Four small colored boys seen playing around automobiles in the vicinity were suspected.

Boats Take Mrs. Roosevelt And Six Off Wrecked Plane

Ponce, Porto Rico, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—A party of seven persons, including Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, wife of the Governor of Porto Rico, were rescued in rowboats last night after a big passenger seaplane in which they had been on a pleasure cruise struck a snag while landing on Ponce Bay and sank in 6 feet of water.

George W. Crouse, of Syracuse, N. Y., who had chartered the plane from Pan-American Airways for the flight, praised Mrs. Roosevelt for her coolness during the wreck and the rescue. Five Porto Rican officials also were on board. The crew consisted of Pilot James H. Tilton, Copilot Robert Davis and Radio Operator Thomas Higgins.

The party had been cruising over Ponce and the bay without incident and Tilton brought the plane down to the water smoothly for the landing. The ship had settled down on the bay and was taxi-ing to the shore when it struck a submerged object. Most of the hull was ripped away and the plane began to fill with water, settling slowly. Tilton advised Crouse and his guests of the situation and they waited calmly until small boats had come out from shore and taken them off. A launch attempted to tow the plane to the shore, but the lines broke and it sank. Crouse's party, ashore, continued their sight-seeing trip around Ponce.

The Pan-American Airways announced a message from Ponce saying the cabin of the plane filled with water and the passengers climbed out a rear hatchway, remaining on top of the ship until rescued. The top part of the plane was above water after the ship had settled on the bottom and the craft was not seriously damaged.

Crouse is in San Juan to join the German flying boat DO-X when it lands there en route from Brazil to New York.

MAINTENANCE OF WAGE LEVEL AGAIN IS URGED BY LABOR

There must be added to this large number many millions more who are working part time only and who are dependent upon these unemployed and part-time workers. The many millions of dollars which have thus been lost will never be retrieved. The amount of goods this vast army could have bought and consumed if they could have been maintained in reasonably steady employment would have prevented a continuation of the distressing situation which now exists. In the light of these economic facts it is amazing to observe the statements of some who propose a further impairment of the purchasing power of the limited number of workers now employed through the imposition of reduction in wages.

"Unemployment will continue just as long as the purchasing power of the masses of the people rests below and beneath the ability to produce manufactured goods. Obviously the consuming market which is very largely made up of the masses of the people must absorb manufactured products and manufactured commodities in a volume corresponding with the production facilities of industry. This can only be accomplished when the consuming power of this great purchasing market corresponds with the productivity and efficiency of industry.

"Low wages mean unemployment, human distress, and human suffering. The present unemployment situation will never be relieved until wages are built up so that men and women can buy and consume.

"The executive council commends very highly those employers and owners of industry who have subscribed to the high-wage philosophy enunciated by the American Federation of Labor, and who during this depression have steadfastly discharged their obligation and kept the promise made to the President of the United States to maintain the wage structure.

"On the other hand, the council condemns in a most vigorous way the action of those employers who have taken advantage of human distress and human suffering to impose and force wage reductions in spite of the protest of the workers involved, as well as those who represent them.

"It is the unflinching purpose of the American Federation of Labor to stand resolutely against reductions in wages. We are sure of our position. We are confident that in assuming this attitude we are contributing toward the highest and best interests of all the people, and through such action we are serving as best we can to bring about a restoration of normal conditions at the earliest possible moment."

Civil War Pensioner Wills $2,000 Property to U. S.

The United States attorney for the district of New Jersey has advised the Department of Justice of the probating of a will in that district providing for the donation to the United States of land and improved property of the value of $2,000.

Behind this donation of property to the Government is a story of the gratitude felt by a soldier of the Civil War toward the United States Government for payment to him for a number of years of a pension of $50 per month, from which pension funds were derived enabling him to acquire the property now conveyed to the Government.

Henry F. Powell, of Vincenttown, N. J., was a soldier in Company F, Fourteenth New Jersey Infantry, during the Civil War, and at the time of his death in January, 1916, he was receiving a Federal pension of $50 per month. Powell evidently considered that the benefit he had derived from the Government warranted some recognition after his dependents had been provided for from his estate. Powell died, leaving a widow, Mary Louise Powell, and evidently he left requests to the widow that upon her death the property in Burlington, N. J., should go to the Federal Government. On her death Mary Louise Powell, the widow, left a will giving to a niece, Emma Virginia Anderson, the lands and buildings on Laumaster street, Burlington, for the term of her natural life, and adding in the will, "If my said niece shall at any time fail to use said house as her home then this life estate shall terminate and in that event or upon the death of my said niece I direct that all the said real estate be sold by my executors or the survivor and the proceeds therefrom I give and bequeath absolutely to the Government of the United States of America."

The life tenant of the property recently died, and the executor notified the department of his purpose to sell the estate and turn the proceeds over to the Government.

CANNON-NYE FIGHT MEETS TEST TODAY

Senate Committee Ordered to Show Cause Why Probe Should Not Be Barred.

(United Press.)

A fight to defeat Bishop James Cannon's challenge of the right of the Nye Senate committee to investigate his 1928 and 1929 anti-Smith contributions and expenditures was planned yesterday by members of the committee in conference here and in New York City.

The committee has been called upon by the District of Columbia Supreme Court to appear today to show cause why a writ of prohibition asked by the bishop to prevent the committee from investigating him, should not be granted.

Bishop Cannon, who filed the suit just before departing for Europe several weeks ago, charged that the committee was carrying on an inquisition to determine if he had committed a violation of the corrupt practices act. Therein, said the bishop, the commission was usurping a right held exclusively by grand juries.

Must Hasten Inquiry.

Senator Porter H. Dale (Republican), Vermont, one of the committee members, has said that the committee must act immediately in its inquiry, if at all, because acts for which any one might be criminally liable would be outlawed sometime in September under the statute of limitations.

Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the committee and Senator Dale left hurriedly for New York last night to confer with another member, Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York. Senator Wagner is a former judge. They were expected to return with the committee's answer ready for filing when the court convenes today.

The committee has announced it planned to continue some time this month its investigation as to what happened to $65,000, which E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, contributed to Bishop Cannon in 1928 for ammunition against the election of Alfred E. Smith as President.

$17,000 Reported On.

Bishop Cannon, under the corrupt practices act, reported to the clerk of the House on the expenditure of $17,000 of these funds. He has contended that the law did not require him to report the remainder because it was spent in State political activities. He headed the Southern anti-Smith Democratic movement.

The court session today probably will mark a turning point in a two-year battle between the Southern Methodist cleric and Antisaloon League leader and the Senate. Bishop Cannon last year defied the power of the Senate lobby committee to inquire into the same transaction, and won. Last spring he and his secretary defied this committee, the members of which announced their intention of going through with the fight.

Bishop Cannon has been more active than the senators recently. In addition to the present court suit, he has filed libel suits against several persons and renewed his political activities with a statement opposing the prospective candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The bishop is not planning to return from Europe for some time, it is understood, but the committee could proceed with his bank accounts and papers, if it wins its court fight today, it is understood. His secretary, who refused to testify last spring, may also be recalled, if the committee's authority is upheld, it is believed.

The committee is operating under a Senate resolution adopted after Representative George H. Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, charged in the House that Bishop Cannon violated the corrupt practices act by failing to make a report. The Department of Justice earlier refused to act on Mr. Tinkham's charges.

Nature's Own Fireworks To Be on Display Tonight

Shooting Stars and Flying Meteors to Adorn Skies Over Washington in Annual Perseids Exhibit; Repeat Performance Set for Tomorrow.

The Perseids, one of nature's own fireworks displays, staged every year about this time without human assistance, tonight will adorn the skies over Washington with an array of shooting star and flying meteors.

If one can witness a shower of meteors with the same serenity he observes Independence Day displays, he may view the spectacle, starting about 11 o'clock tonight, officials of the United States Naval Observatory said.

Nature will repeat her performance tomorrow night, according to observation officials. After that there will be a decided falling off in the number of falling meteors, as the orbit of the earth draws apart from that of the hurtling bodies.

Anyway, that's what the astronomers say about it, and they ought to know. Every year thousands of them, professional and amateur alike, take advantage of the spectacle to add to man's knowledge of the meteors and the atmosphere surrounding this planet.

According to Isabel M. Lewis, of the Observatory, the yellowish streaks of light, which will be seen, are known as the Perseids because they come from the general direction of the constellation Perseus, which rises late in the evening in northeast skies.

These meteors, he explained, are small particles of cosmic dust which follow the same path as Tuttle's Comet, which appeared in 1862.

It was explained that the particles are mere grains of dust until they enter the earth's atmosphere, when encountered with gases surrounding this planet heats them to incandescence. For a second or so they flash brilliantly, before their ashes fall silently earthward.

Amateur astronomers are advised to seek a locality far from artificial lights to obtain the best results. Even bright moonlight will render the display less spectacular, but there will be no interference from that source here, as it is the time of the new moon.

The spectacle really began late last week, and will continue as late as Saturday, but conditions are such as to render tonight and tomorrow night the best for the amateur observer.

Man's knowledge of meteors is rather limited at present, though increased each year by the appearance of Perseids, according to Prof. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard Observatory.

He explained that meteors are dark bodies, revolving around the sun, or drawn into the solar system from outer space, which meet the earth.

It was said that meteors, traveling at 20 miles a second, begin to glow about 80 miles from the earth, burning themselves out before getting nearer than 10 or 15 miles. As many as 30 or 40 meteors may be sighted in an hour during the display.

Father O'Callaghan Dead; Led Fight to Liberate Wan

Priest, Whose Efforts Freed Chinese Accused of Murder Here, Is Victim of Indigestion Attack at Convention in Connecticut.

The Rev. Peter J. O'Callaghan, who organized the fight to save the life of Ziang Sung Wan, freed here five years ago after three trials for the murder of three members of the Chinese Educational Mission, died yesterday in a hotel at Torrington, Conn., according to word received here.

Attending the sixtieth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, of which he was president, Father O'Callaghan was stricken with acute indigestion. He was found dead in his hotel bedroom.

After Wan, a Chinese student, had been sentenced to death, the sentence reversed and two juries had disagreed on his guilt, it was Father O'Callaghan who finally secured his release.

The Catholic priest interested John W. Davis and other prominent attorneys in the case of the man whom the Wickersham Commission is now protesting was brutally treated by the police. When the charges against him were nolle prossed, Wan went to the priest's 300-acre farm at Oakland, N. J., to recover from his seven-year imprisonment.

Father O'Callaghan was 65 years old. Graduating from Harvard with a bachelor of arts degree in 1888, he pursued his theological studies at St. Thomas College, Catholic University. He received the degree of doctor of divinity at St. Mary's in 1919. It was about this time he first became interested in the involved Chinese murder case.

Ordained to the priesthood in 1893, his first assignment was assistant at the Church of St. Paul the Apostle in New York. From 1915 to 1921 he was rector of the Apostolic Mission House, Catholic University, and editor of the Missionary Magazine. He was founder and president of the Catholic Home Mission Society and of the Community of Dominican Sisters of Sick Poor. He also served as a director of the United Committee on War Temperance in the Army and Navy.

30 SLAIN AS REBELS INVADE CUBAN CITY

Capture of 25 Prisoners Is Also Asserted; Martial Law Proclaimed.

ate with the government in adoption of whatever means may be necessary to reestablish the public peace," the House of Representatives this afternoon settled to consider constitutional reforms.

Many of the members of the "orthodox conservative" group were absent. Two of them are under arrest as rebels.

(Associated Press.)

Representatives of the Cuban Nationalist party were concentrating in Washington and New York yesterday in expectation of the success they predict for the revolutionary movement in progress in Cuba.

They claimed the military establishments of at least three major provinces were in charge of Nationalist leaders, whose organization against the Machado government they said was proceeding effectively.

Sosme de la Torriente, former Ambassador to the United States, who has come to this country to head the Nationalist group here, passed through Washington yesterday and planned to return soon from New York.

He went there to confer with Dr. Fernando Ortiz, Cuban scholar and Nationalist, who has been in the United States several months, and with Dr. Mendez Capote, former vice president.

Capote arrived in New York two or three days ago. Ortiz is expected to return shortly to Washington. Octavid Seigle, secretary of the Cuban Patriotic League and member of the Nationalist party directorate, plans to meet Ortiz in New York tomorrow.

12,000 MEN IN ARMY AT CALL OF MACHADO

Country Is Divided Into Eight Military Areas; Nationalists Claim Part of Navy.

(United Press.)

In the test of steel which confronts President Gerardo Machado through the Cuban revolt, he has at his command an army listed strength of 12,000, with 300,000 potential reserves, developed along lines suggested by United States military advisers.

The Cuban navy includes two small cruisers and five gunboats, but Cuban Nationalist agents here yesterday asserted that two gunboats, the Baire and the Veinte y Cuatro de Febrero, have joined their cause. An earlier claim was made that the cruiser Cuba, 2,055 tons, and the largest Cuban naval ship, had joined the revolution, but this was admitted later to be untrue.

The Nationalists also asserted that they have been successful in distributing their leaders in strategic points in Cuba, Gen. Mario Menocal, former president, landing in Oriente Province, and Gen. Carlos Mendieta in Santa Clara Province.

President Commands Army.

Under the Cuban constitution, the president has supreme command of the army. The law also provides for obligatory military service for citizens between 18 and 45, but in peace time such service has been voluntary.

A League of Nations handbook on international armaments just issued lists the total military strength of Cuba at 578 officers, 1,037 noncommissioned officers and 10,138 men, a total of 11,753.

The country is divided into eight military areas. The army includes a general staff, eight area staffs, six cavalry regiments, four infantry battalions and three batteries of artillery, in addition to gendarmes and engineers. The plan was drafted after conferences with United States military experts a few years after Cuba was given independence of Spain following the War of 1898.

Air Corps Is Small.

The Cuban Air Corps is reported to include nine training planes, eight observation planes, two fighter planes, and two unarmed planes. Some of the Cuban pilots were trained in this country. The country's military budget in recent years has been about $12,000,000 out of the total annual expenditures of upward of $75,000,000. Cuban circles and the Justice Department were interested yesterday in the capture of six Cubans on the vessel Minerva, off New York. Coast Guard officials suggested the possibility that Cuban revolutionists are using a Canadian rum-running vessel as a contact ship. It was reported here the Minerva was captured while hovering near the Tamakoon, an alleged rum ship from Nova Scotia.

Justice Department officials, after receiving a report of the capture, said the Cubans would be subject to the usual investigation of persons found hovering in boats without proper clearance papers or manifest.

SLIPPER LONE CLEW IN SLAYING OF FOUR

bacco sack, a few coins, a wrench and other articles were seized upon as clews.

Until recent weeks "petting-party" bandits have been active in Wayne County, near the scene of the quadruple slaying, but the officers were disinclined to believe the two couples had stopped voluntarily at the roadside at that hour.

There were indications that the car driven by Wheatley had been pursued by another car, driven at high speed. Officers said tracks of what is believed to have been the assailants' car showed skid marks. Apparently it had come to a stop suddenly from high speed. The front wheels of the Wheatley car were caught in ruts at the edge of a ditch. The rear wheels were near the center of the road, as if the car had been forced to a stop.

Road Dividing Line.

The country road along which the automobile was parked when it was burned is the dividing line between Washtenaw County, of which Ann Arbor is the county seat, and Wayne County, in which is the city of Detroit. Officers of both counties and State police tonight were engaged in a man hunt.

There were many hours to account for in tracing the movements of the young couples. It was learned that they left the home of Bert Lore, Ypsilanti carpenter and father of Harry, at 7:45 Monday night. They stopped at the De Molay Lodge Hall, where the boys had expected to attend a meeting. Finding the meeting had been postponed, the boys rejoined the girls. An acquaintance saw the four enter a motion picture theater.

Car Soaked in Gasoline.

The trail ends there. The bodies were found at 5:30 a. m. by Harvey Santure, who lives on a farm half a mile from the scene of the slaying.

Officers said the bodies and the interior of the automobile had been saturated with gasoline. There were marks of a struggle along the roadside.

Officers said tonight they believed the young couples may have visited either a dance hall or one of a number of farmhouse blind pigs which, they said, are numerous in the vicinity.

Santure said he first noticed the flames about 4:30 a. m. A watch found near the ruins of the car had stopped at 5:06.

Five Cubans on Vessel Seized by Coast Guard

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Five Cubans and one American were being detained by Department of Justice operatives tonight pending an investigation of the seizure of their fishing sloop, the Minerva, off New York Harbor by the Coast Guard destroyer Wood today.

According to their attorney, Charles Martin Ansorge, no charge had been lodged against the six men. They spent the night aboard the destroyer Wood.

Ansorge said he was unable to get in touch with Assistant United States Attorney Lumbard, who presumably will handle the case, and for that reason did not interview the six men tonight. He said he was not in a position to confirm or deny reports from Washington that the Minerva was attempting to make contact with a rumrunner.

Ansorge said he understood the Cubans to be Rosendo Collazo, Aurelio Collazo, Rafael Icurraldez, Aurelio Alvarez and Luis Hernandez Rodriguez. The American's name was not known.

Senator King Urges U. S. To Keep 'Hands Off' Cuba

Salt Lake City, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Senator William H. King, of Utah, who has made a study of conditions in Cuba, declared tonight he "had expected for more than a year a Cuban revolution which would result in the overthrow of the Machado regime."

"In my opinion the Machado government has been oppressive and has deprived the Cuban people of their constitutional rights and liberties," he said.

"A successful revolution would have occurred months ago except for the fact that representations were made by Machado and others that the United States would intervene to protect Cuba's dictatorial regime. It is to be hoped that our Government will not intervene in the present situation, but will leave the Cuban people free to determine their own political affairs and to make such disposition as they see fit of the existing Machado government."

Cranking Auto in Gear Results in Leg Injury

N. L. Bailey, of Clarendon, Va., suffered a fracture of one leg yesterday after he had cranked his automobile parked in Rosslyn, while it was in gear. According to bystanders, Mr Bailey attempted to stop the machine when it started running toward a telephone pole. In jumping on the running board, his leg was caught between the fender of his car and that of another parked by its side. Mr. Bailey was treated at Georgetown Hospital and sent home.

Youth Accused by Girl Is Taken to Maryland

Clarence B. Jennings, of Washington, yesterday was taken to Rockville by Detective Sergt. Earl H. Burdine, of the Montgomery County police, on charges of criminal assault on a 16-year-old girl. He was arrested by Washington police.

Jennings is alleged to have attacked Juanita Black, 16 years old, of Cherryville, N. C., at Silver Spring, Md., Sunday night, and then to have thrown her from the car. She reported the assault to Washington police, who notified Maryland police. The man is alleged to have taken the girl for an automobile ride from the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zinn, 410 Hayes street, Clarendon, Va., with whom he was acquainted.

"INCOMUNICADO."

The latest Wickersham report to be released relating to "lawlessness in law enforcement" enters a sweeping denunciation of the employment of "third degree" methods of extorting information regarding crime. Police authorities in various parts of the country deny that the brutal treatment accorded prisoners in cases as described by the commission are in general use. That there are instances of confessions forced from innocent persons has been proved before now. That the use of harsh methods with desperate criminals is at times the only means of handling them, is also true. It is another illustration of the futility of generalizing on either side.

No one can condone the employment of strong-arm methods in connection with persons of good reputation. Sweating suspects until they admit complicity in felonies is repellent to the American sense of justice and fair play. On the other hand, the police are now dealing with new and desperate crime methods.

Bribery high and low by means of ample funds gained illegally, the introduction of false witnesses for alibis and testimony, and the intimidation of jurors and witnesses for the prosecution are but some of the means employed by the modern underworld. The police often find it next to impossible to convict men with criminal records whom they have every reason to believe guilty of specific crimes. There are instances in which third degree methods are mild in comparison with the nefarious weapons that criminals utilize without compunction in their warfare against society.

Anglo-Saxon ideas of justice do not always agree with Latin methods as laid down by the Napoleonic code, but there is one feature of Latin procedure that often has decided merit in getting at the truth. It is the system of placing a prisoner arrested for a major crime "incomunicado," or in solitary confinement for three days. Upon arrest he is isolated without allowing him to communicate with any one and is so held for the space of 72 hours. At the expiration of that period he is taken before a judge and in reply to interrogations makes his deposition.

During the three days that he has been under arrest the prisoner has had no word from the outside world. He does not know what has developed with regard to the crime for which he was arrested. He does not know what has been learned by the police, he does not know what his accomplices may have divulged, he has had no legal advice. He has little alternative, if he would avoid possible discrepancies, but to tell the truth. Such arbitrary procedure, before a man is proved guilty, is contrary to the American code, but with crime conditions as they are it might be wise to consider the merit of the "incomunicado" system as applied to prisoners charged with major crimes.

A BETTER PRISON.

In the expert opinion of unprejudiced investigators, many American prisons and correctional institutions are deserving of severe criticism. It was encouraging that Federal prisons were exempted from the indictments found by the Wickersham commission against various State institutions for insanitary conditions, overcrowding, lack of recreational or occupational facilities, and antiquated methods of discipline.

A gratifying contrast to antiquated buildings and methods is to be found in the system which will be installed in the new State Prison at Norfolk, Va. Here every effort will be made to train prisoners in useful occupations, so that on leaving the penitentiary they will be able to support themselves adequately in a trade. The eight buildings of the prison will house separately each class of prisoners. By means of this segregation the more trustworthy ones will not be subject to the same rigors of discipline as the unruly type, and those needing special psychological, mental or physical training will be provided with it.

The incorrigible or confirmed criminal will not be sent to Norfolk, but will be kept in a prison of the old type. Norfolk has no barred windows and the buildings resemble a college in architecture and conveniences. Insurance from escape is assured by the walls surrounding the grounds, which have every known device for preventing escape, as well as guards that man the wall day and night.

The entire prison is being built virtually by convict labor alone. The first building, which has been completed, is occupied by 150 of the highest rated prisoners. Regular work, coupled with adequate living conditions, has developed in these men a satisfaction with normal living and a capacity for worthy citizenship that would have been impossible in the old prisons which bred revenge and antisocial tendencies in their inmates.

It is hoped by prison authorities that it will not be long before indeterminate sentences will be imposed upon offenders. It will be the duty of the prisons to study each individual and prescribe for him the course suitable for his reclamation. When he is fit to return to society he will be released, but if he is beyond reform he will be permanently detained in an institution for mental or criminal defectives.

FOREIGN LOANS IN DANGER.

Trade figures for the first six months of this year indicate a decrease of almost 50 per cent in business transacted between this country and South America, as compared with last year for the same months. This sudden decline has proven a keen disappointment to commerce officials, whose efforts in building an enormous trade with the southern continent has made fine progress up to 1929.

For the six months ending July 1 United States firms had sent $94,984,000 worth of goods to South America and purchased $172,390,000 worth. During the first six months of last year exports to these countries totaled $185,243,000 and imports from them amounted to $261,393,000. These figures show American imports from the south to be but slightly higher in the degree of decrease than the exports.

This decline is one symptom of the business depression throughout Latin America, which in turn has done much to accelerate political unrest. Not unlike Americans, the people of those republics have attached the blame for business depression to the heads of government, but quite unlike Americans, they have thought in some countries they could remedy their finances through revolution. This has accentuated the general crisis, and has led Washington officials to fear that several countries will incur additional defaults in interest due New York banks. Hundreds of millions of dollars borrowed from American banks are now in jeopardy.

JAPAN IN MANCHURIA.

In company with Europe the Far East is not lacking its share of difficulties over minorities. So serious has the situation become in Manchuria that Japan is arranging an important conference to be held in Tokyo shortly to consider the entire question of Korean-Japanese relations with the Chinese. The meeting has little connection with the reported threat of Nanking authorities to wage war upon Japan. That threat was understood to be designed primarily to effect a consolidation of Chinese support for the Nationalist government and particularly to effect a reconciliation with the Canton rebels. The Tokyo gathering is called to consider the growing racial troubles in Manchuria.

The present tense situation was precipitated by the riots in Korea last month, in which 100 Chinese were slain in retaliation for many alleged abuses of Korean residents of Manchuria. Koreans, since the annexation of the country in 1910, have, of course, been Japanese subjects, and as such are entitled to protection. Notwithstanding the usual diplomatic expressions of regret, promises of punishment and financial indemnities on the part of Japan with regard to the Korean massacre, the incident has fanned a growing enmity in Manchuria between the two races. Serious disputes have arisen over land tenures.

These disputes bring up the whole question of Japan's vital interest in Manchuria. Her actual rights there date from the Russo-Japanese War, when Japan took over the Russian lease to the southern part of the Liaotung Peninsula, where are located the Port Arthur and the nearby ice-free port of Dairen. Most important, also, it is the southern terminus of the Japanese-built South Manchurian Railroad, which connects with the Peking and Korean lines at Mukden and with the Trans-Siberian Railroad.

With the growing nationalist sentiment in China and the desire to be rid of all foreign influence, as evidenced by the decision to abolish extraterritorial rights, Japan has not escaped popular resentment. There are now upward of a million Koreans in Manchuria, and the Chinese suspect that their presence is being used to further plans for extending Japanese influence in China. Japanese officials, on the other hand, point to evidences of abuse of Koreans by Chinese authorities in Manchuria which appear to be deliberate attempts to foment trouble. Japan has fought two successful wars over Manchuria. There is no question that the government would be strongly backed by popular sentiment if it should be necessary to support Japan's rights there again by force of arms.

The policy of Foreign Minister Shidehara has been one of cooperation with the Chinese in Manchuria and the avoidance of open conflicts. Premier Wakatsuki is believed to favor a firmer policy for Manchuria, which seems to be borne out by the recent decision to maintain a permanent division there and to increase the garrison of Japanese troops in Korea from two to three divisions.

With all of China's manifold troubles—civil war, the menace of red armies, famine and floods—it would seem to be the better part of valor to avoid a clash with Japan in connection with territorial leases or the private rights of Koreans.

FORDLANDIA, BRAZIL.

Modern household conveniences in the heart of the Brazilian jungle are indeed an innovation. Electricity and running water in native homes were miracles undreamed of before Henry Ford went to the tropics to develop his own source of rubber supply. Now, after nearly three years of effort, two great plantations are under way with every prospect of being profitable enterprises. It is estimated that $8,000,000 has already been invested in the project, so it is evident that the business is not for any one to enter into lightly.

The rubber trees that are being planted on the Ford plantations in the Amazon Valley are brought from a distant section that is recognized in the Para market as producing the finest and most elastic rubber in the entire region. Vast clearings of virgin forest have been completed and large acreage planted. At present 1,500 native workers are employed, and this force will be largely augmented in the fall as the rains begin and planting is again under way.

The plantations in themselves are not nearly so marvelous to the natives as the typical North American village that has been constructed in the Brazilian hinterland. Fordlandia, an up-to-date town with all modern comforts, has been created in a wilderness that never had seen anything more pretentious than a thatched hut. Water is supplied under pressure after it has been thoroughly filtered to remove dangers of fever infection, and electric light illumines bungalows in a region where such inventions are proof of the white man's magic.

The Ford plans call for the construction of another model village, the scheme calling for a main square facing the river, with a church, school, hotel, shops and a moving picture hall, with streets and squares laid out in regular fashion. The collective system of feeding laborers, now in force, is expected to give way to a concession system that will provide independent baker, butcher, fish and vegetable shops, as well as such amenities as barbers and dentists. Altogether it is quite evident that Mr. Ford not only intends to cultivate rubber but the rubber gatherers as well.

These ocean-going airplanes are roaring so that one can not hear the cannonading in Cuba, where 135 so-called laborers are engaged in the annual revolution.

L'ENFANT STILL LIVES

By WILLIAM E. BRIGHAM, in the Boston Transcript.

Persons who have entertained the idea that the plans of Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the "designer" of the Federal City, as George Washington always called it, were an assortment of half-finished sketches of little practical value until developed by later engineers, may be surprised to learn that in the studies of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission it is frequently discovered that wherever departure has been made from the original L'Enfant design, the symmetry of developments now proposed is seriously interfered with at several points. These disclosures are brought out by Charles W. Eliot 2d, director of planning of the commission just named, and while it is not the purpose of this article to emphasize them, as they are incidental, it is noteworthy that the L'Enfant plan, as a whole and in many of its details, is still held in the highest respect.

Mr. Eliot, in the third volume of the American Civic Annual, just published, presents a picture of the ideal Washington, according to L'Enfant, the McMillan Commission of 1901 and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which shows a finished National Capital without rival on the face of the earth, in point of beauty and comprehensive arrangement. Much of this project already has been accomplished, although enough is left to complete to keep the city planners and their architects busy for the next 50 years. Fortunately, however, popular interest in the advantages of advance planning has been so stimulated in recent years that it is safe to prophesy that more real progress in making Washington what it ought to be will be accomplished in any of the coming decades than in all the years that have gone before since the founding of the Government.

The features which already have made Washington more or less magnificent, Mr. Eliot explains, are concentrated along two lines, which have been the controlling axes of the great plan of Washington. One of these lines runs east and west, and is already marked by the Capitol, Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial. The other great line runs north and south, along Sixteenth street, through the White House and down the 10-mile straight course of the Potomac River to Mount Vernon. L'Enfant drew these lines, and they remain the basis of all future action. Departing somewhat from the text of Mr. Eliot, it will be recalled that the Capitol faces east, and it was supposed by the early promoters that the Federal City would grow in that direction. It stubbornly refused to do so, however, but it is of interest to learn that, according to the individual ideas of Mr. Eliot, a development might be contemplated in that direction which will intrigue the interest of the citizens of every State in the Union. It is contemplated that, coming across the beautiful Anacostia hills from Annapolis, on the line of the east-west axis and about at a point where the remaining earthworks of the old Civil War Fort Chaplin commands a wonderful view of the city clear to Arlington, a plaza or circle should be arranged, where the Fort Drive, taking in all the old forts about the city—at one of them Lincoln stood under fire—should make its start. This, as Mr. Eliot sees it, would constitute the "entrance" to Washington from that point; the other, to be marked by monuments, typifying the State and the District, and a small circular park containing a boundary stone, would be at the extremity of Sixteenth street, and be known as the North Portal.

The plan for the beautification of the territory east of the Capitol is exceptionally ambitious. It includes, along the Anacostia flats, a circus ground or site for permanent exposition buildings; two bridges, to cross the Eastern Branch of the Potomac exactly where L'Enfant would have located them; on the Washington side, a monumental entrance, to be flanked on either hand by a sylvan theater and a stadium, to be used for Army and Navy, Olympic and other games. The present East Capitol street will be transformed into an "Avenue of the States," with Lincoln Park adorned with thirteen State buildings representing the thirteen original colonies, and other State buildings strewn along the way; and all west of the Capitol, at its base, would be made into a plaza, with the Grant Monument in its center. The plan is not fantastic. The National Botanic Garden even now is being wiped out, and it is proposed to run a straight vista from the Capitol to the Washington Monument.

What would happen to a cub reporter if he turned in reports that brought as many complaints of inaccuracies as are recorded against certain commission findings is another sad story.

RESERVE OFFICERS VS. PACIFISM.

Graduates of the reserve officers' training camps are planning to form an alumni organization with the object of making their influence effective for the protection and advancement of national defense and other patriotic purposes, says the Chicago Tribune. The project is admirable and we hope will be pursued vigorously. Pacifism and its allied pseudo-internationalism is highly organized and exercises an influence upon our Government out of all proportion to the extent of their adherents in the nation. Our magazines and even our newspapers are full of pacifist theories and assumptions. There is persistent resistance to reasonable measures of preparedness, including the effort to abolish military training in the schools and colleges. This influence should be challenged and resisted and none is better fitted to counteract its effects than the young citizen of the reserve. We should like to see a similar association of graduates of the citizens' training camps, or, probably better still, the extension of the reserve officers' project to include them.

When Two Streams Seek a Common Level, They Always Move Down Hill

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONCE upon a time a lonely hawk, cruising above a peaceful valley in search of dinner or adventure, spied a little brown hen in a barnyard.

"She's an attractive little creature," mused the hawk. "How pleasant it would be to soar among the clouds with her."

So the hawk dropped down from the air and came to rest on a rail fence and began his wooing.

He talked a great deal concerning the delights of racing with the clouds and hunting game on the wing, and his eloquence pleased him so well that he scarcely noticed the little hen's silence.

"Poor little thing!" he thought. "She's never had a chance. Imagine being cooped up here in this barnyard among the cows and pigs and bad smells! No wonder her conversation is limited. This environment would make anybody dull. How jolly it will be to teach her the art of flying and broaden her horizon."

The hawk, you will observe, had the heart of a philanthropist. Or maybe he was just vain. In any case, he pictured himself as playing fairy prince to a Cinderella and having a lot of fun watching her blossom out in a better environment.

"How grateful she will be!" he said to himself.

So they were married, to the utter astonishment of the barnyard folk, and the great adventure began.

"She's a lucky little hen," said the chickens in the barnyard, "to have a hawk for a husband. He's a famous flier and lives on the fat of the land. We must be more polite to her."

After a few days the hawk began to hunger for rabbit meat and suggested a hunt.

"Rabbit meat!" cried the little brown hen. "Don't be silly. When people are hungry, they eat corn and worms. And anyway—I might as well tell you now—I couldn't fly over the barn to save my life."

"Corn and worms," growled the hawk. "Such food is for——" He stopped. He meant to say it was fit only for barnyard people, but he was too tactful. After all, it would take time to make his mate a real hawk.

Some months later a stranger passing the barnyard saw the little brown hen strutting before her sisters. Hawk feathers were fastened to her wings. She was too well-fed to fly up on a roost, but she carried her head with the high proud air peculiar to hawks.

"Where is your husband?" asked the stranger.

"There under the corn-crib," said the little brown hen. "The poor boy works so hard. His wing feathers are gone and his claws worn down to a nub. He is scratching up some worms for my dinner."

J. Ham. Lewis as a Prophet.

Brooklyn Eagle.

If the Democratic party wants a Protestant layman, a consistent wet and a man who has carried his State for governor, Arthur Harry Moore fills the bill. He is a member of the board of foreign missions of the Reformed Church of America. On January 11, 1927, as governor of New Jersey, he sent a message demanding the repeal of the State dry enforcement act. Incidentally, he is a big man in the Boy Scout movement, originator of the "marbles championships for boys," and it is a matter of record that in 1925 he polled a plurality over Arthur Whitney of 40,243 for the governorship.

Yet we can fancy that Frank Hague chuckles a bit when J. Hamilton Lewis, senator from Illinois, says "former Gov. Moore of New Jersey is a very likely dark horse and a strong competitor for the Democratic nomination for President next year, especially in the event that he should be elected governor at the election this year." Mr. Hague may have decided to nominate Moore, but he hasn't made his intention public up to date. Hague is a practical politician. He does not need to ask himself why Lewis would prefer to have New Jersey held for Moore rather than to have it go, as it might normally, to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

American Legion Warned.

Baltimore Sun.

Representative Royal C. Johnson's speech, warning the American Legion against any further effort to enlarge the benefits already conferred upon World War veterans by the Federal Government, derives its chief significance from the circumstances in which it is delivered.

Mr. Johnson has made such speeches before. Other far-sighted men in the two houses of Congress have made them. But all such warnings have fallen on deaf congressional ears, for the reason that ten years of prosperity had produced such an astounding succession of Federal surpluses that politically minded congressman were under no compulsion to take account of the Treasury situation in voting on veterans' legislation. Feeling that the resources of the Federal Government were inexhaustible, they took account of nothing but the soldier vote and acted with all possible generosity.

The only possible way to reduce taxes is to eliminate the necessity for taxes. That is to say that just so long as the public demands increased improvements, just so long taxes will continue on the upgrade. The fact is, the people of this country are living too fast, a habit acquired during the late war. The thing to do is to cut out the habit.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Exaggeration of Depression and Unemployment Situation by Pessimists and Political Alarmists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I very much doubt whether the state of the country is as bad as the questionable statistics of unemployment and the lamentations of some would-be authoritative observers seem to make it.

So far as business is concerned conditions are not more unsatisfactory than they often have been. The cycle, having passed its customary point of depression, will in the natural course of events swing into an era of prosperity which, free finally from war-time complications, ought to be prolonged for many generations to come.

In regard to distress among the poor I do not think the situation will in any event justify the gloomy outlook of pessimists and political alarmists.

The public-minded citizen no longer muddles over the problem of poverty in terms of the past. The general public is today more sensitive to human suffering than it was formerly. The excuse that the poor we have always with us is not quite as satisfactory in regard to neglected destitution as it once was in periods of economic distress.

Such being the temper of the public mind, the seriousness of conditions during the coming winter is undoubtedly exaggerated as compared with former years. Nevertheless, the charitable agencies of the country will be faced by a more than usual strain on their resources. But their work has been so expanded and methodized in recent years that they will have little difficulty in meeting the emergency, such as it is.

The idea that a Federal dole is advisable is to me unthinkable. It smacks of defeatism so far as the American ideal is concerned. It loses sight of the fact that the self-reliance of the States and the citizens of the States is absolutely necessary to the healthy functioning of the Federal Government.

CHAS. MELTON.

Industry Is Advised to Maintain Wages So That People Can Keep on Buying; Five-Day Week and Six-Hour Day Favored.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Wage cuts bring about lower purchasing power. Unemployment brings about less purchasing power. The managers of industry are digging the grave of industry by their false methods. If industry wishes to sell its products, it must have buyers. What the country needs are business managers who can find a way to keep up the buying power of the nation, and thus secure for industry good prices, steady production and good dividends. This can be accomplished by employing 100 per cent of the working population five days a week, and six-hour days. We need managers with brains who can run industry at 100 per cent capacity. Methods used 50 years ago will not suffice for 1931. We are not in the age of candles, horse and buggies and shacks. The people have been educated to luxuries. In this age of buying on the installment plan, it is dangerous to lay off thousands of men, as it stops their payments on automobiles, homes, radios and all the other luxuries they are accustomed to.

Legislators Are Urged to Solicit Public Opinion on Major Questions Before Them and to Bow to the Popular Will.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While I do not wish to appear unduly critical, still I would like to advance the thought that our honored legislative body at Washington follow the program of the Massachusetts elective representatives in ascertaining the opinions of the voters on major legislative problems, at least during the interim of the session. Representation of the people should become an established fact.

It is no doubt true that the average voter is not familiar with procedure or details of legislative matters, but there are a sufficient number, from whom an expression of opinion would permit a more reasonable consideration of public questions.

With all due respect to our honored legislators, who are able, conscientious and sincere of purpose, I do believe that the thought of universally soliciting the opinions of the qualified voters on public questions, have never been seriously considered, or, if it has been, the opinions have not always been respected or applied.

THE SPOILER.

There's an old man who dropped
All the working tools and stopped
Doing every useful task,
In his chair he'll sit and bask
All the pleasant mornings through.
Or he'll walk an hour or two
When the children of the street
Rush to follow at his feet,
For they know that soon he'll stop
At the nearest candy shop.

Once I put it to him straight:
"I believe you lie in wait
For our youngsters to appear,
For you're always lurking near;
And the sweets which we deny
They've discovered you will buy.
I don't like to make a fuss
But you're spoiling them for us."
Then he smiled and said: "That's true,
But I've nothing else to do.

"It were wrong, of course, for you
Such a reckless thing to do,
But it's all that's left for me,
Who have grown so old to be.
Now my sun is nearly set;
It's the only fun I get!"
So I grinned and said to him:
"Keep your last remaining whim.
If I live as long as you
I shall spoil the children, too."

ATLANTIC CITY ASKS REPUBLICAN SESSION

Fess Tells Delegation Resort Will Be Considered for 1932 Convention.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Fess, of the Republican national committee, told Gov. Larson of New Jersey and a delegation of State party leaders yesterday that Atlantic City would be among the places considered for the 1932 Republican national convention.

A formal invitation to the national committee to designate the shore resort as the party's convention city was made by the governor and the delegation, which included former Senator Baird, Republican gubernatorial candidate; Senator Kean, Representatives Bacharach and Eaton, national committeemen and members of the Atlantic City Hotel Men's Association.

A campaign fund of $150,000 to pay convention expenses was promised by Mayor Harry Bacharach, who urged that money be made only a partial consideration, and that the convention be kept off the auction block.

"We come before you today as a committee representing the Republican citizenship of New Jersey," Representative Bacharach said, "formally to present to you, as chairman of the Republican national committee an invitation from the State of New Jersey to the Republican national committee to hold its 1932 convention in Atlantic City."

Bacharach said with the new auditorium of 41,000 capacity, Atlantic City was the best equipped convention site in the country. He noted that Senator Fess could not commit the Republican national committee, which will meet either next December or January to select a convention city. Already overtures have been made by San Francisco and Los Angeles interests.

Bacharach said he felt certain that if Atlantic City was selected a "full attendance of the delegates and alternates will be assured, and to my mind this is of such vital importance to getting the campaign under way in the right direction."

Lincoln C. Dickey, general manager of the auditorium, which cost $15,000,000 and is the largest in the world, described the advantages of the structure. Other speakers were Gov. Larson and Mayor Bacharach, who described the hotel and other accommodations and advantages of the city.

Among other New Jersey committee members were former Senator David Baird, jr., of Camden; E. Bertram Mott, of Morristown, chairman of the State Republican committee; D. E. Pomeroy, of Englewood, a Republican national committeeman, and T. M. McCarter, of Newark, former New Jersey attorney general.

Nautilus Going North Again After Difficulty

Tromso, Norway, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Sir Hubert Wilkins' Polar Submarine Nautilus was headed northward toward Spitzbergen again tonight after several hours of drifting helplessly in the Arctic Seas.

At one time while she was adrift the submarine seemed in considerable peril. She had no anchor suitable for use in these waters and when trouble developed, supposedly in her engines, she was threatened with being driven ashore by the strong current.

SIGHTSEEING RULES PLANNED BY BOARD

Public Utilities Commission Completes Study of Traffic Problem.

A thorough investigation into the operation of sightseeing buses in the District has just been completed by the Public Utilities Commission with the view of assuming the control, which now rests temporarily with the District Commissioners.

While no regulations have yet been drafted, stringent rules covering parking, routes and length and weight of these motor vehicles will be adopted soon, it is expected. Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday said that the utilities body has ample authority to draft such regulations, though approval of the Joint Traffic Board will probably be necessary.

The Police Department, under supervision of the District Commissioners, has heretofore issued parking permits and controlled the regulation of the sightseeing vehicles. The corporation counsel some time ago gave an opinion that the Commissioners had the right to assume such authority pending adoption of regulations by the utilities body.

Only with adoption of the traffic act, which became effective July 1, did the commission clearly establish its right to control interstate buses. Following a public hearing, rules governing their operation were adopted, but these did not apply to sightseeing buses.

One of the major purposes of the bus order was to keep them out of the congested area so that the movement of traffic might be facilitated. While it is doubtful that the sightseeing buses will be kept out, the regulations probably will restrict their operation on crowded streets.

Harleigh H. Hartman, acting chairman of the commission, yesterday issued a warning to all other bus operators that they must have reports on the routes and scheduled of their vehicles in the commission offices by the end of this week, under the bus order. Although there are more than a score of these companies, only a few of the required reports have been submitted.

Hard Times Loom For Glamis Castle

Glamis, Scotland, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A sense of foreboding is settling upon this Forfarshire village in northeast Scotland.

Announcement by the Earl of Strathmore, father-in-law of King George's second son, the Duke of York, that he may have to abandon residence of Glamis Castle because of high taxes, has cast a somber spell upon the retainers of the estate.

The big stone pile, mistakenly selected by Shakespeare as the scene of the legend of Macbeth, has been the seat of the family since the early part of the sixteenth century. Its high square tower, with walls fifteen feet thick, is even older. It was built some time after the days of Macbeth, Thane of Cawder, who died in 1057.

MAN FLOATING ALL NIGHT SAVES SELF

Thomas O'Donnell Takes to Inflated Cushion When Motorboat Sinks.

After spending Monday night floating around on the Potomac River on an inflated cushion, while two submarines, two airplanes, a revenue cutter, and fishing boats searched for him, Thomas O'Donnell, proprietor of the Sea Food Grill on E street near Twelfth street, felt faint and dazed yesterday morning when he was washed up on the shore at Piney Point, Md., as day was breaking.

The boat in which Mr. O'Donnell and two companions, James F. Edwards, real estate broker, and a mechanic known as "Whitey," left early Monday evening sprang a leak about 8 o'clock and Mr. O'Donnell, who could not swim, remained in the rapidly sinking motor boat while Mr. Edwards and "Whitey" swam ashore for help. It took the two men longer than they thought to reach shore and when they did they were exhausted and sore from sea nettle bites after four hours in the water. Meanwhile the boat had floundered and Mr. O'Donnell had taken to the water with an air-filled cushion.

George Harris, manager of the Belvedere Plantation on the Potomac, where Mr. Edwards and "Whitey" ultimately arrived, called Leonardstown for boats to search for the missing Mr. O'Donnell. From Colonial Beach, where Mr. Harris also called, the call was relayed to the Indianhead Proving Grounds, whence came the submarines, airplanes and revenue cutter.

After Mr. O'Donnell was washed ashore at Piney Point, he made his way to a small country store from which he was taken to Tolson's Hotel at the Point, where word had already been received of the search. A telephone to the plantation relieved all worries and the searchers were notified.

Mrs. O'Donnell and Mrs. Edwards were at the plantation when Mr. O'Donnell was conveyed there yesterday morning.

Urgent Aid Calls Are Sent in Flood

100 Families Marooned in Mexico; Tampico Area Inundated.

Tampico, Mexico, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—While Tampico continued to fight its own flood problem today, urgent calls for aid were streaming in from flooded inland regions along the Panuco, Tamesi and Tempoal Rivers. Food supplies and clothing were sent in launches to the affected districts.

A report from Miravegas, in the State of Vera Cruz, said 100 families were marooned on a small island formed by the flood and that it was feared they would perish because the island was only 3 feet above water and the flood was rising rapidly.

A 10-mile stretch between the Panuco River and Tiger Laguna in Vera Cruz, was covered with water, submerging several villages, whose inhabitants fled. Hundreds of families were evacuated from low-lying districts in Tampico.

Roumanian Bank Closes Its Doors

Withdrawal of Credits by Germans Is Said to Be Cause of Trouble.

Bucharest, Roumania, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Bank of Berkowitz failed to open its doors today and police had to clear the streets of queues of anxious depositors.

The closing of this bank, after the recent failure of the Banca Generala a Tarii Romanesti, was considered politically important, for both were closely connected with the Liberal party, which formerly controlled the nation's finance.

The reason for the bank's difficulties was said to be the withdrawal of German credits during the recent crisis, but the immediate cause was believed to be the arrival yesterday of Minister of Finance Argetoianu for a meeting of the National Bank, in which the Berkowitz Bank had important holdings.

Trade by Belgium in Jail Made Products Is Charged

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Information indicating that convict-made goods were being exported from Belgium to the United States was forwarded today to the Treasury Department by James M. Hepbron, director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission.

Detailed information was asked after the publication of newspaper articles describing Mr. Hepbron's observations on a tour last month.

"Under a special authorization from the minister of justice of Belgium, I was given permission to visit certain Belgan prisons," Mr. Hepbron wrote today.

"I was interested primarily in their colony for vagrants, at Merxplas, at the same place where they have one of their various penal and correctional institutions. In the contract shop where fiber rugs were being manufactured there were large bales, apparently ready for shipment, which were marked 'United States.'

"I asked the doctor in charge of the bureau of anthropology, who was acting as my interpreter and guide, if these goods were being exported and he advised me that they were.

"Later, when I visited the shop in which buttons were manufactured, also under contract, I asked if these goods, too, were being exported to the United States, and I was told they were."

Mr. Hepbron explained that the information came to him through an interpreter, but he said the latter had lived four years in the United States and studied at an American university.

"There seemed to be no secret whatever about the fact that they were exporting goods manufactured in the shops at Merxplas," Mr. Hepbron said, "and indeed I judge they were ignorant of the fact, as I was, that the tariff act of 1930 prohibited the importation of such goods."

He said there was a possibility Belgians did not consider confinement in the colony for vagrants as penal in character, but that the labor is enforced and in some instances is sold under contract to private industry.

(Associated Press.)

Charges by James M. Hepbron, Director of the Criminal Justice Commission, of Baltimore, that prison-made goods are being shipped from Belgium to the United States will be investigated by the Customs Bureau.

Hepbron, upon his return from Belgium last week, said he saw door mats and pearl buttons manufactured in Belgium prisons ready for shipment to the United States. His statement was called to the attention of Commissioner Eple, of the Customs Bureau, who at once wrote Hepbron asking for more details.

The commissioner advised Hepbron that he would send an agent to confer with him if he could supply more definite details of the alleged violation of the customs law.

Importation of goods made in whole or in part by convict labor is prohibited. If Hepbron's information warrants, European agents of the Customs Bureau will be assigned to inquire into the situation in Belgium.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF August 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10:40 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 7:05 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

There is a danger of accidents on August 12, according to the astrological signs, but otherwise the day promises to be a good and fruitful one, with quite unexpected and fortunate developments in business, as well as many pleasant surprises in private life. An excellent day for marriage.

A child born on this August 12 will be methodical and tidy in its habits, calm in times of crisis, considerate of and for others, cheerful and optimistic. Its horoscop indicates a very happy life and a contented one, with a considerable degree of material success assured it during adulthood.

You, if born on August 12, are always too ready to be swayed by the advice and criticism of others. You will never amount to anything until you are captain of your own soul and act on your own initiative and follow your own hunches. Take counsel with yourself rather than with others. You are endowed with a high grade of intelligence. You have great concentrative ability. Your mind is alert and keen. You, however, lack mental courage, and seem always afraid of giving active expression to your own convictions. It is all very well to have a judicial mind, but, in your case, this attitude too often ends in a Scotch verdict of "not proven," rather than in a direct one of "Guilty" or "Not Guilty."

You are a great home-body, and are prone to neglect other and important interests for the amenities of your own fireside. As a mate, you are affectionate and loyal, although jealousy enters too much into your "make-up." You are too suspicious for your own good and your peace of mind.

Your horoscope says that not until late in life will you reap the reward of your many abilities. Not until then will you have learned the lesson to mark out a line and steer true to this course.

Aart Interprets the Mode

New York, August 11.

NOW is the time when we, in America, are coming to the crest of our summer season, with gay sports events to please all tastes, from the point of view of amusement, and with attendant costumes to please the eye of wearer and beholder alike! The international tennis tournaments will soon be held at Seabright and Forest Hills, there are any number of golf tournaments in progress at all the smart country clubs in the eastern part of the country, and the swimming meets and water polo teams are beginning to enter into our sports program in an exciting way. 'N', of course, we won't forget the races at Saratoga! Nor will we forget the opportunities these sports events will give us for exquisite dressing and much pleasure in watching the costumes of others.

The participants in all these sports wear clothes pretty much the same as they have worn during the summer months. But among the spectators the difference will be interestingly apparent—that is, at the water events and at Saratoga. There the new autumn clothes will be worn exclusively—funny, isn't it, how some of the events call for so much more chic than the others? At the tennis and golf tournaments there will be a scattering of new fashions, but still plenty of the lovely summer frocks and ensembles to which we have become accustomed. But at the water sports and Saratoga, attended by the smartest women in this country, any of this season's clothes would slink away in shame! Not that they aren't perfectly lovely—they simply won't be suitable. But the new hats, the new dresses, the new light or brilliantly colored fall coats will be there in all their glory—'n' what a treat they will make for the eyes of this fashion cricket who loves to see the new things "in action," as it were!

• • • •

A dressy dress, a smart dress, and a dress that's absolutely wearable for ever 'n' ever so many occasions! And I'm not talking about three dresses, either—I'm talking about the one I have sketched for you today, from Mirande, which combines the virtues and beauties of three frocks at least in its one lovely self. This frock is of navy blue wool crepe, with vestee and puffed and ruffled collars and cuffs of ecru lace. And one of the chief reasons for this frock's distinction is the tiny tucked crosses sprinkled over the entire blue wool crepe surface.

• • • •

Blue is so becoming to many women, and lace adds so gracious a touch—the combination of both of these features would be a clever move on your part in your autumn wardrobe!

• • • •

'N' you just can't be too careful about your afternoon accessories! There's no doubt, is there, about either the chic or the charm of the bag and glove set sketched today? These are of white, deep rose and black glace kid, and the bag has a composition frame in these three colors.

• • • •

You can so be the latest Second Empire hat wearer in the world if you want to be! 'N' you don't have to be a millionaire either—though you might think so if you price some of these adorable hats in the smart shops. Because, you know, there is just some little trick that makes them different from all other hats, 'n' your own Dah-ray didn't rest until she found out what that trick was. 'N' when she did find out, she hurried up and made scatey-eight new hats for herself, and then sat down and wrote the leaflet for this week, which is awaiting your stamped, self-addressed envelope at the Dare department of The Washington Post. And believe me, you'll have a hard time convincing people you're not a millionaire when you appear in the romantic and adorable hat I tell you how to make!

FRANCES M'DONALD

The Crossroads.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I wonder if you will censure me as I have always censured others of those who found themselves in the predicament in which I now stand. Whatever your attitude, I feel I must have your advice, for my life is in a whirl about me. I am not myself, can not do justice to my home or loved ones. I am 40, mother of an 18-year-old son and 16-year-old daughter, of whom I am rightly proud. They worship me and so does their father, two years my senior. But there is now another man. I did not seek this. It came upon me. I have all my life been the most reserved and dignified sort. I married my husband because he was that sort, too. We have been heavenly happy in our marriage—but it was mostly joy in two lovely children, pride in our position in the community, which we have built up with the years. Our lives were orderly, enjoyable and seemingly satisfying for all these twenty years.

Then just one year ago, the children and I went away for the summer—as we had for years. The two months were almost at an end when one morning I walked out into the hotel veranda—and straight into the arms of the man. He was just arriving. We laughed at our collision. I directed him to the dining room—and forgot him. When I returned from my walk he was on the veranda, and announced that he was remaining. He still meant nothing to me. I told my daughter there was a new man in the house, and spent the day packing some of our things. So it was not even love at first sight—except with him. He, of course, found out at once that I was married, with grown children. "The wonder of it" was his comment.

For two weeks he literally never took his eyes from my face. I avoided him. But in the evenings when every one was dancing I danced with him, as I did with others. He told me all about himself, and that he had never before loved a woman. Since then I have met his family. Fine people, but more sophisticated than myself. They frankly discuss our situation and seem to consider it calmly—as an every-day occurrence in life. They see no problem in it at all. Just a question of divorce if I care as he does or a break if I can not care. To me it is a terrible thing. My husband, I look at him reading his paper after dinner. So sure of his well-ordered life, his future. And I sitting 3 feet away planning to crash into all that peace with a divorce. It has me sick.

Now as for the man. He is 31. A real estate expert with a firm of developers. Well to do. Owns property, fine car, lives at home. Is a rugged, boyish, light-hearted, go-getter type, who sees no obstacle to our happiness. Marriage to him is a necessary formality, to be dispensed with when the two no longer care to live together. Quick tempered, inclined to deliberately hurt when angry. Generous with money and quite spoiled. But handsome, thrilling and delightful. I adore him. Hate to be separated from him, yet hate each meeting. Dread the upsetting experience of our futile hour together, which so often means only quarrel and misunderstanding. He is insistent upon a decision one way or the other. Argues that I have never really loved or lived, and that I owe it to myself to love before I die, and scoffs at what he calls the superstition that binds me to my husband.

What should I do? Do I love him? Sometimes he seems no more than a dream. Is he right in saying I simply married too soon? Is it mere superstition that holds be to my marriage? Can you help me back to reason?

JUST FORTY.

Girl, what has happened to you has happened to many a woman before you. Wake up! You have merely had a summer flirtation. Forget the whole affair. Most women would have forgotten it by the time the train had left him waving the Panama on the platform. Tell the boy to go sell his real estate. You are a lot more than a necessary formality to your husband! And you are the one who has known love and all that it means. Send the boy packing!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

LUCK AT BRIDGE.

TO people of both low and high degree it would seem that luck had been quite liberal in scattering her bounty if you were born to both wealth and title. Luck, however, is a fickle jade and scatters her favors not impartially but with the utmost partiality. One of the most fruitful sources of discussion at the Bridge table is the question of how much of an element luck is in the play of the game. On the one side there are those who assert that in the long run it evens up, while those who take the other view of it, cite case after case of seemingly strong players who never win. Some of them profit by becoming even more expert and perhaps with inferior cards can snap their fingers at the fickle jade.

Take the case of Lady Danvers (the name is fictitious), whose continuous luck at the Contract table is a matter of constant surprise to her friends. The story comes to me from an English Bridge authority. Lady Danvers loves to play for rather high stakes at the London Bridge clubs and though only an indifferent player, almost invariably arises from the table a large winner. Perhaps the unusual result obtained on the hand below may explain her success and the factor luck plays in it.

Both sides are vulnerable. East Dealer.

	♠ 8 7 2 ♥ 10 3 2 ♦ — — ♣ A Q J 10 9 8 5
♠ Q ♥ J 8 7 6 5 4 ♦ J 3 2 ♣ 4 3 2	N W E S	♠ A 3 ♥ A Q 9 ♦ A K 9 8 7 ♣ K 7 6

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
2NT(1)	3♠(2)	Pass	4♣(3)
Dbl.	6♠(4)	Pass	Pass
Dbl.(5)

1—East's bids of two notrump is, of course, entirely unsound from the standpoint of modern bidding. The correct Opening bid was one diamond.
2—South's bid certainly denotes courage. Its one excuse is the strong argument of distribution.
3—With 6 sure tricks, if clubs are trump and holding three small spades, North's bid can not be seriously criticized.
4—Showing the influence of optimism and an abiding faith in luck's continued favor.
5—East certainly can not be criticized for the Double of the Slam contract. With three Aces, two Kings and one Queen, defeat seems assured. In the taking-tricks is also numbered the Ace of trumps.

South was especially fortunate in West's choice of an Opening lead. Influenced, no doubt, by East's double of four clubs, West with a trickless hand chose to open that suit. The Ace went up in the Dummy and South discarded the heart King, then led the Queen of clubs which East refused to cover. Another round of clubs dropped the King, South trumped and now daringly led the King of spades. The Queen fell from the West hand and East won with the Ace. East now lay down the King of diamonds, but it was too late. North trumped, led the eight of spades, picking up East's trey and discarded the four losing diamonds on the established clubs. As the score six spades doubled for Slam, game and rubber was being jotted down, Lady Danvers turned to her partner and said:

"I was sorry to take you out on your club bid, partner, but I had a practically a safe Small Slam in spades."

Of course, her optimism as to the safety of her Slam was hardly justified. A lead of any other suit must result in asset of very considerable proportions, dependable on the line of play chosen by her adversaries.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Contract Takeout (Informatory) Doubles.

Hands can be broadly classified in two groups:

(1) Hands which are more valuable at own or in support of partner's bid.

Spades K J 10 3
Hearts 7
Diamonds A K J 8 4 2
Clubs 7 5

because of its distributional values, is worth a great deal more in support of partner's bid of spades, or at own diamond bid, than if played against opponent's good Heart suit as trump.

(2) Hands which are more valuable when used for penalties against opponents.

A hand such as:

Spades 7 3
Hearts K 10 9 6 3
Diamonds A 8 4
Clubs 7 5

is worth a great many tricks when played against opponent's heart bid and but 1 trick in support of partner's spade bid.

Penalty Doubles are used with the latter.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

A LAWN REQUIRES REGULAR CARE.

THIS is the time when you must take special care of your lawn. It must be mowed carefully and regularly. Do not allow the tall seed stalks to form as if they do, no matter how fine a variety of grass you may have, it will appear coarse and unsightly.

When the grass becomes too tall and is then mowed, you will find that the sod is no longer smooth in texture, nor is it a good, clear green. In fact, it is usually a dull brown color which gives the appearance of dead grass. When a lawn reaches this stage, it usually takes several weeks for it to recover. Regular mowing, at the height of three-fourths to one inch, will prevent this injury. At this time one inch is better than three-fourths.

Most people do not understand how grass grows. Seed stalks are produced when the grass is not cut, but if it is mowed regularly as soon as it reaches the knives of the mower, it will be stimulated and roots and creeping stems and leaves will be produced instead of seed stalks.

If mowed regularly, it will be beautiful and green at all times.

Sometimes turf grasses require more frequent cuttings. Where there is an abundance of rain or where a sod has been well fertilized, so that plenty of food is available, you may mow grass as often as twice a week and have most excellent results.

After the middle of this month is a good time to remove plaintains and other weeds from your lawn. Dandelions may now be uprooted by the merest twist of the wrist, since at this season the roots lie close to the surface. After each weed is gone you should seed the bare spot. Carry a small bag of soil and seed about with you, reseeding as you remove the weeds.

The middle of next month is the time to fill and grade a new lawn. It is unwise to attempt to seed a new lawn before the 15th of September. Be sure, at this time, to give your lawn a thorough soaking if it shows signs of turning brown. During July and August, it is best to omit raking after mowing.

Eugenia Bankhead To Ask Annulment

Los Angeles, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Eugenia Bankhead White, the six-time wedded Alabama beauty, has declared against marriage.

In announcing her intention to seek annulment of her marriage last June 27 to E. E. White, the sister of Tallulah Bankhead, film actress, said she had "found out many things" about her husband, who married her as Ed Ennis Smith, at Rosarita Beach, Mexico. She said they separated several days after the marriage. White, said to be a scion of a prominent up-State New York family, was arraigned yesterday on spurious check charges and held in jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Morton Hoyt, Mrs. White's first husband, is a Washington, D. C., millionaire. She married him three times. Lawrence Butt, jr., the second, was a University of Nevada football star. Howard Lee, No. 3, is an aviator. All the marriages terminated in divorce or annulment.

Mrs. Tunney in Hospital To Await Birth of Child

Damariscotta, Me., Aug. 11 (A.P.). Mrs. Polly Lauder Tunney, wife of the former heavyweight champion, was taken to a hospital here a week or ten days ago to await the birth of a child, The Associated Press learned today.

A doctor advised her to go to the hospital when she suffered a fall on a motorboat landing on John's Island near here where she and her husband had been spending the summer.

Small Payment Will Start Woodland Beach Purchase

Few opportunities to purchase happiness at such low cost are presented as the opportunity to buy property at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on the South River in Maryland.

For the small sum of $9, plus the price of a subscription to The Washington Post, you may take the first step toward many perfect summers. Nearly everyone spends $9 foolishly each month and that amount paid down will enable you to select a lot on which to erect a summer cottage.

The monthly payments at Woodland Beach are so small that even the most moderate salary will not be taxed to meet them. Only $3.50 per month is required to complete the payment on a lot, the price of which is $93.

With these easy terms offered, it is not difficult to understand why Woodland Beach has become so popular with Capital residents. Hundreds have bought there and many have erected homes on their property. However, there are still some choice locations available and you, too, may have a cottage along the beach's four and a half miles of waterfront if you get in on the proposition now.

The beach is only 32 miles from Washington and may be reached quickly over excellent roads. It offers bathing, boating and swimming to those who care for sports; while for those who seek only rest and relaxation from the summer grind of work, it is ideal.

(Associated Press.)

A modern era for cooks and maids, was urged yesterday by Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau.

She advocated a higher status for domestic service, keeping pace with modern industrialism. Establishment of training schools, fitting worker to position through the U. S. Employment Service, and an employe's life independent of the employer's household constituted her improvement program.

Miss Anderson recently returned from Europe. Kept from her original objective, the Geneva Labor Conference, by a State Department edict against a United States observer at a League of Nations parley, the Woman's Bureau chief spent much of her time studying what the different governments were doing on the domestic service problem.

Her studies abroad convinced her, she said, many nations were taking a more dignified and serious view of the domestic.

In modern apartment living Miss Anderson saw not the eventual extinction of the worker in the home, but added advantage for her.

"To the extent that we live in apartments the domestic worker becomes a day worker or an hour worker," she said. "That in itself elevates such service. The old living-in system had a tendency toward the attitude of servitude.

"The dignified worker coming in, doing the day's work and going out again is more like the office worker or factory worker."

Miss Anderson also pointed out that apartment living must necessarily give opportunity for much part-time work. She blamed lack of adjustment between the person needing service and the person looking for a job for "homes not so comfortable as they should be." She advocated domestic service sections of the various branches of the Federal employment service to correct this condition.

Most emphatically she urged establishment of domestic service training schools which should fit the home help for the changed conditions in the modern household.

"Domestic service is one of our great arts," she said. "It is also an important industry, bearing on the well-being and general success of the home. It deserves much more training than its gets. The very establishment of domestic service training schools would help to put the whole service on a higher plane and take away any stigma which may have been attached to it."

KEEPING COOL.

If the temperature of the air around us, wherever we happen to be, is higher than that of the body, employment of fans is worse than useless. It does no good to drive air by the human body unless the body can give some heat to the air. Whenever the air gives heat to the body using a fan to blow currents does more harm than good. The same observation applies to hot southwest winds, or hot winds from any quarter.

These statements require some minor exceptions. If a man has a fever of, say, 105, even moderately hot air feels somewhat cool to him. If a man must fan himself the level at which the rule begins to work is changed a few degrees.

When the temperature of the air approaches that of the body the latter no longer can lose heat by convection or, maybe, radiation. From that point on cooling is dependent alone on evaporation. Therefore, dry hot air is very much more cooling than dry wet air. If the hot air is carrying all of the moisture it can carry at body temperature it can not possibly feel cool or reduce body temperature. To use a fan in such circumstances is a waste and it may cause disaster. If it is at, say, 85 degrees and saturated with moisture at that temperature, sending it by the body may promote comfort slightly. The body heats the air somewhat and in doing so increases the capacity for moisture.

Sprinkling the floors and pavements in hot weather may make the heat more intolerable. When situations get near the border line it is advisable to weigh the case before doing much sprinkling. Some rainstorms make a hot day more unbearable, just as some winds do.

Psychology has much to do with comfort in hot weather. The nerves of the skin that register heat are already irritated. They send their messages of discontent into the central telephone office—the brain. If central is mad or snappy, these messages may blow a plug in central. If, on the other hand, central is cool and calm there is less heating at the switchboard. In hot weather central should always be well insulated. If one looks at thermometers, discusses weather, or even thinks of it, he lessens the insulation of central and increases the discomfort felt in his skin, transmitted by the nerves and registered in the brain.

The drinking of excessive quantities of fluids promotes discomfort. Sweat that evaporates cools. That which runs off has but little power to cool and it may increase discomfort. If garments become water-soaked they become impenetrable for gases. Moderate drinking of cool water promotes comfort.

Drinking of cold water causes a secondary stomach discomfort that does not help matters any. Our taste urges us to drink sour beverages. These are burned to an ash, which helps to maintain the alkali reserve of the body. However, we need common salt as well as water and salts for the alkali reserve. Buttermilk, slightly salted, is a good drink for those who perspire a great deal. The food needs of the body are low in hot weather. It is wise to wear as few clothes as possible—to wear only enough to escape arrest for exposure.

EARLY TUBERCULOSIS.

M. S. D. writes:

1. Is fever always present in the early stages of tuberculosis?

2. What is the explanation of bile in the urine?

3. Are concealed tonsils always diseased?

REPLY.

1. No. There may be a moderate amount of early tuberculosis without fever. Fever is an indication that the process is active.

2. The kidneys are excreting bile from the blood. The usual source of bile in the blood is the gall bladder and ducts. However, bile can be formed in other tissues and find its way into the blood. If it does, some of it will be extracted from the kidneys.

3. No.

The town council of Falls Church its regular meeting in the town ll yesterday authorized Mayor L. Daniel to purchase an additional enty feet of property from Mer- n E. Church in the rear of the ll as a site for the town water wer. The school board had sold e town a tract of land 60 feet long d 80 feet wide, but it would have en necessary to tear down a por- n of the old school building. The rchase authorized last night will minate the necessity of wrecking e rear of the building, which is w occupied as a library by the lls Church Women's Club.

Prince Georges Can Not Pay Takoma Park Volunteers for Protection.

The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday told I. H. Ware, secretary of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department of Montgomery County, that they had no funds with which to pay that department for responding to alarms in Prince Georges County, which adjoins the town and in which part of the town is located. The firemen asked that the commissioners contribute to the support of the department inasmuch as Prince Georges County property is protected by their efforts.

The request of Dr. Thomas Gibbons, of Croome, for improvement of the road through Harvey Farm in Nottingham District also was greeted with the reply of "no funds" and the request was referred to the roads committee for that district.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS ARE LET IN FAIRFAX

Reduced Estimates Made to Bring Costs Within Sum Held Available.

The Fairfax County School Board, at a special meeting yesterday, awarded the contracts for the erection of three new school buildings in the county. The bids opened last week were much higher than anticipated so most of the contractors were present at yesterday's meeting to discuss construction and material problems.

The contract for the erection of a home economics building at the high school at Herndon was awarded to Buchanan & Co., of Clarksville, Va., for approximately $5,700. The change was made from the original bid of more than $6,000 when the school board decreased the size of the building 16 feet from the original plans. The plan to erect a gymnasium in connection with the school was abandoned temporarily, as the cost of construction was more than contemplated by the board.

The contract for the erection of the colored school buildings was awarded to C. Case, of Purcellville, Va., both buildings to cost approximately $2,900. These schools are to be of frame construction, containing two rooms and hall.

A representative of the State school architect's office at Richmond, which prepared the plans for the buildings, was present at yesterday's meeting to advise the Fairfax board and the contractors in consideration of the contracts.

The board announced that it will meet again on August 27 to receive and consider bids for the erection of a four-room and auditorium building at Franconia. Bids were asked for this building last month, but all were rejected as being more than the county was able to raise for the construction. Since that time revised plans have been prepared and are being distributed by the county school superintendent at Fairfax.

Bank Is Still Unpaid for $214,000 of Paper, Says Vice President.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Testimony that the Central Bank & Trust Co. purchased and paid two of its subsidiary corporations for $875,000 worth of bonds, delivered them to Luke Lea and never received payment for $214,000 of them was given today in the $1,300,000 bank-fraud trial here.

Lea, Wallace B. Davis (president of the bank), Luke Lea, jr., and E. P. Charlet are on trial charged with conspiracy to defraud and actual misapplication of the bank's funds and assets.

W. D. Harris, vice president of the Central Securities Corporation (a subsidiary of the bank) and manager of the bank's bond department, gave the evidence regarding the bond sale.

His testimony climaxed a day of ups and downs for the State and of extended legal tilts over admissability of much of the State's evidence. He was placed on the stand only a short time before court recessed for the day and is expected to resume his story of the transaction tomorrow.

Testimony of M. D. Johnson, formerly assistant cashier of the now defunct Liberty Bank & Trust Co. of Nashville, was "frankly disappointing" to the State, according to Judge T. L. Johnson, who is assisting Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles and Maj. L. P. McLendon, of Durham, in the prosecution.

Johnson testified concerning records of his bank and to $739,076 deposited in it to the credit of Lea between August 4 and October 30, 1930, through checks and drafts on the Central Bank & Trust Co.

Johnson was prevented from testifying to many of the records he brought here because he had not made the entries in them and could not testify from first-hand knowledge. Many such entries were admitted by the State to have been considered of importance to its case.

A statement said that in accordance with the usual midyear practice of the company, the material content of semi-finished and finished goods was valued at cost. The dividend was not discussed at today's meeting of directors, as the next regular meeting for dividend action is the fourth Wednesday in October.

Sinclair-Tide Water Oil-Merger Plan Fails

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Reports in Wall street today said that merger negotiations between Tide Water Associated Oil Co. and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Co. have been dropped definitely.

The step was indicated recently in reports that Tide Water was expanding in the east Texas field by the addition of about 24,000 acres to its proven lands there. In addition, it was reported a pipe line was about to be built to the Gulf Coast. The expansion was undertaken to assure Tide Water of a continuous flow to its refineries.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

If you are in a position to brace yourself for a revelation of no less than astounding originality and daring, I should like to advance the suggestion that Ernst Lubitsch is quite a director.

This is a matter that has been suspected for some time now, but in their preview screening of "The Smiling Lieutenant," at the Ambassador yesterday, Paramount made it a certainty.

"The Smiling Lieutenant," with Maurice Chevalier, Claudette Colbert, Miriam Hopkins and Charles Ruggles featured in the cast, is one of the most utterly delightful Viennese operettas that have come along on either stage or screen since goodness knows when. It has everything, and will do much toward rehabilitating music as an important factor on the audible screen. This already has been proved by its reception in New York and therefore takes on none of the doubtful reliability of a personal prophecy.

One of the things that will most impress discerning and discriminating audiences in viewing this film will be the exceptional performance of Miriam Hopkins in the role of Princess Anna. This is the first time, insofar as my observation has extended, that Miss Hopkins has had anything like a fair chance in the celluloids.

And now that she has it, oh, boy! what she does with it!

It seems to have been the fact, as the two days of private peeks at the forthcoming Paramount product are viewed in retrospect, that Mr. Harry Hunter, the perspicacious panjandrum of the local Paramount forces, saved the best pictures for the last. In addition to "The Smiling Lieutenant," "Silence," with Clive Brook, Peggy Shannon, John Wray, Willard Robertson, Marjorie Rambeau and Frank Sheridan, was unreeled before yesterday's wide-eyed audience of invited guests.

This talking version of the Max Marcin play is surefire and will reveal John Wray in a gem of a characterization of the sort that he does better than any one else on the screen. It is a new and wholly different Clive Brook that you will see here, too. So I advise every conscientious moviegoer to watch for the playing dates of both these pictures.

In my negligible judgment, "The Smiling Lieutenant" and "Silence" are both better boxoffice than "An American Tragedy" and "Huckleberry Finn," yesterday's gift to the exploratory exhibitors and ravenous reporters.

Having expressed itself yesterday as of the opinion that Theodore Dreiser, author of "An American Tragedy," had ample grounds for his dissatisfaction with the manner in which his master-novel had been picturized, and further because its views have found eloquent expression from the trenchant pen of Mr. Terry Ramsaye, one of the most astute of the cinema's commentators, this column deems it meet and proper to reproduce a portion of Mr. Ramsaye's estimate of the film, as published in the August 8 issue of the Motion Picture Herald, to wit:

"An important picture has come to Broadway, important in terms that set it distinctly apart from most that has been done since the screen acquired a voice. The presentation of 'An American Tragedy' at the Criterion reveals ample warrant for the controversy between Mr. Theodore Dreiser and Paramount which has been occupying the courts and the news pages these several weeks, but the considerations of import remaining now are, not between author and producer, but rather in the intrinsic character of the picture as a picture.

"But, most interestingly and wholesomely, the picture will be found to be a subject of vigorous, not to say bitter, differences of opinion. Showmen will have their opinions after they have sold it or tried to sell it to their audiences. They likely also will have some premature opinions widely divergent. It is significant indeed that the production does not instantly fall into any of the much-worn pigeonholes of habitual classification. Its many controversial aspects and points may prove to be selling points.

"The picture is possibly of more importance within the industry and art of picture fabrication than as an article of merchandise. In Josef von Sternberg's direction a most skillful interrelation of the use of the camera and the microphone as instruments of narration has been achieved. They have in the main in this instance been so applied as to constitute one medium, not two. * * *

"Happily enough, 'An American Tragedy' is not epochal, it is not colossal, not even stupendous, because all those attributes belong especially to precisely what is meant by movies. It is instead a motion picture—of which this business could use several—soon."

You might just as well make up your mind to put up with this discussion of "An American Tragedy" now as later, because, once it is shown to the public, it will be one of the most talked of films of this or any other year—and I am by no means sure, even yet, that all that litigation wasn't instituted for the sole purpose of making it such!

Personal to Miss Jane Garber: Thanks immensely for all the flattery and I am all a-quiver to learn the address!

And don't you wish you knew what that is all about?

Cowboy Wins $10,000 Novel Prize to End 14 Lean Years

Raw-Boned Westerner of 29 Gets Harper Award After Long Period Marked by Numerous Rejection Slips; Fame Appears Assured.

New York, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Roberts Raynolds, a raw-boned, 29-year-old Westerner who has spent 14 years of his life trying to convince publishers that he can write and who has never had a line accepted, came down from Georgetown, Conn., today to collect $10,000.

Raynolds' novel, "Brothers in the West," has not only been accepted for publication but has been chosen as the Harper prize novel for 1931. And the lean young author, whose bow tie stands askew and whose hair won't stay put, was pretty much in a daze about it all.

Since he was 14 he has turned out untold thousands of words—short stories, poetry, novels, detective stories, even essays. And up to now life had just been one rejection slip right after another.

He was born in the old governor's palace at Sante Fe, in the room where Lew Wallace worked on the manuscript of Ben Hur. His father was the late James Wallace Raynolds, acting Governor of New Mexico under McKinley.

When Raynolds was 7 the family migrated to Omaha and he grew up in the West, wandering over Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico with his brothers, punching cows, trapping, fishing, hunting and climbing mountains.

In 1923 he entered Princeton, studied two years and then went back West to Denver to work in the coal mines for a year. Returning to the East he entered Lafayette College, finishing in 1925. Then he set out for Mexico, where he wandered around for a while and worked in the silver mines.

A year ago he was employed as editor of an oil company's house organ here in New York, still convinced that he could write. He had finished two novels, was writing a detective novel and had several trunk loads of manuscript.

Quite suddenly he decided to chuck his job and go in for writing exclusively. So he got a cottage up in Connecticut, took his wife and two babies along and went to work.

At first things didn't pan out. The children bothered him and if they were quiet the water pump in the house set his nerves on edge. Then the neighbors would flock in right in the middle of a paragraph.

Finally in desperation he ordered a load of lumber, went up on a hill and built himself a shack-studio—out of sight of any houses. Once again he pitched in and now, the chances are, he'll ride the best seller lists for six months.

Now that success has come, Raynolds is not going to rest. He's going back up on his hill at once and get to work. But he admitted today that the $10,000 comes in handy.

$30,000 in Jewels Stolen by Burglar

Scorns Paste Imitations in Robbing Apartment of Rich Chicagoan.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A discriminating burglar passed up paste imitations and stole jewelry valued at between $30,000 and $50,000 from the apartment of Carroll E. Gray, jr., president of the Central Republic Co., last night.

Mr. Gray was in New York, the servants were at the family's summer home in Lauderdale, Wis., and Mrs. Gray and her daughter, Jane, 15, attending a theater when the robbery occurred. Police said the burglar entered from a fire escape.

Once inside, he leisurely ransacked the fourteen-room apartment, picking out only costly diamond and platinum watches, bracelets and rings. Valuable furs were left behind. Cushions were pulled from divans, furniture was overturned and covers thrown from beds.

Hoover Ranch Produces First California Cotton

Bakersfield, Calif., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The first bale of California cotton produced this year at Hoover farm near Shafter was ready three weeks earlier than last year's first product, it was learned here today.

Wheelchair Mends Back Of Crippled Prize Terrier

A novel wheel chair constructed by a sympathetic friend is expected to save the life of Moon, pedigreed Boston terrier, whose back was broken three months ago when she was pinned under a heavy construction beam. The prize dog, daughter of Champion District Boss, winner of the all-comers' prize on several occasions at local dog shows, belongs to Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, of Merrifield, Va.

Moon was digging in a poultry house when the heavy beam fell on her, apparently rendering the rear legs useless. The dog was rushed to a veterinarian, who said that there was no hope for recovery and advised chloroforming. But Moon was brought home and one of the neighbors called a leading spine specialist, who treated the case by long-distance telephone, never seeing his patient. As the animal responded to treatment the aid of Guy McKinney, another Merrifield neighbor, was enlisted and the odd wheel chair was devised to allow Moon to move about more freely.

Now Moon is on the road to recovery with the help of the queer device which holds her spine in place, and she can walk around, but prefers having one of her grandchildren hitched to her wheel chair, providing comfortable transportation.

Owner of Roadhouse Near Chicago Murdered

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Adolph J. Dumont, proprietor of the Walton Club, reputed Morton Grove roadhouse, in which the Daily News said Ted Newberry, North Side lieutenant of Al Capone, has an interest, died today from a bullet wound inflicted by three men last night.

Dumont, whom police credited with being wealthy, insisted to the last that robbery was the motive, but witnesses whose approach sent his assailants away before they made certain their bullets had taken effect said the men made no effort to rob the victim.

RECORDS ON COTTON OPEN, BOARD STATES

(Associated Press.)

William F. Callander, chairman of the Agriculture Department's crop-reporting board, said yesterday records and methods employed in computing last Saturday's cotton estimate were "open to those authorized to inspect them."

The board estimated a crop of 15,584,000 bales for the 1931 harvest. Private traders, who have expressed the opinion the Government's forecast was too high, made estimates about 1,500,000 bales less.

As a result of the department's unexpectedly high forecast, cotton prices dropped to the lowest levels in a score of years on practically every exchange.

Investigation Wanted.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, has wired Secretary Hyde, requesting the records be preserved for a "thorough investigation." No other such requests have been received, Callander said, but he added he expected more.

Defending the estimate, Callander pointed out that the condition of cotton on August 1 was 20 per cent higher than on the same date last year. Although acreage has been reduced 10 per cent, he said, a substantial increase in the final harvest was indicated. The indicated crop based on August 1 conditions is 8.5 per cent higher than last year.

Last Saturday's report was the first of the season for cotton. It was made on the basis of conditions obtaining on August 1 and probable weather, moisture and insect developments for the remainder of the year. Should adverse weather conditions set in during the remainder of the growing season, the final crop would consequently be reduced.

Confident of Accuracy.

Callander said he was "confident that the final estimate will be found to be reasonably accurate." He said the crop reporting board formerly used methods now employed by the private trade, but had discarded them in 1926 for its present system, which he considers more reliable.

Since 1927 the board has been higher three times on its August 1 estimate than final figures and lower once. In 1927 the highest August 1 estimate was made when it was 4 per cent above the final yield.

Order Is Criticized By Fleet Officers

Men Aroused at Montauk Point Visit Attributed to Britten.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The New York Times says there has been considerable criticism among the 5,000 officers and men of the 30 ships of the scouting fleet sent to anchor off Montauk, Long Island, from their regular summer base at Newport, R. I.

The visit of the ships to Montauk was suggested to Admiral W. V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, the Times says, by Representative Fred Britten, of Illinois, chairman of the House naval affairs committee. The Times attributes to Britten information that he is a stockholder in the Montauk Beach Development Corporation and owns three or four acres of land on the shore of Lake Montauk.

Britten denied he persuaded Admiral Pratt to send the ships to Montauk because of his interest in the company.

The Times recalls that Britten sponsored other visits of Navy units to Montauk this summer, including that of the dirigible Los Angeles.

Inquest Ordered In Hospital Death

An inquest into the death of Mrs. Isabell Waldren, 56 years old, who died yesterday at Sibley Hospital from injuries suffered when she fell from a third-story window at that institution Monday, will be held this morning at 11:30 o'clock at the District Morgue.

Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt ordered the inquest after an autopsy disclosed the woman had died of a fractured skull and internal injuries.

According to police, Mrs. Waldren, with the aid of an improvised rope made of two bed sheets, was attempting to lower herself from the window of her room, when she was discovered by a student nurse. The nurse, Miss Phyllis Pyler, tried to pull the woman back into the room, but she slipped from her grasp and dropped to the ground. Mrs. Waldren, who lived at 1036 Otis street northeast, is survived by ten children.

SLAYER AND HIS UNLUCKY DOUBLE

Francis "Two-gun" Crowley (left), who slew a policeman who interrupted a tryst, and Patrick O'Brien (right), who police now say is his double. O'Brien, police say, is serving a 20 to 40 year term for robbery because he was mistaken for Crowley. He told Detective William Mara that a fellow prisoner, Gerald Weed, admitted joining Crowley in a robbery for which he, O'Brien, was arrested and sentenced.

FARMS AGAIN SEEK EQUALIZATION FEE

Madison, Wis., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The American Farm Bureau Federation, through its president, Edward A. O'Neal, tonight declared present farm legislation inadequate and announced its return to the principle of the equalization fee.

"For the past two years our organization, desiring to see the marketing act fully tried out, has not insisted upon the enactment of the equalization fee principle," O'Neal told Farm Bureau leaders from eleven Midwest States.

Finds Approval Everywhere.

"It now appears all too plain that the present act does not adequately provide for the needed control of surpluses. Consequently, we must renew our demand for enactment of this type of legislation in order to strengthen and preserve the farmer-owned and farmer-controlled marketing associations that have been established.

"Wherever in my travels I have brought up the question of the equalization fee plan it met with hearty approval. Even in California, with its old and well-established cooperatives, it was indorsed. In fact, they tell me out there that their cooperatives are already using the equalization fee principle with the approval of 85 per cent of the farmers."

The equalization fee plan, as outlined by the federation, would provide for disposal of surpluses outside of the country by a Government agency, the loss to be made up by a tax collected on each unit of the entire domestic crop.

General Overhauling Wanted.

"The farmer feels that industry has the advantage of us with its very high tariffs," Mr. O'Neal said, "while the price we get for our products is determined by the price of our surplus in the world markets.

"The farmers feel, too, that the high industrial tariffs are preventing sale of our exportable agricultural surpluses. * * *

"They are wondering why there is such vast accumulation of cash in city banks, and no money in the country for capital or for marketing purposes. They feel that the whole agricultural credit system needs overhauling."

(Associated Press.)

Word that the American Farm Bureau Federation would again lend active support to the controverted equalization fee as a farm relief measure was received here yesterday as an added indication of the prominent role agriculture will play in the next Congress.

The Grange, another nationally-known farm organization with 800,000 members, has served notice that it will urge adoption of the export debenture plan.

President Hoover has expressed unalterable opposition to the latter proposal, but has not expressed his view on the equalization fee. His predecessor, Calvin Coolidge, however, twice vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill containing this principle, and the Republican national convention of 1928, which nominated President Hoover, voted 807 to 207 against a substitute platform advocating the fee.

TRADE REVIVAL SEEN BY SMALL BUSINESS

Lesser Industries Session, However, Is Divided on Time of Recovery.

Silver Bay, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Much encouraged by a poll of delegates disclosing definitely optimistic business sentiment, the Smaller Industries Conference went into the details of their problems today.

Forty of the attending delegates were asked their opinions in a questionnaire by Harold F. Browne, chairman of the organizing committee and a member of the National Industrial Conference Board. Seventeen said they believed the depression over and that an upturn now is in progress. Nine held the contrary opinion, while seven were noncommittal, though inclined to be optimistic. The others would not express an opinion.

Mr. Browne said he believed the delegates questioned represented a definite cross-section of industry and of the conference. Most of the optimistic delegates based their opinions on statistical information and on experience in their own plants. The pessimistic delegates complained of low commodity prices, Government interference with business and other general difficulties.

End of Ills Seen.

A. M. Goddard, president of Goddard & Goddard, Detroit, Mich., thinks "we are approaching the end. But psychology is the principal object at present. Despair, discouragement and fear are gradually giving place to hope, based on the fact that the most carefully plotted curves of business from actual statistics are turning upward today."

On the same basis of statistics, R. J. Anderson, executive of a shoe company in Auburn, N. Y., held that a period of expansion is upon us. Virgil Jordan, New York economist, believed on the other hand that mismanagement of money and banking had made the situation worse.

Walter Berry, plant executive, of Watertown, Conn., said the upturn had started. "Since May 1, 1931," he asserted, "I have talked with about 150 business executives and they have all stated the flow of business is more than it was a few months ago."

Slow Recovery Predicted.

H. L. Thodes, of a dress fastener company in Meadville, Pa., thought that, despite the success of his business, depression has not gone far enough. He anticipated ten years of slow readjustment before normal times return.

W. D. Harvey, of Kokomo, Ind., store and poultry equipment manufacturer, said any immediate upturn would be largely seasonal, and that prosperity depended upon a real rise in commodity practice. A Middle West brake-lining manufacturer foresees the upturn in 1932.

The fact that large manufacturers have started to release new development work appeals to a well-known metallurgical engineer, while low wheat and cotton prices persuade a textile manufacturer that the upturn still is distant.

Man Starts for Veterans Bureau; Now Is Missing

Mrs. Anna Chandler, of 2510 Twenty-fourth street northeast, asked police yesterday to locate her husband, Lester Chandler, 35, who has been missing from the Twenty-fourth street address since 9 o'clock Monday morning. Chandler is described as being tall, weighs about 150 pounds, and wearing no coat.

Mrs. Chandler told police she feared her husband had met with foul play. He left home for the Veterans Bureau where he intended to draw out a considerable sum of money, she said. She feared he had been attacked and robbed.

Three Men Are Taken With Supposed Liquor

Three men were charged with illegal possession and six gallons of alleged alcohol and about 11 gallons of alleged whisky were seized last night when a police vice squad, led by Sergt. R. C. Speith, raided two fourth-floor apartments at 405 Tenth street northeast.

James C. Blackwell, 21, and Roy J. Smith, 22, were booked for the alcohol and one pint of alleged white whisky. Albert J. Dintino, 20, was charged with illegal possession of 45 pints of red whisky and 40 pints of white whisky.

Charge of Aiding Two In Jail-Break Dropped

A charge against Arthur Clinton Miller of aiding in the escape of two prisoners from the Lorton Reformatory was dropped by the grand jury yesterday as a result of its investigation into the escapes.

Miller was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Julian Richards, assistant United States attorney. Miller was recently acquitted of stealing an automobile and Justice Gordon, before whom the case was tried, discharged the jury from further service.

PARIS-BERLIN PACT URGED AS RED CURB

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A reconciliation of the centuries-old rivalry between France and Germany would save the latter from a "dangerous flirtation" with bolshevism, the Institute of Politics was told today.

Further, it was told a Franco-German rapprochement would establish a "defensive alliance" of Germany, France, Poland and the Little Entente against any "menace" of Soviet Russia.

The situation in Central Europe was outlined by Dr. William A. Rappard, director of the School for Higher International Studies at Geneva, who explained that France's friendly relationship with Poland and the Little Entente was engendered by an "alleged threat" from Germany.

Possible Aid to League.

If the alliance were extended to include Germany, he pointed out, the spirit of the League of Nations covenant and the treaty of Locarno would be carried out.

This view was concurred in by Charles A. Leneveu, president of L'Union Colonaile Francaise, who asserted a Franco-German rapprochement would be "wholly to the good of all concerned."

The only note of discord was sounded by Sarah Wambaugh, former member of the League secretariat, who said France's confidence in the League was shaken by refusal of the United States to participate.

It was Dr. Herbert von Beckerath, professor of political science at the University of Bonn, who said that Germany's present estrangemeent from her neighbors was laying the country open to communism and bolshevism.

Tariff Pacts Discussed.

In the round table conference on the future of the British Commonwealth, Jacob Viner, professor of economics of the University of Chicago, discussed preferential tariff agreements. He cited the relations of the United States and Hawaii as an example of the complications which must be considered in determining "the net result" of any preferential agreement.

"The prosperity of Hawaii at present is at the expense of the United States Treasury. Hawaii is still a parasite on the United States," he said.

In his second and last scheduled address on "the Soviet planning system and the five-year plan," Dr. George Sylvester Counts, professor of education of Columbia University, tonight warned against the uncertainties of attempting to evaluate any phase of the Soviet plan. "The unknown quantities" in the situation, he said, made evaluation hazardous.

(Associated Press.)

The reissuance of a license to the Rev. Bob Shuler's station, KGEF, Trinity Methodist Church South, Los Angeles, was recommended to the Federal Radio Commission yesterday by its chief examiner.

Renewal of the license had been bitterly opposed by Lloyd Nix, former city prosecutor, against whom Shuler had broadcast attacks. City, county and State officials, many of whom had also been subject to Shuler's radio criticism, testified against him in a prolonged hearing in Los Angeles last January.

Examiner Ellis A. Yost said Dr. Shuler had been "extremely indiscreet" in some of his broadcasts. To justify a denial of license, however, the examiner held the pastor's utterances would have to be "of such public disservice as to outweight all public service rendered by all other broadcasts made over applicant station." Such was not the case, Yost said, since Shuler broadcast only 3 hours each week of the station's 23¼ hour total.

Air Crash Killing Six Is Held Unavoidable

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A crash of a Cincinnati-Atlanta air liner here Sunday which killed six persons was held today by Coroner M. S. Kearns to have been unavoidable.

Kearns' report said, "the airplane accident was an unavoidable one, due to mechanical defects—possibly to faulty material in the propeller." Four passengers, one a woman, and two pilots died in the crash.

Private Phone Trunk Rate Cut

The charge for flat rate telephone inter-communicating trunk systems for private residences was reduced from $8.25 to $4.75 a month yesterday by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. The new rate was filed with the Public Utilities Commission.

Sugar Production Prospects Decline

(Associated Press.)

The Department of Agriculture said yesterday that indicated sugar production in the United States declined 92,000,000 pounds during July.

On the basis of the department August crop report, the indicated production decreased from 2,342,000,000 pounds to 2,250,000,000 during the month.

From sugar beets it was estimated 958,000 short tons of sugar were in prospect as compared with 1,006,000 short tons a month ago, and from Louisiana cane, 167,000 short tons, compared with 165,000 tons last month. Last year production from sugar beets was 1,208,000 short tons and from Louisiana cane, 184,000 short tons.

TRAINED OFFICERS GOAL OF WOODCOCK

Lack of Them Is Weak Point of Law Enforcement in U. S., He Asserts.

Silver Bay, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition enforcement, tonight declared that the weaknesses of all the Nation's law enforcement agencies lay in the lack of trained officers.

Addressing the Silver Bay Vacation Conference, he described his policy of prohibition enforcement and emphasized that he had particularly directed his attention to the training of his men on the basis that crime detection is properly a highly trained profession.

Before his address, Col. Woodcock commented on an incident in Buffalo where, it was reported, a woman was used as a decoy by prohibition officers. Col. Woodcock said he knew little of the case except what he had read in the papers, but that he was sure that Buffalo officers had acted without the orders of the higher Federal officers. He said one of the men had been suspended and that another was under investigation.

Won't Stand for It.

"I definitely will not stand for this kind of prohibition enforcement," Col. Woodcock said. "When I took this job I promised to prosecute the laws lawfully and I shall do so."

In his speech, which was extemporaneous, Col. Woodcock amplified that idea. He recalled an officer who had shot a bootlegger in the back and killed him. The officer was brought to trial and was released because the defense held he was not properly trained; that higher authorities should have seen to it that the officer's zeal did not displace his good judgment.

"I don't want any killing by my men. My agents can not take the law in their own hands. They would not do so if they were properly trained, and I am doing my best to train them," Col. Woodcock said.

The enforcement director said that, according to the expected statistical methods of determining the efficiency of law enforcement, prohibition was as effectively taken care of as any enforcement.

Convict 86 Per Cent.

"The last figures," he said, "show that 86 per cent of the cases brought to trial resulted in conviction. This is a higher percentage than for interstate car stealing, for violation of national banking laws or the Mann act. Narcotics enforcement bears a similar percentage. I want it understood, of course, that this is based on statistics, that since the same methods were used to measure all crime I believe they may be taken as fairly adequate."

Col. Woodcock said that he had enjoyed the last year of prohibition work because of the tremendous organization job represented.

Accord Reached On Cle Elum Dam

(Associated Press.)

The way was cleared yesterday for the award of contracts by the Interior Department for the proposed Cle Elum Dam above Yakima, Washington.

A controversy between the State of Washington and the Federal Government over the disposition of receipts from the power to be developed was settled suddenly by an exchange of telegrams between Acting Secretary Dixon of the Interior Department and Director Barnes of the State's Bureau of Conservation and Development.

The department was shown to have won out in its contention that the power receipts should be applied to the cost of the project. Reports here were that the State desired to have the funds revert perpetually to the water users.

1,300 IDLE WAITING IN HOOVER DAM ROW

Strike Area Guarded Against Violence; Further Suspension Considered.

Las Vegas, Nev., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Thirteen hundred men thrown out of employment by the strike and the subsequent suspension of work at Hoover Dam by Six Companies, Inc., dam contractors, adopted a policy of watchful waiting today.

The sheriff and United States marshal, with 25 deputies, aided by the six regular police officers at Boulder City, the Government camp for workmen, searched automobiles entering the disturbed area for firearms and liquor. There has been no violence.

Two hundred workmen, including the 125 who struck Friday for an increase in wages and better working conditions, idled about their camp, not far from the dam site, hoping something would happen to bring recognition of their demands.

Men Wait for Work.

Most of the other 1,100 were in Las Vegas, guarding their scant funds and waiting for a resumption of work. Hundreds, some without bedding, slept in parks or in the open last night. The nights are warm.

Approximately 1,100 men, employed on projects connected with the dam, are not affected by the strike. These projects include the railroad from Boulder City to the dam site, houses in the city, a pipe line from the river to the city, paving and sewer lines.

The strikers walked out protesting a $1 cut in wages. Frank Crowe, superintendent for Six Companies, declared, however, that a reduction of $5 to $4 a day for ordinary laborers had been made some time previously and that the real cause of the strike was the installation of machine drills in the dam tunnels and the shifting of men who had been doing hand-drilling jobs to jobs paying less.

Demands of Strikers.

The strikers' demands, presented by a committee of eleven, included:

A minimum daily wage of $5 for laborers, $5.50 for tunnel employes, and $6 for miners (machine drill operators) and carpenters. The existing scale was $4, $5 and $5.60, respectively.

Better living conditions at the river camp.

Six Companies' officials announced they had been considering suspending work because of the heat, which had been responsible for most of the 26 deaths at the dam since May. They said they were ahead of the construction program, and since the labor difficulty had arisen would discontinue construction indefinitely. The suspension became effective Sunday, and all but a few of the resisting workmen were laid off yesterday.

Curry and Doyle Slated for Stand

Tammany Chief and Veterinarian to Be Called by Seabury Soon.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, and Dr. William F. Doyle, whose activities are being investigated in connection with a general inquiry into charges of city-wide corruption in New York officialdom, will be called to testify at a public hearing of the legislative investigation committee Thursday or Friday.

Samuel Seabury, chief counsel for the committee said tonight Dr. Doyle would be given an opportunity to win his freedom and purge himself of contempt of court by answering the one question he was sent to jail for 30 days for refusing to answer recently. That question is:

"Did you ever split fees with a public official?"

The fees referred to are those totaling $2,000,000 which the former horse doctor assertedly collected in a few years as a result of his practice before the Board of Standards and Appeals.

Milk Van Leaves Road; Plunges Into Reservoir

R. F. Harper, driver for the Chestnut Farms Dairy, received a severe drenching early yesterday, but otherwise escaped unhurt when the truck he was operating ran from the road and plunged into the waters of the District reservoir, off Conduit road.

Heavily laden with milk, the heavy vehicle became uncontrolable and left the highway as it neared the reservoir. Milk bottles were strewn for some distance as the truck rolled down a high embankment and came to a stop in about 4 feet of water.

All-Day Parking Allowed On Constitution Avenue

Newly widened Constitution avenue was opened yesterday to all-day parking on both sides by order of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3rd, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks. Parking in the Ellipse was at the same time reduced to two hours.

The park road connections between the Ellipse and Constitution avenue, save the short Sixteenth street extention, are to be one way out of the park to eliminate hazards at Fifteenth and Seventeenth streets.

Hot Springs Dry Drive Embroils 46 Persons

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Forty-six persons, including four women, were arrested today in a series of raids begun by Federal prohibition agents last night in Hot Springs and the adjacent countryside.

The campaign followed two weeks of under-cover work and most of the arrests were made on warrants based on information gathered by the secret agents. Most of the charges specified possession and sale of liquor.

Vera Cruz Price Raises Banned.

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—An executive order barring increases in prices of necessities was issued today by Gov. Tejeda, of Vera Cruz State, according to a dispatch to the newspaper Excelsior. Prices as of July 25 will prevail.

Retrial of Pantages Deferred.

Two Named as Acting Dean Of Howard Dental School

Profs. Scott and Evans Approved by Colleagues for Vacancy, Pending Permanent Selection; Neither Yet Has Signified Intention to Accept.

At a special faculty meeting of Howard University Dental School, called yesterday by the President, Dr. Mordecai Johnson, the names of two of the professors were considerd to serve in the position of acting dean pending the selection of a new permanent dean. The two teachers, Dr. Emmett J. Scott and Dr. Carnot Evans were approved unamiously by their colleagues but up to a late hour last night it could not be learned whether either had accepted the post.

The office of head of the College of Dentistry has been vacant since the suspension of Dr. Arnold Donawa on July 17 for insubordination, the specific charges being that he refused to attend or to allow his faculty to attend meetings of the faculty of the School of Medicine. Dr. Donawa contended that the College of Dentistry is an independent unit not subject to the call of the dean of Medicine, and for either him or his faculty to attend would be an acknowledgement that the College of Dentistry was no more than a department of the School of Medicine.

Since the suspension of Dr. Donawa several members of the faculty of the College of Dentistry have petitioned the board of trustees for his reinstatement, but no action has been taken. It was reported that a number of the professors were approached and offered the post of dean, only to decline it, saying that their sympathies were with their ousted former head.

When reached last night at his home Dr. Johnson issued the following statement: "I know of no controversy among the faculty of the College of Dentistry. About three times a year the three autonomous faculties which constitute the School of Medicine meet for the purpose of discussing and legislating upon matters of common interest to all three faculties but which do not in any way infringe upon the autonomy of any one."

It is understood that it was at one of these collective meetings that Dr. Donawa failed to appear, or to allow his faculty to appear, thus bringing on his suspension.

Trisection of Angle Solved By President of University

Duquesne Announces Father Callahan Has Achieved Task in Geometry, Which Has Been for 2,500 Years Considered Impossible.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Trisection of the angle by Euclidean in geometry, believed for 2,500 years to be impossible, has been accomplished by the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, according to an announcement made today at the University.

The problem was one of three problems of geometry considered insoluble, the announcement said. The others are the reduplication of the cube, that is, finding a cube with volume double that of a given cube, and the squaring of the circle, or finding a square or some other rectilinear figure equal in area to a given circle.

Hippias of Elis, a contemporary of Socrates, probably was the first to attempt to trisect the angle, according to authorities on mathematics.

Father Callahan is a mathematician of note and has been credited with first proving the fifth postulate, or parallel theory, of Euclid. He is the author of a book, "Euclid or Einstein," which will be published next month. The university's announcement said the book would contain proof of the parallel theory, and that "this proof makes impossible non-Euclidean geometry and the mathematics based on it, such as the relativity mathematics of Einstein."

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, today confirmed an announcement made at the university in Pittsburgh that he has discovered a method of trisecting an angle by geometry.

The explanation, he said, depends on the geometry of a basic plane figure not included in Euclid's treatment of geometry or in works based on it.

STOCK PRICES RALLY AS SHORTS RETREAT

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Active back-tracking by the shorts today gave the stock market its best rally since late in June, when Wall street was enthusing over the war debt moratorium.

Appearance of support for the beleagured rails, which have been threatening to break their year's lows, and the increasing resistance offered by pivotal industrials and utilities in recent markets weakened the courage of amateur and professional bears and their repurchases boosted quotations on numerous principal issues from 2 to 6 points. The turnover of 1,614,580 shares was the largest since July 15; there had been no volume of even a million shares so far this month.

With rails apparently holding the key to market action the upturn in these issues, after a few had made new minimums, was regarded as important evidence of an oversold condition. Wall street attributed the general rally to technical causes, but the quick reversal nevertheless brought the usual quota of cheer that follows such changes in sentiment.

Grains Close Lower.

Grains affected by the large crop estimates, closed lower although wheat had opened with an advance. Nevertheless, net losses in that commodity were moderate. Cotton traveled a much steadier course than yesterday, losing 25 to 45 cents net but at no time equaling Monday's lows. Railroad bonds displayed considerable weakness and for the most part failed to rally with the share market.

So brisk was the rise of stocks that top prices attracted profit-taking. U. S. Steel, which touched 90, fell back to 88⅞, where the net gain was 3 points. American Telephone's 7-point rebound was cut to 5½, while New York Central reduced an extreme rise of 5½ to 3¾ points. Rock Island, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison and Baltimore & Ohio scored net advances of 3 to nearly 7.

Of the industrials and utilities, American Can, Westinghouse, National Biscuit, Sears Roebuck, North American, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Bethlehem, International Harvester and General Electric closed 1⅜ to 4¾ higher. Such rapid movers as Allied Chemical, Case and Eastman Kodak had net gains of more than 6, while Auburn was up 8⅜.

Effect of German News.

Further evidence of the increasing stability in German affairs and the success that has so far attended the government's efforts to help itself was offered in the Reichsbank's reduced discount rate. The bank's position has improved greatly; the gold drain has been completely stopped and holdings of foreign exchange have risen substantially as a result of restrictions.

With the commercial banks again doing business normally, it is felt here that money rates in Germany will now be made easier. Adjustment of the Hoover moratorium provisions to the Young plan, accomplished smoothly by the international experts, puts the final peg into the year's debt suspension.

At home it appeared that steel-making operations had improved slightly during the past week. American Metal Market, first of the weekly trade reviews, was fairly optimistic toward the prospects for the remainder of August, saying a slight advance was probable. Looking into September "a substantial increase" is expected.

Car Loadings Increase.

Freight loadings for the week ended August 1 showed a gain of 15,541 cars, totaling 757,293. A year ago the volume was 918,335. Crude Oil statistics continue unfavorable, but gasoline stocks are being sharply reduced in some sections and changes in prices are upward.

Aside from the crop figures, factors in the wheat market included large takings of Russian grain by the United Kingdom and a reaction at Winnipeg. Net losses were ½ to ⅞. Corn was down ¾ to 1⅞, reflecting in part a forecast of better weather and heavier contract stocks.

A rise in the Argentine gold peso featured foreign currencies which on the whole were firm. Sterling was steady at 4.85¾ for cables.

RAILWAY BONDS SAG TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Prices of Other Issues Share Losses and Gains About Evenly at Close.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The bond market wavered back and forth today with the result that net changes were divided about evenly between gains and declines.

Activity showed a moderate increase, partly because of the selling pressure on the rails. Sales on the New York Stock Exchange totaled $8,986,000, the largest total for a full session since July 23, when the turnover amounted to $9,907,000. Foreign issues advanced irregularly, but railroad obligations continued to decline.

The average price of ten leading railroad bonds receded slightly to reach another new low level at 95.7. Individual rail issues to sell at new minimum levels included Canadian Pacific debenture 4s of 1960, Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s and first 5s, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis series E 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s, of 1949, New York Central 4½s and 5s of 2013, Nickel Plate series C 4½s, Great Northern 7s and Southern Pacific refunding 4s. Some of the rails rallied after reaching the record low prices and a few even scored net gains.

Strength in foreign obligations was ascribed to further improvement in the outlook for Germany. The issues of that nation were generally higher and the movement spread to include Belgian, Norwegian, French, Argentine and Hungarian obligations. Bonds of the latter nation scored some of the largest advances of the whole list. Chilean and Colombian loans were weak.

Public utility and industrial bonds were more narrow in their movements than the foreign and railroad groups. At times both of the former showed declining tendencies, but the majority of closing prices represented slight gains.

Field, Glore & Co. are offering $7,000,000 of first mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds of the New York State Electric & Gas Corporation, due on March 1, 1980, at 99 and interest.

MARBERRY SHUTS OUT WHITE SOX WITH 3 HITS, 3-0

Nats Win Fourth Straight Aided by Faber's Error; West Drives in Two Runs

Special to The Washington Post.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Aug. 11.—With Fred Marberry pitching super ball and holding the Chisox to but three hits, the Nats had no trouble in starting off their final Western invasion with a victory. The score was 3 to 0 and the triumph enabled the Washington team to hold its own with the leading Mackmen, who also won, and to extend its second-place margin over the Yankees, who idled, to four and a half games.

In turning in his thirteenth victory of the season and the Nats' fourth in a row, Marberry never was in trouble and brought his record for the last thee games to fourteen hits and two runs, for he defeated both the Athletics and Red Sox his last two times out, granting seven safeties and a run to the Mackmen and but four and a run to the Beaneaters.

Sox Get Two of Three Hits In Fifth.

The Sox cracked out two of their hits in the fifth, when Watwood opened with a single and Kerr followed suit, only to be nipped trying to stretch the blow into a double. Bluege then held Watwood on third while throwing out Cissell and Marberry ended the round by fanning Grube. This was the nearest the Sox came to scoring. It was their second shutout defeat in a row and ran their string of consecutive scoreless innings to twenty.

Urban (Red) Faber, 43-year-old dean of American League pitchers and the lone spitballer of the circuit, did the flinging for the home team. He granted but seven hits in the eight innings he toiled, but the Nats were able to take advantage of two hits and an errors in the fourth to coin two runs, while two singles and a sacrifice netted another in the sixth. Faber gave way to a pinch-hitter in the eighth and Jim Moore did the flinging in the ninth, one hit being garnered from his slants.

Rice started the scoring for the Nationals when he opened the fourth with a double. He advanced after Reynold's catch of Manush's long fly and tallied when Faber threw badly to home on Cronin's tap. The latter continued on to second on the miscue and West singled him home. Bluege killed the rally by hitting into a double-play.

Nats Score Final Marker In Sixth.

Washington's other run was coined in the sixth, which Manush opened with a one-base drive. He advanced on Cronin's sacrifice and West again came through with a timely drive. This was the last Nat hit of the game off Faber, although Bluege singled and stole off Moore in the ninth.

The Chisox obtained their third and last hit in their half of this round when Sullivan singled with two dead, only to watch Reynolds end the frame via the three-strike route.

West and Manush led the Washington attack, each getting two hits The former had to be satisfied with two singles, but driving in runs, while one of Manush's was a two-bagger. But for the feature catch of the game, by Reynolds in the fourth after a long run to deep right-center, Manush would have had at least another double to his credit.

The game was one of the fastest played here this season, consuming but an hour and 36 minutes. The day was cold and damp and, as a result, only about 8,000 turned out to see the contest.

In tomorrow's second of this four-game series, "Gen." Alvin Crowder and Jim Frazier are to do the flinging for their respective teams. The former gave indications last Sunday in Washington, when he turned in a brilliant relief performance, that he is back in top form, while Frazier has been Donie Bush's most consistent pitcher of late, indicating that quite a mound duel should result.

Cronin and Kuhel divided two errors today. Conin made the first error when he unloosed a poor throw to Kuhel on Grube's grounder in the Sox third, while Kuhel fumbled Cronin's throw when the Washington star fielded Fonseca's roller in the seventh.

Before the game Chicago fans were treated to a new stunt when Messrs. Altrock and Schacht came out on the diamond in football togs to put on a passing attack that would put Amos Alonzo Stagg and his Chicago eleven's famous "flanker play" to shame.

Michigan Sophomore Junior Golf Medalist

Root led a field of 280 youngsters, the largest in the tournament's history. The field was so unwieldy and the course so soggy after an all-night rain that the last finishers came in after dark.

Petrolle's Manager Rebuffed by Solons

New York, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Jack Hurley, manager of Billy Petrolle, Fargo, N. Dak., who meets Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, British Columbia, in their third bout here August 20, today asked the New York State Boxing Commission to enforce rules against illegal blows. Hurley said his charge was a victim of cuffing and backhand hitting in the last bout which McLarnin won.

Commissioners John Phelan and William Muldoon informed Hurley that they were capable of conducting bouts properly.

The commission ruled that wrestling meetings be reduced to one fall instead of the best two of three, and reminded clubs that wrestling programs must be billed as exhibitions instead of as matches.

$75,000 PAID FOR ROOKIE BY GIANTS

Indianapolis Demands Players, Not Cash, for Outfielder.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The New York Giants, among the clubs doing a lot of chasing in this year's major league races without getting anywhere in particular, struck a blow for 1932 today by announcing a $75,000 deal for Leonard Koenecke, slugging outfielder of the Indianapolis American Association Team.

The extraordinary feature of the deal for these baseball times was the statement of James J. Tierney, secretary of the Giants, that the Indianapolis Club, through its president, N. A. Perry, refused payment in cash for Koenecke and insisted on the delivery of players equivalent to the value placed on the outfielder's services.

Koenecke to Join Giants Next Spring.

Koenecke will report to the Giants at Los Angeles next spring, at which time Manager John McGraw will look over his assembled talent and send $75,000 worth to Indianapolis. The number of players to be involved was not specified.

The Giants seemed very well satisfied with the deal for Koenecke, who will come to the club with one of the biggest minor league price tags attached to him since Jimmy O'Connell was purchased from the Pacific Coast League. Twenty-three years ago Giants bought the famous Rube Marquard, southpaw pitcher, from Indianapolis for what was then a record price, $11,000.

Koenecke's performances in hitting .375 in 98 games this season apparently influenced the Giants to take prompt action. The outfielder scored 89 runs, collected 141 hits and batted in 95 runs. Since the deal was closed the Giants were informed Koenecke had helped win three straight games, last Saturday and Sunday, with home runs.

Koenecke plays left field. He came to Indianapolis last year from Quincy (Ill.), of the Three-Eye League, the same circuit from which Joe Vosmik jumped to fame with Cleveland this season. Koenecke was taken over by the Indians while hitting .349, but against "AA" pitching he hit only .250 in 67 games the latter part of last season.

Other First-Flight Teams Strengthening.

The runaway races of the Athletics and Cardinals have prompted most of the other first-division outfits to scour the bushes and shake up the forces—for next year. There is still the mathematical chance that either or both leaders can be overhauled, but that's about all. Most of the battling now is for second, third and fourth money.

The Washington Nationals and Cleveland Indians have put over several deals for new players. The New York Yankees count on a star for 1932 in Frank Crosetti, the young San Francisco shortstop who was

Ruth's Flat Feet Aid His Hitting, Doctor Reveals

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—The secret is out: Flat feet help Babe Ruth hit so many home runs.

The revelation was made by Dr. Roger J. Quick, of Detroit, today when he addressed the twentieth annual convention of the National Association of Chiropodists at the Ambassador Hotel.

"Babe Ruth has a muscular, pudgy, extremely strong type of flat feet," Dr. Quick said. "They give him a very solid stance at the plate and a great springiness, which, combined with his remarkable muscular coordination, are the reasons he is able to swat the ball with such tremendous force."

Dr. Quick has examined Ruth's feet. He was careful to point out that the Babe was born with his flat feet, however, and did not acquire them through mishap to perfect feet.

"Acquired flat feet are extremely painful and call for remedial treatment," he said. "The only kind of flat feet that might be useful are congenital flat feet."

GOLF UPSET ELIMINATES GUILFORD

U. S. Star Routed, 12 and 11, in Canadian Amateur.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 11 (A.P.). Three United States contenders, including the Boston "siege gun," Jesse Guilford, were eliminated in the first round of match play in the Canadian amateur golf championship today.

Guilford, counted upon to furnish strenuous opposition for the defending champion, C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., suffered an unmerciful trouncing by the young Montreal star, Carroll Stuart, and went down by the heavy count of 12 and 11.

While one of his chief rivals thus was being removed from the picture, Somerville, medalist in the qualifying round yesterday, continued his fine play to bury C. E. Fenwick, of Montreal, under a 13 and 11 count.

Two Other U. S. Entrants Eliminated.

In addition to Guilford, two other United States entrants, Jack McCarthy, of Boston, and J. Van Nortwick, of Wheaton, Ill., were beaten today.

Three others, however, advanced to the third round—Arthur (Ducky) Yates, of Rochester, N. Y.; William A. Ryan, of Detroit, and his son, Francis W. Ryan, also of Detroit, and medalist in the qualifying round a year ago.

The thirteen Canadian survivors in addition to Somerville and Stuart, included Phil Farley, of Toronto, Ontario amateur champion; Fred Hoblitzel and Nicol Thompson, of Toronto; F. J. Woods, Victoria; R. Morrison, of Vancouver, and Jack Cameron, T. G. McAthey, R. Costello, jr., H. B. Jacques, Edwin A. Innes and Gordon Taylor, all of Montreal.

Yates, now considered the principal United States threat, eliminated J. W. Yuile, of Montreal, by the convincing score of 11 and 10. Francis Ryan had little more trouble with Carson MacWilliams, of Winnipeg, winning by 7 and 6. William Ryan put out the Ottawa player, Frank Corrigan, 4 and 3.

Wood's Victory Over Nash Surprising.

Hoblitzel, a veteran of Canadian tournament play, accounted for McCarthy's defeat, 6 and 5, while Van Nortwick fell before Morrison's steady play, 2 and 1.

Cameron, Jacques and Innes all had to travel to the thirty-seventh hole to win. Cameron put out F. D. Logan, of Montreal; Jacques eliminated J. Mountfield, Edmonton, and Innes defeated H. Brynjolfson, Victoria.

GROVE GAINS 23D WIN AT DETROIT

Allows 8 Hits, Walks 4 in 8-1 Victory of Mackmen.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Aug. 11.—The Athletics, with "Lefty" Grove on the peak, easily maintained their ten-game first-place margin over Washington by defeating the Detroit Tigers here today, 8 to 1, the victory being the twenty-third to grace the brilliant 1931 record of Grove.

Grove allowed eight hits and walked four batters, in addition to letting loose a wild pitch, but he was much too good for the Bengals in the clinches. He fanned six.

In the first two innings virtually all competition was knocked from the game as the Macks scored six times, twice in the first and four times in the second.

Sorrell Blasted From Hill In Second.

Vic Sorrell, Tiger starting pitcher, was blasted from the hill with one out in the second, after which Charley Sullivan served them up and yielded eight hits the remainder of the route.

Led by Jonathon Stone, who grabbed off hitting honors for his team with three hits in four attempts, the Tigers scored their lone tally in the third inning. Though they kept pecking away at Grove's fast shoots and curves, the home talent simply could not connect when hits meant runs. Grove was ably supported on the defensive by his infield mates who completed three double plays.

Max Bishop, apparently taking a new lease on life after a rest, showed the way to the Mackian clouters with three hits in as many tries. Cramer, Cochrane and Simmons, the latter pair with doubles, all secured two bingles apiece.

Middleweight Title Tourney Sanctioned

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Thomas E. Donohue, chairman of the championships committee of the National Boxing Association, today sanctioned the plan of the Wisconsin Boxing Commission for a world's middleweight championship tournament to select a successor to Mickey Walker, who recently relinquished the title.

Twenty middleweights, including Len Harvey, of England, have been invited to compete in the tournament which will get under way at Milwaukee on August 25. Each entrant will be required to post a $200 forfeit.

Ruth Nearing Record Pace Of 1927

Has Gone About His Work Quietly But Is Only Six Behind.

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (U.P.).—What with all the excitement about the new ball, the five-year plan, Bob Grove's tireless left arm, Ben Chapman's speed on the bases and Post and Gatty, George Herman Ruth has not attracted anywhere near the publicity in 1931 that was his in 1930 and other years.

Yet, the Babe, neglected on the front pages of the Nation, has been going quietly about his business of making 1931 one of the best years of his long and honorable career.

Today the big man with 30 home runs to his credit, is but 6 short of his record pace of 1927, when he slammed an even 60 out of the park. It was just four years ago today that Ruth slapped No. 36 off Tom Zachary, then toiling in the livery of the Washington Nationals.

If by any chance Babe should hit 13 homers during the next 20 days he would move into September with the same number of clouts with which he began the final month in 1927. Then all he would have to do to tie the record would be to repeat his performance of knocking 17 in the final month. Quite a feat, but not an impossible one for a man, who although fair, not fat, but nearing 40, still ranks as one of the game's greatest hitters.

Home runs are not the only thing Babe has hit this season. In fact, he has gathered so many lesser hits that today finds him batting .380 and just a few points out of the American League individual batting lead. This is 6 points better than the mark which brought him the championship in 1924.

Babe Simply Can't Help Giving Best.

There are two very good reasons for Ruth's refusal to let down when the publicity fell off. The first is that the Babe's $80,000 contract runs out this season, and the man craves to have another just as desirable when he reports for spring training in 1932. The second is that Ruth loves baseball and couldn't let down if he wanted to. The man doesn't know the meaning of the word stall. Once out there on the ball field, whether in an exhibition game or world series game, he plays as though his life depended on the outcome. At bat he swings from his spikes, and in the field no ball is too far for him to give chase.

Don Off for U. S. Today For Motorboat Title

London, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Kaye Don, holder of the world's speedboat record, sails on the liner Majestic for America tomorrow, hoping to bring back to England an international racing trophy which so far has defied all British efforts. He meets Gar Wood in Detroit late this month for the first time.

"I know this will be a good race," he said, "and I am looking forward to racing this great American sportsman. I don't know his boat, but I know the maximum speed of Miss England II is about 112 miles per hour." He plans to go on to Toronto and may give an exhibition race there.

Londos-Dusek Restrained By Rain

Grapplers Meet With Referee for Final Instructions.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

AFTER thoroughly establishing his reputation as a man who knew his weather, Joe Turner, stager of some very good and some very bad local mat exhibitions, yesterday bit off an even bushel of the Turnerian fingernails watching a remarkably consistent rain rain raindrops over the landscape, especially that portion of the landscape near home-plate, Griffith Stadium

Thus 24 hours must pass before some fifteen very odd thousand Government clerks, missionaries, chorus girls, social registerites, precinct book registerites U street aristocracy and ninth street gentlemen can lend their varied color and noisy presence at what Mr. Turner and his accomplices are pleased to call the "Battle of the Century."

Just why the former two local meetings between Londos and Dusek, and the time they met in Boston last winter were not honored by any such elegant phraseology remains a puzzle, since all three matches have resulted in Londos' retaining his make-shift title, and in time enough to catch the train for Osawatomie, there to toss the next Curley hireling.

Two Battlers Held Under Restraint.

Held in heavy handcuffs and fetlocked by two old Puritan gallows, Londos and Dusek will be led into the same room this afternoon at the Annapolis Hotel chained to neutral corners and introduced to the man who will assist them in their waltz tonight, one Jim Downing, a man of about 40-odd summers and several hard winters, who is under suspicion because he has frequently been seen in the company of baseball writers.

In a very exclusive interview with Mr. Downing last night, he said that he would permit nothing to happen in the ring tonight which might offend the delicate sensibilities of the two mugs themselves, or the tender risibilities of a fed-up public.

"If either one of them start any monkey business, I think I'm big enough to tear 'em apart," Mr. Downing modestly admitted, but failed to say whether he intended to separate the two men from a clinch, or to single out one of them and perform the gory feat upon him. If Mr. Downing means the latter, he may introduce an element of suspense in tonight's feature bout, someting it very sadly lacks to date.

Necking Weapon Held Legal.

Enlarging upon the subject of Mr. Downing, that gentleman very wisely said last night that Londos' much abused "Japanese neck lock," with which he threw Dusek last time, is no more illegal than sweating. The arm at no time touches the windpipe, and every right-thinking student of wrestling who saw the hold introduced in the Londos-Steel match last month agrees that it is strictly according to Mr. Hoyle's way of thinking.

Dusek will be permitted to use his unethical "Thor-hammers" tonight, but like every other matman who meets Londos probably will not hit him with as much venom as the preliminary boys receive. Slapping with the open hand will, of course, be in vogue.

The Eighth Precinct, in whose bailiwick the match is being staged tonight, or whenever it will be staged, will delegate a flock of policemen to hover in the neighborhood of the ring to see that no such untoward happenings as were produced at the last meeting will accrue. It is sincerely hoped, for the benefit of both fans and rasslers alike, that Capt. Groves, in charge of the precinct, will first incarcerate the two flatheaded cops who started the riot the last time by jumping into the ring when feeling ran high among the ringside morons.

So far only one substitution has been made. Tiny Roebuck was hurt at Richmond Monday night and he will be understudied by Kola Kwarani, the gigantic Russian who once neglected to use herpicide.

Yanks Release Cooke, Outfielder, to Newark

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Allen (Dusty) Cooke, fleet outfielder of the New York Yankees, today was released on option to the Newark Club, of the International League.

Cooke suffered a broken collar bone early this season and was out of the line-up for weeks. He needs regular work now to get in shape again, and Yankee officials sent him to Newark to get it.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

OUR old friend, Mr. Pete Marshall, who has adorned the southeast corner of the sanctum of this sports department for well-nigh 15 years with his mouthings of the superiority of the old-time athletes over the present crop interrupted only by the clicking of the telegraph key at his side and, sometimes not even then, has said his say about the no-hit game of Bobby, Burke last Saturday.

Mr. Marshall, whose sharpshooting at the cuspidor has been detailed before in this column—he operates within a radius of 20 paces—pines again for the days of gleaming spikes and rough and ready disportment on the ball field and puts down the modern output of ball players as a bunch of softies, coddled by the fans and press alike, who should not be mentioned in the same breath with the stars of two decades ago as far as ability is concerned.

"Webb might have struck out purposely or not, but you'd never have seen Cobb or Lajoie or Wagner helping a pitcher along with two out in the ninth. They'd have made him work for that no-hit game," quoth Pete. "Baseball ain't what it used to be." He said more, much more, but this column suspects he's prejudiced.

In Defense of Burke

That Washington fans have resented the implication that Webb's strikeout to end the game was a sportsmanlike gesture is putting it very mildly. Among the letters in defense of the Nats' young southpaw is the following:

"As an interested reader of your column, aside from being a rather regular admirer of the Nats, permit me some words on this no-hit performance of Bobby Burke.

"I saw the whole game. How many other wagging tongues are there that are claiming that Webb purposely struck out. From the remarks, very few. That last strike seemed to come in from right field via first base. I don't believe that Webb thought it possible for it to cross any part of the plate.

Moriarty Saw It

"Moriarty says it did and he was within three feet of it. Having seen Moriarty work here in town for years, I have yet to see him give the Washington club a close decision. How about that game Sunday, August 2, when he called three successive close plays against us when we were beating the A's. If the Washington club had to rely on breaks coming from Moriarty to win ball games we would be at the bottom of the league.

"Therefore to have this one called a strike is proof enough that it was a strike. So much for that. The other point; was Webb trying? You can bet your boots he was. Burke had him silly the whole game. Two strikeouts, a pop to Kuhel, a lazy looper to West—and Webb one of the best hitters in the circuit. I tell you Burke had him handcuffed.

Torture to Behold

"As for the game itself—it was one of those listless affairs (up to the eighth inning). But when a no-hit performance was looming before my eyes in the closing innings—it was torture to behold. You couldn't do anything about it—any batter liable to break the spell, and Burke a little wild, running the count to three balls on almost every batter.

"My dear man, I have been on a freighter 1,000 miles at sea—steering engine busted with swells running over the stacks in a squall. I had a three-foot putt to beat Maurice McCarthy in a tournament. I have had the nurse announce twins to me. But never before have I had the suspense, in fact agony, of hoping for the last man to go out in a no-hit, no-run affair. I wouldn't have missed it for anything. But you can have my seat for any future ones."

Travel Called Best Schooling For Tennis by British Star

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—There being little else to do but talk, play in the Eastern turf court tennis championships having been washed out by rain, Frederick J. Perry, rising young star of the English Davis Cup Team, was asked the best way to learn to play top-flight tennis.

"Travel," said Perry, who started out as a ping-pong player and then learned his tennis on the courts of London's public parks.

He said he thought competition against players from North and South America and European stars in the last two years—meeting all styles of play—had improved his own game beyond the point he would have attained in playing familiar English competitors.

Perry will meet his first real test of the tournament tomorrow in the third round when he meets Bryan Grant, Atlanta.

The rain today threw the tournament into confusion, disrupting plans to hurry the women through so they might have some rest before the championships beginning August 17.

Plans of the tournament committee are to complete quarter finals in women's singles tomorrow and, if possible, to get the field in men's singles out to the quarter-finals if weather permits.

Schaaf Stops Kansas Heavy After Three Knockdowns

BOSTON, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Ernie Schaaf's lightning right fist gave him a five-round knockout over Angus Snyder, rugged Dodge City, Kans., battler, tonight in the Boston Garden's feature contest, scheduled for ten rounds. Schaaf weighed 208 and the Kansan scaled an even 200.

The Boston battler dropped Snyder three times in the fifth. He was trying to pull himself upright when Referee Johnny Martin stopped the bout.

A terrific right hook, a direct hit to the jaw, crashed Snyder to the canvas for the first time. He was up at nine, reeling, and another right dropped him for another long count. The courageous Snyder, however, again struggled to his feet, only to sink again under Schaaf's furious barrage on his unprotected head.

Snyder gamely tried to regain his feet. As he sprawled about the ring, the referee waved the eager Schaaf to his corner and ordered Red Snyder's handlers to come in and assist him.

Schaaf, who has scored speedy knockouts over several opponents, including two against Jimmy Maloney, opened the contest by battering the Kansan's body with both hands. When Snyder tried to hold on in the second, the Boston sailor shifted his attack to the head, scoring several hard lefts that forced Snyder back against the ropes.

PITTSBURGHER RETURNS TO RACES WITH WIN AT HAWTHORNE

Mueller Colt Pays $16.08 To Win

My Dandy Is Second, 3 Lengths Back, in Feature.

Karl Eitel Gets Up in Time to Get Third Place Money.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Pittsburgher, the big bay colt that disappointed numerous supporters in the 3-year-old stakes of the early season, returned to competition impressively today after a month's absence to win the Cascades Purse at 6 furlongs at Hawthorne.

The big colt came from far back in the stretch to carry the silks of T. E. Mueller to a three lengths' victory in 1:15 2-5 over a track deep in mud after overnight rains. The Reichert Brothers' My Dandy, the leader into the stretch, was second, with J. J. Coughlin's Karl Eitel third. Pittsburgher paid $16.08 to win.

Mexico Nose Winner in Spa Feature.

Saratoga Springs Race Track, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Saratoga Sales Stakes, for 2-year-olds, which were sold at public auction here one year ago, headed a good card this afternoon and provided plenty of excitement. S. W. Labrot's Mexico reached the wire a nose winner over the Fair Stable's Makalu, 7-to-5 choice, with J. H. Louchheim's Try Some third. Fator, who rode Makalu, lodged a claim of foul against the winner, but after lengthy consideration the result stood.

Mack Garner, who was astride Mexico, rode Fator close in the stretch and the interference may have cost the favorite the purse. Mexico was sold last August for $3,000, while Makalu brought $9,100. Try Some sold for $2,600.

The highest priced starter was William Ziegler jr.'s Americana, which cost $18,000. This colt was off last in a poor start and finished in the same place. Seven started and the race was worth $4,300 and a $500 cup, presented by the Fasig-Tipton Co., to the winner. Mexico ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 and paid 7 to 2.

Makalu Forced to Rail At Stretch Turn.

Makalu broke on top and led by a length, saving ground on the inside to the stretch. Mexico was rated in second position, while Wise Money kept close up to 4 furlongs. Try Some made up ground last after turning for home, but never threatened the two leaders, being beaten three lengths. Mexico set sail for Makalu when straightened out and swerved over. The final drive saw Fator crowded in close to the rail and unable to do justice to Makalu.

$50,000 Bid Refused For Burning Blaze

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Richard and Patrick Nash, owners of the Valley Lake Stable, have refused an offer of $50,000 for their 2-year-old colt, Burning Blaze. Burning Blaze became one of the choice juveniles of the season when he conquered the best 2-year-old prize of the East, the $40,000 Post and Paddock Stake at Arlington Park.

—Hawthorne Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 12.—With the racing strip in a sloppy condition, the card at Hawthorne tomorrow will be contested by the cheaper grade platers. The Calumet Purse, an allowance affair, for 3-year-olds and upward, a test over the mile and a sixteenth route, will prove the feature attraction. This event received a list of six evenly matched mudrunners to contest the $1,500 purse.

Of those named to start in the headliner, MUCKER, a superior mudder, appears well suited by the conditions, and lightly weighted with 104 pounds, figures to annex the main event. SUITOR, from the E. Lehmann Stable, has displayed ability to negotiate heavy going and should furnish stern opposition. CAMP PRINCE has been freshened up since his last start and may share in the purse.

FIRST RACE—RUFFIAN is selected to graduate from the field in this race. The H. M. Woolf youngster has shown improvement in recent efforts and should score over this band of nonwinners. SWITCH finished behind the top on last outing and should go as well here. ZINA appears best of the others.

SECOND RACE—BLACK IVORY will favor the route and should gain the honors. BUGS LEARY has shown speed in sprints and may falter at the added distance. However, the A. Sabbath color bearer is favored to force the pace, with DUSKY BOY, a likely improver, given the show call.

THIRD RACE—MARTHA JONES should hold her opposition safe. SISTER MARY has trained well and is the one to fear. UNCLE HENRY stepped five furlongs in 1:01 1-5 as a final test and off his recent effort may upset the calculations.

FOURTH RACE — POTDEN has shown the most consistent form of the nine named to start and should carry his 116-pound impost to victory. SUN'S SON has raced with the leading 2-year-olds and in his present form will be hard to beat. MAD WIND has displayed mud-running ability and is favored for the minor award.

SIXTH RACE—THE SOUTHERNER raced forwardly in his last race, and on that effort is favored to lead THEORIST JANE to the wire. The latter turned in a splendid effort recently and should furnish stern opposition. BLUE LAW, from the Joliet Stable, is rounding to form and should finish in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—TIGER FLOWERS, a recent winner at this track, has the speed of this group and should splash his way to victory.. ORMONTIME showed a clever performance the other day and under the conditions is the one to fear. SHOW DOWN, a steady plater from the Mrs. Swikard string, is favored for the show.

Harvest Day Friday On Alex. Playgrounds

Alexandria, Va., Aug. 11.—Harvest Day will be observed on the Alexandria playgrounds, Friday August 14, it was announced today by J. Prex Wilson, director of the local playground system.

"I am arranging an elaborate program. Swimming races will feature in the morning, while in the afternoon, tennis, baseball and track events will be run-off for the entertainment of the youngsters attending the various playgrounds," declared Wilson today.

The third annual municipal tennis tourney will begin this afternoon. Walter Nickling and Roland Goode will play in the first match.

Art Ludlow, coach of the Celtics, will have his club taking part in several important work-outs this week to be set for Sunday's tussle with the Red Sox.

The Celtics' leader is anxious to make up for the poor showing of his charges in their past two performances.

THE WHIG came fast on the outside in stretch and got up to be second in last stride. SIMPLE SINGER could not keep up with the early leaders, but raced fairly well. BAND TIME quit in the long stretch run. CRYSTAL PRINCE and PLAYING appeared to dislike the going.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BARON KING, $18.52, $8.22, $5.24; NUSAKAN, $5.20, $4.28; CROFTON, $5.74.

BARON KING, showing great improvement in the muddy going, was well placed in the early stages and, coming strongly in the stretch to catch NUSAKAN, was slowly drawing away at the finish. NUSAKAN went to the front soon after the start and raced well in the going, but could not resist the winner. CROFTON, although not partial to the track, closed with courage on the outside. THE OKAH was a prime at the finish. ROMANY BAW was done after going six furlongs. AQUAPLANE and THOMAS SETH also tired. COMMON SENSE, FOX BOLT and FORTUNE'S FAVORITE were off slowly.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:18½. Off at 3:19. Winner, Mrs. R. GUIDE RIGHT followed REVERBERATE under restraint in the early part and, going to the front when ready approaching the stretch turn, drew into a long lead in the run home and scored an easy win. CHIP came on the outside to get up for second ground in the last quarter. PORT O' PLAY also closed a gap and got up to be third in last stride. REVERBERATE weakened in the run home. The others were never dangerous.

PITTSBURGHER was outrun for half the distance, then came fast on the outside to wear down the early leaders in the stretch and win going away. MY DANDY, racing well, drew up on even terms with DON LEON after going half the distance and, taking a short lead, held the others. KARL EITEL raced well to the end. ESKIMO could never get to the leaders. DON LEON acted badly at the barrier, but broke well and set the pace, only to stop badly in the final furlong. HOT SHOT tired badly.

$7,000 IS TOP PRICE AT SALES

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The annual yearling sales, conducted by the Fasig-Tipton Co., got under way tonight with 44 potential racing champions bringing a total of $36,550.

Top price of the evening was paid by William Ziegler, jr., who bid $7,000 for a handsome brown son of Flying Ebony and Heel Taps, included in the Shandon Stud, Inc., consignment. The colt is a full brother to Flying Heels, winner of the Tia Juana and Pimlico Futurities and now a consistent performer for John J. Curtis. Heel Taps, the dam, won seventeen races during her racing career.

The next highest price was $2,600, paid by John J. Curtis for another colt from the Shandon consignment, a son of Flying Ebony and Bragnet. Curtis also paid $550 to the R. T. Wilson estate for a chestnut filly by Olambala—Grace Foster.

The average price for the evening was $830. The Shandon Stud, Inc. (estate of G. A. Cochran), consigned sixteen head which were sold for $23,550, the average of $1,472 being the best of this evening's offerings.

The Swingalong Stud, Inc., and Tollie Young offered fifteen youngsters which drew $10,750, an average of $716. The R. T. Wilson estate sold 12 head for $2,150, an average of $179. T. J. Smith sold one yearling for $100.

Jockey Kurtsinger Breaks Collarbone

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Charlie Kurtsinger, who has ridden the Greentree Stable's Twenty Grand in all of the colt's races this year, suffered a broken collar-bone while exercising one of the stable's 2-year-olds this morning. He was tossed to the ground when the colt bolted.

He probably will be out of the saddle for at least three weeks, during which time Twenty Grand is slated to start in the Travers.

Vanderbilt's Weetamoe Wins Race at Newport

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11 (U.P.).—Harold Vanderbilt, at the helm of the Weetamoe, again defeated Gerald D. Lambert's Vanitie today in the feature race of the day under auspices of the Narragansett Bay Regatta Association and the Ida Lewis Yacht Club.

Vanderbilt came through to victory after trailing the 16-year-old sloop for 20 of the 30 miles. The win makes Weetamoe the favorite for the Arthur Curtis James Trophy. By virtue of her victory in the M Class, the Istalena, owned by Chandler Hovey, of Marblehead, made almost certain her claim to the William H. Vanderbilt Cup.

Mate Faces Big Task In the Saranac Today

It was the original intention of big Jim Healey, trainer of the Bostwick colt, not to start the son of Prince Pal until the Kenner, August 18, but he finally decided that a mile race, such as the Saranac, would be a good conditioner.

Mate will not face an easy task as he has been assigned 127 pounds and will give from 9 to 25 pounds to his rivals, which include: C. V. Whitney's Halcyon, J. E. Widner's Novelist, the Greentree Stable's Surfboard, the Glen Riddle Farms' Great Gun, the Alton Stable's A La Carte, Mrs. Charles Amory's Backgammon and the Belair Stud's Sir Ashley.

Harry M. Armstrong, fish and game commissioner of Jersey City, N. J., found his rat-cat along Cohausie Creek, which empties into Delaware Bay. The region in which the animal lived is the home of many muskrats, and Armstrong believes that the cat's unusual tail is the result of cross-breeding. The tail, he says, is truly that of a muskrat.

STAUBLY, WELSH ADVANCE AT MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK NETS

District Aces Enter Third Round

Work Features Play as 40 Matches Are Decided.

Miss Cochrane Cops First Match in Women's Play.

Special to The Washington Post.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 11.—Chill air and frequently threatening skies greeted contestants in the second day's play of the twelfth annual Western Maryland net championships at the Women's Civic Club here this morning and afternoon but, despite mildly adverse conditions, 40 men's singles matches were disposed of to advance the competition well along in the quarter-finals.

Two Washington, D. C. stars featured today's session. Alan Staubly, George Washington University driver, and Barnard Welsh, Rockville, Md., and Duke University stylist, registered impressive wins to enter the third frame.

Staubly accounted for Bob Allen, Elkins High School lad, 6—1, 6—4, and a bit afterward fought through a hard baseline duel to trim Wally Arnsberg, Harvard and Pittsburgh Athletic Association ace and second seeded player, 6—3, 6—4.

Burwell and Hoffecker Default.

Welsh then took on Roy Jones, Norfolk and Washington luminary and sliced, drove and volleyed to 7—5, 6—2. Bob Burnwell and Elwood Hoffecker, other Washingtonians, defaulted to Billy O'Loughlin and Arnsberg, respectively, while Gene O'Brien, Allen Ferry and Al Perkins, likewise of the Capital, proved straight set first round victims.

Betty Cochrane opened fire for Washington in women's singles by overwhelming Ann Walsh, local section entrant, 6—0, 6—2. Frances Walker and Maycita Desouza will break into action tomorrow.

D. C. ENTRIES WIN IN BOYS' TOURNEY

McLean, Hunt Score Easily in National Tennis Play.

Special to The Washington Post.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 11.—Both Jock McLean and Gilbert Hunt, Washington entries in the national boy tennis championships being staged on the Culver Military Academy courts this week, won their second-round singles match today.

Young McLean striking beautifully and playing with consummate ease, romped over Robert Becker, Hammond, Ind., 6—0, 6—1. Jock had his flat ground strokes well under control throughout the match, driving from one side of the court to the other until the sheer force of his shot caused Becker to error. Occasionally McLean sauntered in to the net to angle off a weak return with a crisp volley.

Hunt had even an easier opponent in his match today, trimming Robert Lipman, Drexel Hill, Pa., 6—0, 6—0. Lipman was no match for Hunt in any department of play and was equally at loss with Hunt in the back court or at the net. Hunt was driving fast and accurately throughout the engagement and ran off the twelve straight games for the match in almost record time.

McLean to Meet Hollywood Youth.

In tomorrow's matches McLean, seeded third in the boys' draw, meets Ned Russell, Hollywood, Calif., who advanced to the third round by two defaults. Since only Frankie Parker, Milwaukee boy marvel, and Gene Mako, Los Angeles, are seeded above McLean, the latter should have no trouble with Russell. Hunt, seeded fifth, is bracketed with Richard Burns, of Indianapolis, tomorrow in his third-round match. Play in the doubles starts tomorrow morning.

Billy Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., junior flash, and brother of the national senior champion, struck his true stride today in the third round of the junior end of the tournament, when he disposed of Burtz Bulfare, Tallahassee, Fla., 6—1, 6—1.

Ramsey Donovan, New York City junior, who is felt to be Doeg's chief rival in the tournament, dropped a set to Earl Tetting, Milwaukee, before advancing to the fourth round today. Donovan dropped the opener, 4—6, but raced through the remaining two sets by the margin of 6—0, 6—1.

YESTERDAY'S PITCHING HEROES

Fred Marberry scored his thirteenth victory of the season against two defeats when he shut the White Sox out, 3 to 0, with three hits, giving him a record of only two runs and fourteen hits allowed in his last three games. Lefty Grove (inset), registered his twenty-third win of the season against two defeats when he held the Tigers to eight hits as the Athletics won, 8 to 1.

NO ACTION IS PLANNED BY "C" CLUB

Body to Take No Steps in Naming Successor to Rauber.

THE C Club of Central High, whose rule over the athletic policies of the school has long been felt to border on a literal monarchy, will have nothing to say in the matter of appointing a football coach to fill the vacancy left Monday by the resignation of Ty Rauber.

President George M. Norris last night stated that he contemplated calling no special meeting of the influential club with a possible view to recommending to the school authorities the name of a capable coach. The choice of a coach, Mr. Norris said, would be left entirely up to Principal Smith.

Coggins May De Most Of Coaching.

Another member of the C Club stated last night that, if Burt Coggins is appointed football coach, it is probable that he also will be named baseball coach the following spring. These new duties will be added to the basket ball mentoring job Coggins has held at Central for several years.

This doubling and trebling up of coaching jobs will conform to a C Club contention that Central had too many coaches. On the coaching staff for the last several years were G. Harris White, Coggins, Rauber and Bill Foley. White, while officially athletic director of the public high schools, conducted a class in physical culture at Central. Foley is the school's veteran track coach.

At the Franklin Administration Building yesterday it was said that Coach Rauber's resignation had been received and that it would be passed on at the next meeting of the Board of Education, scheduled for September 2.

Named Central Sports Head In 1927.

Burt Coggins came to Central in 1923, and succeeded G. Harris White as the school's director of athletics in 1927. He has coached only basketball and has produced several top-notch teams, his last squad sharing the high school championship with Eastern.

Coggins has never coached football or baseball. While attending Tech High and Maryland University he did not play football and played little or no baseball.

DIAMOND DUST
FROM THE SANDLOTS

WITH the noble aspiration of winning more games than did their predecessors, the current Spengler Post Nine, American League champions, left last night for Clarksburg, W. Va., where they play in the Legion's regional finals starts tomorrow.

With the team went Germley, Morgal, Wiles, Bieber, Burdett, Chacanos, Battista, Cullins, Darmstead, Ford and Baur, who were part of the 1930 team.

An active day lies ahead of the local boys this morning. They were to be met by Myer Seigel, commander of the Roy Parrish Post at Clarksburg, with a real honest-to-goodness brass band, including a zoom zoom. The rest of the morning will be given over to sightseeing, but this afternoon's schedule calls for a practice session at the Clarksburg Stadium, scene of the sectional finals.

Play will continue through Friday, with the final game being slated for Saturday. The winner will be declared Eastern champion and compete later in the year in the U. S. American Legion championship.

The Skinker Bros. Eagles and the Eldbrooke M. E. Nines have postponed until next Wednesday the game they were scheduled to play today. The Eagles would like to book a foe for Saturday. Call Manager Clipper at Emerson 7474.

The Sterling Seniors, who won five straight games in the Capital City League before a protest on the part of the Acme Nine put an end to their streak, have reorganized and are looking for Sunday games with senior teams for the rest of the season.

The following players are asked to get in touch with Capt. Lewis, at Taylor's Lunch Room: Diggs, Lewis, Palmer, Gibson, Watts, Otis, Bragg, Peragany, Stanford, Phillips and Shoop. These players have been in the same lineup since they participated in Insect games.

The Marion A. C. wants a game with the Mount Rainier Nine and also the Marlboro A. C. Call Frank Parlon, at Lincoln 9606.

The Chevy Chase Grays want a game for Saturday with an unlimited team to be played on the hevy Chase field. Call Wisconsin 2478.

The City View Heights Nine is still looking for that game for Sunday. Call Manager Norris, at Lincoln 7730-W.

Will the manager of the Ballston A. C. call Lincoln 5233 regarding next Sunday's game with the Isherwood A. C.?

4 NET EVENTS REMAIN ON D. C. LIST

Invitation Tourneys at Wardman and G. U. Scheduled.

FOUR important events remain on the city's waning tennis schedule, two tournaments, an intercity team match and the team championship of the District. The tournaments are the annual Wardman Park Hotel invitation men's singles and doubles and the proposed invitation tournament which Georgetown University will hold to open the Hoya courts. The other two events are the annual match between Washington and Baltimore and the annual play for the team championship of the city.

The Wardman tournament last year was largely instrumental in deciding the order of ranking the local players. Bob Considine clinched No. 1 berth by nosing out Dooly Mitchell in a five-set match, when, had he lost, it was felt that Mitchell would have ascended to the top-ranking local net post.

Tourney Will Follow Return of Tilden.

It is planned to stage the tournament about the middle of next month. It will start the day following the return engagement of Tilden's tennis tours, in which Big Bill Tilden will meet Albert Burke, European professional.

The Georgetown tournament is still in the laboratory stage. Suffice to say that there will be more than enough courts on which to hold a large tournament. Workmen have completed five of the ten courts authorized by school officials last spring. The strip of ten courts will be erected on the old Freshman Field and will be ready in another month. It is planned to have several exhibition matches to augment the tournament.

Only one match will be held between Baltimore and Washington this year. The city has not entered in the Intercity Tennis League, made up of Philadelphia and Baltimore. However, the annual play for the Bachrach-Rason Trophy, consisting of ten singles and five doubles matches, will be held at a date yet to be set by the Washington Public Parks Assocaltion.

Columbia to Stage Team Tourney.

It is planned to hold the team championship of the city at Columbia Country Club this year. The annual play brings together the winning teams of the Public Parks the Country Club, the Suburban, the Bankers and the Capital City Leagues. Henry Park, of the Public Parks League, is the defending champion.

Edgemoor is champion of the country clubs; Federal American Bank won the Bankers League last week; Bureau of Standards ran away with the Suburban League, and Edgewood has matters pretty well under control in the Capital City League. Henry is trailing Potomac in the Public Parks League, and will not know its fate until it meets the league leaders August 29 at the Tidal Basin courts.

BOAT RACES SEPT. 12-13.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The eastern division outboard motorboat championships have been awarded to Middletown, Conn., to be held September 12 and 13, the National Outboard Association announced today.

The winners of these championships will be sent to the national championship meet at Oakland, Calif., in October.

D. C. Woman Archer Fifth in Title Event

Special to The Washington Post.

Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Josephine Taylor, Washington, D. C., held fourth place tonight in the first Columbia round of the fifty-first annual championship tournament of the National Archery Association, and was in fifth place in the first national round. Her scores were: 72-462 and 59-313. In the first York round, N. S. Williams was in sixteenth place with 87-38.

W. O. Robinson shot 57-229; G. R. Debruler, 58-220.

Mrs. Cummings scored 70 hits for a total of 426. The former record was established in 1895 by Mrs. M. C. Howell, of Cincinnati, 68—398.

Cloudy skies that threatened rain at the opening of the shoot on the grounds of the Canandaigua Country Club cleared in time for the program to go on. In the first Hereford round at 80 yards, Edward S. Hodgson, jr., of East St. Louis, Ill., scored 50—168.

Manor Women Golfers Beat Washington Club

Manor Golf Club's women's team yesterday defeated the women's aggregation of the Washington Golf and Country Club, 5½ to 3, upon the rain-soaked Manor course.

Manor took the lead in the second foursome, in which Mrs. J. T. Powell and Mrs. H. Simons scored three points to none for Mrs. W. Draper and Mrs. J. McCabe. Manor clinched the match in the third foursome, when Mrs. Mack Meyer and Mrs. R. H. Calhoun scored two and one-half points to one-half a point for the team of Mrs. J. M. Sutton and Mrs. J. M. Jester.

Washington got off to a good start in the first foursome when Mrs. J. L. Felser and Mrs. C. B. Stewart scored three points against Mrs. E. M. McClelland and Mrs. H. B. Hird.

Play in local women's golf will continue today, with Columbia meeting Inlian Spring at Columbia, starting at 9 o'cock.

Commerce and Repair Shop Hope to Resume Play Today

Respite Makes Pitcher Riley Again Available for Clerks in Second Series Game; League Plans to Delay City Series.

YESTERDAY'S rain again thwarted the attempt of the D. C. Repair Shop and Commerce to play the second game of their three-game series to decide the championship of the Departmental Baseball League. The contest, weather permitting, will be played at 5:15 today on the East Ellipse, or tomorrow, at the same time if the diamond is unplayable today.

With one victory already in the bag, Commerce's chance of adding its second victory, and thereby the championship, took a slight jump yesterday because of the rain. The day's postponement is held to give Leon Riley, their pitching ace, some more much-needed rest, after his labors in the opening game of the series, when he stopped the Repairmen 5-4.

Dick Lanahan was definitely chosen yesterday by Manager Seitz, of the Repairmen, as the twirler upon whom he will depend to even up the count with Commerce. Lanahan, justly rated one of the best young pitching products in the city, is in good form and has many backers who will lay the long green on the line.

Rain, and the strange conduct of the officials of the Government League, promises to toss a monkey wrench in the plans to hold the city series beginning August 24. In the first place, the downpours have twice postponed league games and threaten to do so hereafter, and secondly comes the action of the Government League in deciding to play out its schedule, regardless of whether a winner may be named, statistically, beforehand.

The regular Government League schedule ends August 20, but it is manifest that the title hangs between G. P. O. and the Naval Hospital. G. P. O. took the first half of the league play and Naval Hospital needs but one victory to clinch the second half. But league officials have ruled that all games be played out. The almost certain playoff for the league championship, between Naval Hospital and G. P. O. will probably run past August 24.

Champs of Two Leagues Decided.

So far two leagues have designated champions to compete in the city series. In the Georgetown Church League Eldbrooke M. E. has come out on top, while Constructioneers are No. 1 in the Industrial League.

If Commerce wins today another league will have its league play out of the way, but if D. C. Repair Shop, which is the defending champion, comes through a third game will be necessary. This will be played Friday.

Hackney Retains Title In Philadelphia Open

Oreland, Pa., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City, retained the Philadelphia open golf championship title today by carding 147 over the 36-hole play to lead the field by three stokes.

Big Ed Dudley, Western open champion, who was struck by lightning yesterday while putting on the thirty-fourth hole, tied with three others at 150 for second place. Al Nelson, of Yardley; Ralph Beach, of Baltimore, and Ralph Hutchinson, of Concord, were coholders of the place.

Ralph Beach, of the Suburban Club of Pikesville, Md., was the only player from the Baltimore-Washington district to finish in the money. Beach scored 76, 74—150; Glenn Spencer, of Baltimore, carded 75, 78—153; Cliff Spencer, 79, 77—156; Kenneth Allen, Baltimore, 80, 76—156; Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, 78, 79—157, and C. T. McMasters, Baltimore, 86, 81—167.

ON THE SIDELINES
by BRIAN BELL

MAYBE the veteran Connie Mack has a right to demand a retraction of the charges that he had only a three or four man ball team. Out so far in front it seems impossible to overhaul him, Mr. McGillicuddy has not pursued the even tenor of his way without the usual crop of injuries.

True, his three-man pitching staff, Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg, has been able to function without injury, but the great trio seems to have had some help from Mahaffey, McDonald and Hoyt.

But the infield has been "shot" several times. With Dykes and Boley both out of the line-up the tall tactician reached into his hat and pulled out Eric McNair and Bib Williams and the White Elephants just kept on rolling along. And when Mule Haas was injured young Cramer picked up the Mule's glove and his bat.

THAT HANDY TODT.

The sage of Germantown also seems to have been wide awake when he took Phil Todt under his wing when the Boston Red Sox asked waivers on the first baseman. He needed a substitute for Jimmy Foxx, but he knew also that Foxx, of the Maryland double Foxxes, could play third base and the outfield, if he could be spared at first base.

On occasion Connie has slipped Todt into the game to permit Jimmy's moving over to third or into right field. And at least once Philip responded with a home run which won a ball game.

Todt for several years has had no striking superior as a fielding first sacker, but he has not been so potent with the bat as major league managers in this day and time demand. He has not broken any batting records in the uniform of the Athletics, but his hitting often has been timely and hard. He is the type who is dangerous, for when he hits it may be "for two or three or four."

And day in and day out he can field around first base with the best in either major league.

FOE OF CONCEIT.

Jimmy Rogers, 14-year-old son of the comedian, is coming fast as a polo player, and some of his enthusiastic friends on the Pacific Coast suggested that he should have a two-goal handicap. His father objected, with the remark that he was far too young to have a polo handicap. "Plenty of time for that later on," said the elder Rogers.

Will's friends could not understand the lack of enthusiasm and urged him to reconsider. It would be a fine thing for the young boy to have a two-goal handicap, they said. Will replied it might be fine for the boy, which he doubted, but there were other things to be considered. He finally put his foot down flatly against any further agitation.

Pressed for his reasons, he said at last:

"You must remember I have to live with him."

And this, too, may account in part for Jimmy's ability on the back of a polo pony.

A CANE TOTER, NO LESS.

There may be some question as to who is the wrestling champion, but Wladek Cyganiewiecz Zbyszko will take on all comers in a contest for sartorial perfection. The giant Pole is the Johnny Farrell and Walter Hagen of the wrestling game.

Wladek's cane and spats created a mild furore when he appeared on the streets of Los Angeles before a bout. Canes are not standard equipment in southern California. Exceptions are made in such cases as Jimmie Walker and Grover Whalen, but less brave men do not wear their canes. The big Pole, however, chose to defend his "best-dressed" laurels with the cane; and in the language of the mat, "got away with it."

Elkton Ring May Show Pugilistic Top-Notchers

Elkton, Md., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A series of boxing exhibitions by some of the country's leading fighters is planned for Hill Top Farm, home of J. Ben Decker, by former United States Marshal Frank P. Mathues.

Mathues has a summer home on the Elk River near here and has conducted horse shows and shooting tournaments for the Union Hospital and the Cecil County Welfare Association. He said he would invite Jack Dempsey to referee, and Schmeling, Sharkey, Carnera, Loughran and other top-notchers to participate in a series of exhibitions for the benefit of the two organizations.

Ex-Navy Athlete, Coach Passes Away

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 11.—James J. Dougherty, 46 years old, one-time champion lightweight pugilist of the Navy, football player of the fleet, and well known in college and athletic circles generally, died at his home at Eastport near Annapolis, late last night from a heart attack and hemorrhages.

Better known among his friends as "Doc," Dougherty was a petty officer in the Navy, from which he resigned nearly twenty years ago. For the last three years he had been assistant coach of football and coach of the boxing team at St. John's College here. Prior to then, he was assistant coach of the "B" football squad at the Naval Academy and had charge of athletic equipment of the midshipmen.

Dougherty is survived by a widow, who was his second wife, of Eastport, near Annapolis, and three children by a former marriage living at Newark, N. J.

CIRCUS TROUP GETS 2 ADDITIONAL DAYS FOR REPLY TO WRIT

BELIEVES FOOD SUPPLY MAY PROVE SUFFICIENT

Lay In New Stores With Aid of American Legion and Other Friends.

Washington will be a circus town for at least two days more. Justice Joseph W. Cox, in District Supreme Court yesterday, ruled that employes of the stranded 101 Ranch Wild West Show may have until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to counter efforts to enjoin them from detaining the show here.

Norman B. Landreau, counsel for the 392 circus hands, told the court it would take that long to prepare an answer to the petition filed by the man who holds a mortgage on the circus, for an injunction permitting return of the show to Oklahoma winter quarters.

"From the standpoint of the public," said Justice Cox, "it is not a very pleasant thing to see these people dumped out without funds. These people are honest. They're just hard up."

Enough Food on Hand.

Meanwhile Mat Carroll, steward for the circus, and Jack Brown, head cowboy, took stock of foodstuffs remaining for circus hands and stock to see if enough is in sight "to carry them over."

With the aid of the American Legion and numerous friendly merchants, they think they can do it. After buying some 200 pounds of frankfurters for yesterday's larder, and another 200 pounds of beef for today, not to speak of such incidentals as sugar, coffee and flour, Edward Kelly, a member of the Legion's special relief committee, announced there is still about $70 in cash on hand from funds donated.

Fred Fraser, newly elected department commander, said when that is gone the Legion will find means of procuring more. Several business houses have cooperated, the General Baking Co. donating 200 loaves of bread a day, Loeffler's, generous supplies of meat, and Simpson's Dairy, milk and dairy products.

Attorney Makes Charge.

Attorney Landreau, representing four employes named in the petition for injunction, charged in his formal response yesterday that the holding company formed to run the show business of Zach T. Miller's famous ranch, had "further purpose of fraudulently depriving and defeating the employes of their just wages."

Representing W. E. Rice, successor trustee of the Miller Brothers' 101 Ranch trust, Attorney Harry Barger told Justice Cox the employes "are simply acting in an arbitrary manner." He added that presence of the outfit, without support, is a hardship to the city.

Justice Cox particularly inquired about the welfare of the animals with the show, before fixing tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock as the date for hearing on the injunction proceeding. Jack Brown assured him they will not suffer for want of food.

CATHOLIC U. PLANS EXPANSION TASK TO COST $20,000,000

CLERGY AND HIERARCHY TO BEAR BRUNT OF JOB

Greater Part of Fund Will Go to Departments Now Functioning.

Detailed plans for the expansion of most of the existing departments of the Catholic University of America and the creation of several new ones were announced yesterday by officials of the university following the action of a special committee of the hierarchy of the Catholic Church meeting in Atlantic City. The action calls for the expenditure of approximately $20,000,000 before 1940.

Of this amount $1,686,000 is expected to be raised by June, 1932. The immediate program will be accomplished without any general appeal, it being decided by the committees that under the existing economic conditions no campaign of any kind would be undertaken.

A large portion of the fund will be raised by the clergy and hierarchy themselves. At the present time the university collections from parishes all over America amount to something like $250,000 annually. Under plans which were discussed by the committees and adopted this amount will be raised from that sum to $600,000 or $800,000 annually.

Division of Budget.

The committees pledged $1,686,210 for the coming year's budget. Approximate division of this sum will call for $170,000 for increase in professorial staff, including additions to teaching staff and salary increases; for the replacement of worn-out equipment $350,000 will be expended, and $981,000 for the retirement of temporary financed debts.

While approximately ten new departments ultimately will be added to the existing departments, it was said that the greater part of the $20,000,000 would be used to strengthen and to improve departments now functioning.

Departments scheduled to be created within the near future as sketched by the rector of the university, the Right Rev. James Hugh Ryan, and subject to change after a special council meets, include geography, Spanish American relations, political science and botany.

Five New Fellowships.

Five graduate fellowships will also be created under the new financial plan within the immediate future. Plans now under way will call for the remodeling of the model elementary school, and the library fund will be increased by $500,000.

Within the near future $1,000,000 will be spent for a new school of engineering building, a new recitation building for the graduate school and a new law school building.

In addition to these improvements, an archeological research fund will be created for carrying on research in American and foreign countries.

A special committee for the bishops, clergy, and laity fund will undertake to raise $1,000,000 in special gifts by June, 1932, and this sum, with the annual collection in November, will meet urgent needs of the university. The Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, Archbishop of Cincinnati, is chairman of this committee, aided by the Rt. Rev. John J. Murry, Bishop of Portland, Me., as vice chairman.

The Catholic University was founded in 1889 and placed under the control of American hierarchy by Pope Leo XIII. At the present time, with its 32 affiliated colleges on the campus, it has a student enrollment of approximately 2,500.

Policeman Arrested As Seller of Liquor

Alleged to have six times sold liquor to prohibition officers and police informers, Traffic Policeman Arnold Frederick Krueger was last night charged with illegal possession of liquor and suspended from duty.

Lieut. J. E. Bobo and Sergt. B. F. McAllister, of the First Inspection District, accompanied by Sergt. N. O. Holmes, of the headquarters vice squad, searched the policeman's apartment at 1475 Columbia road and seized a pint of liquor, a half-gallon jar of alcohol and 39 bottles of beer.

Alfred L. Maggis, 23 years old, of 128 D street southeast, was arrested with Krueger at the time of the raid. He was also booked on illegal possession charges. Both men were released on $500 bond.

Lieut. Bobo said that he had been investigating complaints that the officer had been selling liquor for several days. A Federal prohibition agent and a police liquor informer, he said, went to the apartment and purchased liquor.

After Krueger's arrest he was immediately suspended. Lieut. Bobo said that Police Trial Board charges would be placed against him.

Krueger has been stationed at the intersection of Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest as a traffic officer. He was appointed as a policeman in 1925. Subsequently he resigned from the force, but three years ago was reappointed. He is 29 years old and is married.

TEA HOUSE SLAYERS BELIEVED IDENTIFIED BY STORY OF WOMAN

POLICE THINK COUPLE NO LONGER IN CAPITAL

U. S. Chamber Official's Son Held for Quiz After Release From Gallinger.

Through evidence given by a woman who said she smelled the burned powder in the pistol with which Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes was shot, police believe that they have established the identities of the slayers.

The woman, who was recentyl committed to the District Jail and whose name has not been revealed, was bailed out by detectives when she proffered information which she said would solve the Garden T Shoppe holdup and murder mystery.

She told detectives that about midnight on April 1, two young men who were known to her, came to her residence and bought drinks of whisky, and told her that they had held up the Garden T Shoppe about an hour before.

Rode With Gunmen

At that time, she said, they did not know that the shot, which was fired had seriously wounded Mrs. Jaynes. After drinking, the two gunmen invited her to accompany them on an automobile ride, she asserted.

From her house, the three rode out to a suburban barbecue stand, she said, and while sitting in the car there, she said, the two divided the money stolen and paid her $14 owing for drinks.

She was shown the .25-caliber automatic pistol used in the stickup, she said, and asserted it still had the acrid odor of recently burned gunpowder. She said that she saw neither of the men again.

About two months later she was involved in a shooting affair and was held in the jail for action of the grand jury. At this time she volunteered the information to police.

Men Have Police Records.

Detectives who have been investigating her story have found that the two persons she named have police records in other cities. While full credence is not placed in her story, certain facts have been checked, which bear out portions of her testimony. Her name has been withheld to protect her from revenge.

Homicide squad detectives have been unable to locate the two suspects and believe they left the city soon after Mrs. Jaynes died.

Mrs. Jaynes was shot on the night of April 1 by one of two bandits who robbed the Garden T Shoppe at Eighteenth street and Columbia road northwest. She did not know that she was wounded until she collapsed two hours later at her home. Two days later she died at Garfield Hospital.

Plan Questioning Man

Arrested for investigation in connection with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Jaynes during the holdup William Harper Dean, 21-year-old son of a United States Chamber of Commerce official, was being held last night at the Twelfth Precinct while headquarters detectives delved into any possible link he may have had with the cashier's death.

Dean was arrested yesterday after being released from Gallinger Hospital, where he had been under treatment since Saturday night after allegedly attempting to take his life for the fourth time. He is said to have told police that he was mentally depressed because of drinking. Dean's marital troubles were also thought to have contributed to his despondency. He was brought into the limelight some time ago when he sought a writ of habeas corpus for the return of his wife, whom he claimed was being detained against her will by her parents.

Arrested on 'Hunch'

The arrest of Dean was the result of a "hunch" by a Tenth Precinct policeman, Pvt. John F. Boyd, whose beat included the Garden T Shoppe. Boyd is said to have noticed that Dean, who was frequently to be seen in the vicinity prior to the Jaynes shooting, discontinued his appearances. This, coupled with the fact that Dean generally answered the description of one of the two young bandits, is believed to be the only grounds for his being held.

To date more than 30 persons have been held by police as suspects, only to be released when no evidence could be secured to incriminate them.

JURORS EXONERATE GALLINGER'S STAFF

Veteran's Charge of Harsh Treatment Declared Groundless.

A special report by the District grand jury yesterday, returned after an investigation that was launched when a World War veteran complained of the treatment he received while a patient, exonerated the hospital staff and the institution itself of all charges.

The grand jury found that an impartial and thorough investigation brought to light no instances that might lead to criticism. The report stated that "we sincerely believe that they (meaning the staff) are conscientiously performing a very difficult task."

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of the hospital, was voted the "complete confidence" of the jury. The jury defended the hospital from the charge that patients were sometimes sternly handled by declaring that the same rules of the institution applied to all "and sometimes patients become rebellious to any orders, and when confronted with the necessity of strict obedience and discipline certain types of individuals are prone to greatly exaggerate imaginary grievances and to condemn those in authority."

The evidence presented to it, the report stated, failed to support the charge that patients of violent tendencies were given positions of authority over other patients. It was revealed that the patient who struck a complaining witness bore a personal grudge against the witness. Since then, the assaulting patient has been adjudged insane and has been committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Woman Claims Assault; Sues Furniture Concern

The Home Furniture Co., 1145 Seventh street northwest, was sued in the District Supreme Court for $10,000 damages by Minnie Meeks 3549 S street northwest, who charged that she was assaulted and humiliated by agents of the company while residing at 3039 Q street northwest, March 23.

The suit charges that $500 had to be spent for medical attention, and that the woman also was required to submit to an operation as a result of the alleged attack. Attorneys James A. O'Shea, John H. Burnett and Alfred Goldstein filed the suit.

EVANS IS INDICTED HERE ON 11 COUNTS

Operating Engineers' Treasurer Held in Chicago, Accused of Embezzling.

Dave Evans, former secretary-treasurer of the International Union of Operating Engineers, now under arrest in Chicago, was indicted here yesterday on charges of mishandling funds of the union approximating more than $30,000. The indictment is in eleven counts.

A copy of the indictment will be sent to Chicago today to expedite the Government's efforts to bring Evans here for trial. He is at present at liberty on a small bond.

The indictment charges Evans with peculations dating back to September 26, 1929. The last count relates to the embezzling of a check for $100 on March 13, 1931. The indictment shows that Evans was an agent of the union, which is an unincorporated association.

The counts in the indictment are: Embezzlement of two checks, each for $1,500, dated September 21, 1929; embezzlement of a check for $2,000, January 3, 1930; conversion to his own use of a check for $4,000, May 9, 1930; conversion of a check for $2,000, June 10, 1930; embezzlement of a check for $1,226.70, July 11, 1930; conversion of a check for $2,666.70, August 5, 1930; embezzlement of a check for $2,481.30, September 25, 1930; conversion of a check for $2,444.20, October 27, 1930; embezzlement of $4,765.20 on January 29, 1931; and embezzlement of a check for $100 on March 13, 1931.

The affairs of the union have been much in the public eye recently. Three officers were shot at by a gunman several months ago, a woman horsewhipped one of the minor officers for not placing her husband in a position, and many members have brought suit to prevent them from being ousted from membership.

ALLEN TO TESTIFY IN SCHENCK PROBE

Former Policeman Will Be Summoned in Jury Quiz of Police Force.

Robert J. Allen, former Washington policeman and the prime believer in the theory that Virginia McPherson was not a suicide, will be summoned to testify before the District grand jury in the investigation that body is making into serious charges of graft and the framing of former Policeman Orville Staples, made by Frederick A. Schenck, discharged policeman, now serving a 20-year sentence for robbery.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover admitted last night that Allen would be subpenaed to appear before the inquisitorial body and tell what, if anything, he knows, that would substantiate the charges made by Schenck.

Staples, who has furnished a long list of witnesses to substantiate the Schenck story that he was "framed," again occupied the stand yesterday. Other witnesses were J. J. Agnew, traffic policeman; Howard Ogle, a detective sergeant; George Daley, a lunch room proprietor; Maj. Taylor and his wife, Mary Taylor, and half a dozen policemen.

Schenck was not brought to the court house, his testimony having been completed in a three hour session Monday. He is being held in solitary confinement at the District Jail.

Thrown from the automobile in which she was riding when it skidded into an embankment near Fort Humphreys yesterday while passing another car on the Richmond-Washington Highway, Mrs. Jeanette Kamerow, 37, 5320 Eighth street northwest, suffered a fractured pelvis.

She was removed in a passing car to the Alexandria Hospital, where it was said last night she probably will recover. Her husband, Harry J. Kamerow, a salesman for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., who was driving, said the car skidded when he turned sharply to avoid collision with the other car.

Changes in certain signal lights on Massachusetts avenue, west of Dupont Circle, and on Twenty-second street from Massachusetts avenue to P street, to place them on a flexible progressive basis were ordered yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

The six signals involved are to be operated just as the newly installed system on Rhode Island avenue. The timing is to be so synchronized that traffic, under normal circumstances, will be able to proceed without interruption.

A dapper young colored man is suspected of having been the thief who early yesterday removed the iron grating of a basement window at 1612 Rhode Island avenue northwest and stole jewelry, personal items and cash from bedrooms at that address. Charles F. Gurin, one of the victims, reported the loss of a wrist watch worth $55 and a coin purse containing about $2. George M. Harris, another loser, reported the loss of a billfold containing about $5. The man described as a suspect was seen loitering about the house Monday.

VETERAN INDICTED AS POLICE SLAYER

Sanity Tests Will Determine Whether Davis Faces Trial For Death of Poole.

Bert Davis, 38-year-old inmate of the United States Soldiers' Home, will have to stand trial on a charge of first degree murder in the event he is found legally sane by Dr. D. Percy Hickling, District alienist, who is now conducting a series of examinations on Davis at the Gallinger Hospital.

The District grand jury yesterday returned an indictment against Davis, charging him with the murder of Policeman Charles D. Poole, automobile patrol officer of the Twelfth Precinct, who was shot in the neck as he sat with a group of men near the Soldiers' Home grounds August 4.

Testimony before the grand jury did not go into the question of Davis' sanity. The jury simply was asked to indict Davis so that in the event he is found legally responsible he may be brought to trial. Police say Davis was found legally irresponsible in 1925 by a court in Maine.

Davis is a veteran of the World War and was under a strain when he lay for 24 hours in a spot where constant shelling made his rescue impossible. He is married and has two children.

An incoherent account of the events preceding the shooting was given by Davis. He said that he traded his watch for a pistol "because there were so many chickens running about the woods." He was asleep in the woods not far from the scene of the shooting when he was arrested, and he said his only recollection was that he had been shooting at chickens. Poole was on vacation when he was shot and, despite an excellent record, he was being investigated by high police officers who had received reports that he was "strong-arming" inmates of the Soldiers' Home who did not patronize a certain speakeasy.

Jury in Gelhar Death Calls Crash Accidental

A verdict of accidental death was rendered by a coroner's jury yesterday in the fatal injury of Private Arthur Gelhar, Fourteenth Precinct policeman, as the result of a collision between a police car in which Gelhar was a passenger and a car driven by Lester C. Smiley, Bethesda, Md. The action of the jury exonerated Smiley of blame for the death of the policeman.

Smiley and others testified before the body, the Bethesda man telling the panel that he had heard the whistle on the police car, but thought danger was past after a motorcycle policeman passed him. He did not see the police car which followed the motorcycle, he said. The accident occurred near the entrance to the Zoological Park on Connecticut avenue northwest.

Auto Skids, Hits Pole; Two Hurt, Car Wrecked

John P. Conaway, 4513 Seventh street northwest, received a fracture of the shoulder and lacerations yesterday when the auto he was driving toward Washington skidded from the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near St. Denis, Md., and hit a pole.

Leonard Cotten, of Fort Thomas, Ky., who was in the same car, suffered fractures of the collarbone and jaw. Both men were taken in a passing car to St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore. The machine was demolished.

Man, 64, Hit by Auto, Injured.

Struck by an auto at Eleventh and G streets southeast last night, William Place, 64, of 1367 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, received a possible skull fracture and lacerations of the scalp. Peter Hancock, 718 Alabama avenue southeast, was driving the machine, according to police. The victim was taken to Casualty Hospital.

THE ONCE OVER

THE police department was in a turmoil. Department executives dashed madly from one phone to another, speeding orders to all parts of the city. Outside could be heard the roar of motorcycles and the clatter of horses' feet.

"Any new developments?" asked a reporter.

"Not yet, but this outrage will be cleared up in 24 hours," declared the chief. "After all, this is a civilized community and things like that can't be tolerated. I expect an arrest any minute."

"We've called in every supernumerary. All vacations have been suspended. There is to be no rest, no let-up until the guilty party is behind the bars. We are determined to show the citizens of this city that their feelings can not be outraged in this brazen manner. This is America, you know, not Russia."

• • • •

OUTSIDE there was a volley of shots. It seemed close at hand.

"What was that?" asked the reporter, startled.

"What?" asked the chief, unconcernedly.

"Those shots!" said the reporter.

"Hey!" cried the reporter, leaping away.

"You'd better take a chair the other side of the room," said the chief, yawning. He walked over to the wall and dug the bullet out of it with a jackknife.

"Another beer war, I guess," he mused. "That's the fifth time that window has been shattered this week. I've got to do I hardly notice it, but it ought to be stopped; it's costing the city a lot for new glass."

• • • •

"NOW, on this other case," said the reporter, "have you any clews?"

"Plenty. We know the name and address. We have eye witnesses. Imagine the desperate character of a person who would do a thing like that in the presence of witnesses. Why, the city isn't safe until this case is broken and the offender put——"

The telephone rang. He grabbed it eagerly. "Good!" he said. "I'll get another motorcycle squad and some armored cars there at once. You fellows close in and don't take any foolish chances!"

"What's happened?" asked the reporter.

"I told you we'd break this case today," said the chief tensely.

"Have they made the arrest?"

"They'll have her in here any minute."

"Her?" repeated the reporter, somewhat puzzled; "who?"

"Why, that girl that dropped the shoulder straps of her bathing suit down at Coney," said the chief. "Who'd you think?"

Mercury's Maximum Is 72 As Rainfall Brings Relief

Washington experienced the coolest weather that has been felt here all summer yesterday, when the mercury reached an official reading of 65 degrees at 6 o'clock last night. The highest temperature yesterday was recorded as 72 degrees on the kiosk at 11 a. m., while the highest recording at the Weather Bureau was 70 degrees at 9:30 a. m. The highest temperature Monday was 94 degrees.

Officials at the bureau said that the total rainfall for Monday and yesterday was 1.5 inches, bringing precipitation a little above normal for the month.

Last night the Weather Bureau ordered hurricane warnings displayed along the coast of Florida and gulf ports. Reports of tropical disturbances, centering about 225 miles south-southwest of San Juan, and moving west-northwest, were received from the steamship Ruahine.

The Weather Bureau forecast for today is fair and somewhat warmer. The weather man said that the prediction did not mean more unbearable weather, but just a seasonable temperature.

$10 Extortion Is Charged To Two Capital Policemen

An indictment charging Edward Willis Gore and Frank Joseph Hospidor with extortion was returned by the District grand jury yesterday. Both are policemen attached to the Fourth Precinct and both are under suspension as a result of their alleged activities in accepting $10 from Frank Adams, Negro, as a fee to refrain from arresting him for liquor law violations.

The pair were arrested by a squad of police led by Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman on July 28. Adams, who lives at 720 First street southwest, informed police that patrolmen were attempting to obtain money from him and a trap was laid.

When Policemen Hospidor and Gore went to Adams' home, he tendered them a marked $10 bill, but told them they would have to go into his home to get it. The officers left, the grand jury records showed, after warning Adams to have the money outside when they came back.

On this second visit, the grand jury was told, a $10 bill was passed, and the waiting police squad then attempted to apprehend the pair. They refused to stop, it was shown, and only when they were threatened with pistols did they came to a halt.
